↑W and short diversions that I have put together over the years. I
↑W felt it was time to distribute these time-savers as a package.

↑W The programs included in this package are not meant to be earth-
↑W shattering achievements. I wrote them because there was a need
↑W for ©each and ©every one of these little gems. I use all of these ↑W programs in my week-to-week operations.

↑W Each of these programs serves a specific purpose. I feel that ↑W many of these purposes are needs that the every-day user may
↑W have; from the low-tech home computer user to the high-end
↑W tekkie.

↑W This package is being distributed as shareware. Please feel free
↑W to distribute and share ©unmodified and ©complete sets of this
↑W package. But I urge you to register your copy, using the liberal
↑W registration guidelines outlined later in this manual.

are backing files up to the correct volume ID.

Description

↑W

In a batch file, you specify the volume ID that must be contained on the target diskette in order for the command to set a return code of zero (case is not important; lower case letters are converted to upper case before the command is processed). This return code can then be checked via the DOS errorlevel statement.

The volume ID on the target diskette cannot contain embedded blanks (although legal by DOS standards). It can be modified using the DOS "label" command.

The command will normally print messages to the screen. This is normal DOS output, and can be redirected. If you don't want these messages to appear anywhere, simply suffix the command line with "> NUL" (excluding the quotes).

↑W

Command Usage

↑W

ChkVol [drive] [VolumeID] > NUL

↑W

drive- The first command line parameter must be a valid drive letter, and therefore can be only one character. Do not specify the following colon.

VolumeID- The second command line parameter represents the volume ID that will be matched against the target diskette. Case is not important.

Again, DOS output may be redirected via regular means.

Return codes

↑W

0: The volume ID on the command line matches the volume ID on the target diskette.

↑W The purpose of DiskUse is to determine how ↑W much hard disk and diskette space is
↑W used/needed for all different diskette types.

↑W Description

↑W Based on the path name/file mask provided in ↑W the command line, the program will determine
↑W how many 512-byte clusters are used. It will
↑W then determine how many of these clusters
↑W would be needed for any given diskette medium
↑W (high density, low-density, etc). This can ↑W help you make an intelligent decision as to
↑W which diskette type and/or how many diskettes
↑W are needed to backup a given set of files.

↑W Command Usage

↑W DiskUse pathname /s /d

↑W DiskUse: The program name. You may rename it
↑W to whatever you are comfortable with, if you
↑W wish.

↑W PathName: The name of the path of file mask
↑W is to be processed. If a file mask is not ↑W specified, *.* is used.

↑W /s- Process subdirectories as well. This
↑W feature is active only when *.* is specified
↑W in the file mask.

↑W /d- List files counted

↑W Return codes

↑W ... are not used.

↑W Modification History

↑W Vers 1.0, Dec. 30, 1989- Originally written

↑W Planned
↑W Enhancements

↑W Process the file mask that is specified on ↑W the command line through subdirectories when
↑W the /s switch is used.

↑W The purpose of DocUtil is to perform various ↑W operations on text files, namely,
↑W documentation. Currently, its only function
↑W is to print a text file into odd- and even-
↑W numbered pages.

↑W Description

↑W The program will "print" the input file into ↑W two output disk files. One file will contain ↑W all of the odd-numbered pages that would have
↑W printed, had the output been going to a
↑W hardcopy printer. The other file will contain
↑W all of the even-numbered pages.

↑W The resultant files can then be copied to PRN
↑W (or LPT1). Copy the odd-numbered pages file
↑W to the printer first. Then, take the paper
↑W out of the printer, turn it around, reinsert
↑W it, and copy the even-numbered pages file to ↑W the printer.

↑W The output is intended to be printed on ↑W continuous-form 8.5 X 11" paper. Therefore,
↑W the maximum line width that can be processed
↑W is 80 minus the size of the margin. The ↑W program will first check the input file to
↑W see if any lines would exceed the line
↑W length. If so, a warning message is printed,
↑W and the user is given the opportunity to let
↑W the program continue, or quit.

