

The subject I picked for this issue before we go to the trivia, is Jedi Lightsabers. I hope this clears up most of your confusion about them. Next Issue, I'll feature some info on the ships in the STAR WARS UNIVERSE. In this Issue, I focused mainly on the Star Wars Trilogy and not the all the other books (Jedi Search, Truce at Bakura Etc.) Anyways here it is:

LIGHTSABERS

For more than a thousand generations, during the reign of the Old Republic, a masterfully-trained and dedicated order known as the Jedi served as the guardians of peace and justice. Spread across a thousand worlds, they brought calm and confidence to the centenzry, who knew that few dared to cross the knights of that revered and ancient group. A prime reason for the intense respect the Jedi had earned was their masterful use of a weapon they themselves had created - the Lightsaber.

The Lightsaber is a product of an ancient, once forgotten technology. It is an exquisite weapon, one that flows and moves as its master moves. The skillful wielding of its legendary blade was considered the true mark of a Jedi, right up until the reign of Emperor Palpatine and his Empire began--at which time, the Jedi were hunted down and eliminated.

While the order of the Jedi is all but extinct, a few of their elegant weapons remain. One Lightsaber, constructed by Anakin Skywalker, belonged to the last of the Jedi, Luke Skywalker. Anakin Skywalker's 'saber was roughly 34-30 centimeters long and featured a handle body of polished durasteel. An inner shell contained the incredible energies generated within, without transmitting their heat to the device's outer surfaces. (Luke Skywalker lost his father's Lightsaber during combat on Bespin, at the expense of his right hand--lost to the blade of the Dark Lord of the Sith, Darth Vader.)

Using what he had learned from the detailed examination (and skilled use) of his father's Lightsaber, Luke Skywalker, like all Jedi before him, built his replacement Lightsaber himself. This new, self-built unit shares those elements common to all 'sabers: It houses a power cell within the handgrip; crystallite lenses are faceted to perfection; focusing core channels the intense energy of the cell into a coherent beam that bends circumferentially back upon itself to create a cutting "blade."

A Lightsaber can be wielded properly only after years of extensive training and disciplined use. The Jedi, it is told, could deflect blaster bolts and particle beams by the skilled use of their blades. Often the mere sight of the intensely-luminous blade and the unique, indescribable hum of that same blade slicing the air served to scatter most opposition.

TRIVIA 2.0

Sorry about what I'm about to say , but I'm not going to release a answer sheet to SWT 1.0 because it would just simply take to long. You can however just reply to me at : Kyp Durrone, Jedi Night, or BJGP33C on Prodigy. As I said before, I'm focusing on the actual SW Movies this time. Because I thought that the first issue(edition) had to many sources to pick from.

A long time ago, in a galaxy far,
