

Instead of canning and freezing all those surplus vegetables, why not try the age-old practice of drying? You'll find dried vegetables easy to package and store for use anytime during the winter months.

Dry vegetables three ways: air or sun drying, dehydrator drying, and oven drying.