↑W If the program continues, any lines that ↑W exceed the maximum line length are chopped at ↑W the maximum, and the remainder of the line is
↑W written on subsequent lines.

↑W If your input document exceeds the maximum
↑W line length, you may want to reformat it
↑W (cutting the right margin, for example),
↑W before running it back through this program.

↑W Command Usage

↑W

InputFileName: The name of the text file that is to be processed.

↑W

↑W

OddFileName: The name of the file to which the odd-numbered pages will be written. This operand is required.

↑W

↑W

↑W

EvenFileName: The name of the file to which even-numbered pages will be written. This operand is required.

↑W

↑W

↑W

ff: Honor formfeeds that appear in the input file? Answer 'y' or 'n' (without the quotes). The default is 'y'. When this switch is set to 'y', the program will treat formfeeds as they were intended. Headings will be processed whenever a formfeed is encountered. When this switch is set to 'n', formfeeds are simply ignored.

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

ms: Margin size, in tenths of an inch. The default is 6. This margin will appear on the left side of odd-numbered pages, and on the right side of the even-numbered pages. This way, you can safely add hole-punches to the document.

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

dc: Honor dot commands? Answer 'y' or 'n' (without the quotes). The default is 'y'. When this switch is set to 'y', the dot commands will be processed as intended. When this switch is set to 'n', dot commands are treated as text.

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

lp: Lines per page. The default is 60. This is the number of lines the program will count before it skips to a new page.

↑W

↑W

↑W

Dot commands

↑W

Dot commands can appear anywhere in the body of the input file, as long as they start a line. When a valid dot command appears, it sets the values that will be used later in the program. For example, setting H1 (heading line 1) will cause that line to print the ©next time headings are printed.

↑W EDir is a directory listing utility program.
↑W When invoked, EDir will display a directory
↑W listing in ascending sequence by file name.

↑W Description
↑W When EDir is first invoked, it will sort the ↑W directory. On my particular machine, this
↑W happens so fast that you don't even realize
↑W that the directory is being sorted. If the /s
↑W switch is supplied, then grand totals are
↑W printed at eof.

↑W Command Usage
↑W EDir path or filename /h /s /p /t

↑W ©EDir - The command name. You may rename it to ↑W whatever you prefer: "EDir" may not be the ↑W quickest combination of keystrokes for
↑W invoking this command.

↑W ©path or filename- The name of the directory
↑W or file name to process. Wildcards are ↑W supported if the /s switch is omitted. If
↑W nothing is specified, the current directory
↑W will be processed.

↑W /h - Display a help screen (command syntax)

↑W /s - Process the specified directory and all
↑W all subdirectories within. This feature is
↑W active only when *.* is specified in the file
↑W mask.

↑W /p - Will cause the program to pause after
↑W every screenful of output

↑W /t - Totals only (no detail will be printed)

↑W All output can be redirected via normal DOS
↑W commands:
↑W "EDir > prn" will send the listing to the ↑W printer
↑W "EDir > dir.lst" will send the listing to ↑W disk as "dir.lst"

↑W Return codes
↑W Return codes are not supported

↑W

DOS command "simulator"

↑W

Description

↑W

This program is a gag, and no more. Load this command on a friend's computer, and walk away. The computer will react to commands that are typed in, but not in the way that the user will expect.

↑W

↑W

The program will echo all but the most sophisticated command line prompts, so the user will be totally unaware that Gotcha is waiting for a "DOS" command.

↑W

↑W

To exit from the program, you must type in the word "please" at the phoney DOS command prompt (Cntl-Break will not work).

↑W

↑W

Caution!

↑W

This program, as written by the author, is completely harmless! However... please make sure that you received this program from a reliable BBS, or directly from the author or other reliable source. Since this is a gag, hackers may be tempted to vandalize the executable program and attempt to cause damage to your system. If you are in GdoubtH as to whether this program is safe to use on your system, I encourage you to use whatever means you have of detecting a virus or other problem, or Gdiscard the programH.

↑W The purpose of ListT is to provide a quick
↑W and easy way to print source program text
↑W suitable for storing in a three-ring binder.

↑W Description

↑W ListT will process the file name or file
↑W specification supplied on the command line.
↑W Wild cards are honored. You can interrupt
↑W printing anytime by pressing a key at the ↑W keyboard.

↑W Source text is chopped after 69 characters,
↑W and the rest of the line is printed on the ↑W next line.

↑W One heading line is inserted at the top of ↑W every page, containing the name of the source
↑W member, and the date and time it was printed.

↑W Command Usage

↑W Listt filemask

↑W filemask: The name of the file or group of ↑W files to list. If the extension is not
↑W supplied, it will default to ".PAS". If no
↑W command line parameter is supplied, the ↑W program will prompt for one. DOS wildcards
↑W are supported.

↑W Return codes

↑W Return codes are not used.

↑W Modification History

↑W Vers 1.0, Nov 29, 1987- Originally written
↑W Vers 1.1, Dec 16, 1989- Minor enhancements
↑W Vers 1.3, Jan 3, 1990- a) Corrected "not
↑W found" condition that occurred when printing
↑W more than a dozen files; b) Substituted the ↑W blank in the day field of the printed date
↑W with a zero.

↑W Planned

↑W Enhancements

↑W (none)

↑W The purpose of NotBack is to list (the names
↑W and file sizes of) all files that have not
↑W been backed up. Specifically, it will list
↑W the names of all files whose DOS archive bit
↑W is set.

↑W NotBack will list the directory specified,
↑W and all subdirectories within.

↑W Description

↑W NotBack will traverse the directory
↑W specified, looking for all files whose DOS
↑W "archive" attribute bit is set.

↑W When DOS modifies a file, it turns on the ↑W "archive" attribute bit. If you backup your ↑W files with XCOPY using the "/m" switch, as I
↑W do, then this little utility can be a
↑W tremendous time saver.

↑W Previous versions of NotBack checked ALL hard
↑W drives attached to the system. This one gives ↑W you a choice.

↑W The number of files and total number of bytes
↑W are listed at end of job.

↑W Command Usage

↑W NotBack directoryname ColorSwitch

↑W NotBack- The name of the program. Change it
↑W to anything you prefer. I personally invoke
↑W this program from a batch file called ↑W NotB.Bat.

↑W directoryname- The name of the directory to ↑W process. If nothing is specified, the current
↑W directory will be used.

↑W ColorSwitch - Specify /C or /c if you wish
↑W the output from the program to be displayed
↑W to the screen in colors. If you @don't use the ↑W color switch, then output is DOS-
↑W redirectable.

↑W Output is faster if the color switch is not
↑W used. The program then uses Turbo Pascal's
↑W built-in fast screen-write routines.

↑W

PCTl is used to copy printer control characters to the printer.

↑W

↑W

Description

↑W

PCTl is a very simple printer control program. It's primary use is in batch jobs. I use this particular program in a batch file, to skip to the top of the page after the command has completed.

↑W

SDN, Sorted Directory w/Notes, will allow you to annotate your directories.

↑W

Description

↑W

SDN processes in several phases:

↑W

1. Read the directory

↑W

2. Sort the directory

↑W

3. Read the existing notes file

↑W

4. Merge the directory with the exiting notes file

↑W

5. Go into full-screen edit

↑W

↑W

SDN will process a directory that contains up to 300 files. If more than that number of files are contained in the directory, the program will stop, and suggest that you clean up your hard disk (fair enough, don't you think?).

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

The directory is sorted by file name, ascending.

↑W

↑W

If an existing notes file exists, it is read into memory. Notes files are named "!.SDN". These hopefully will sort above ALL other files in the directory.

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

The directory that is in memory is now merged with the existing notes file that is in memory, and written to the same place where the original !.SDN file was read from. The original file @will be overlaid with the new file.

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

The Borland Binary Editor is then invoked, and it will read in the newly-created !.SDN file.

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

The program will start in insert mode.

↑W

↑W

Hit F10 to save any changes you make; hit ESCape to cancel them.

↑W

↑W

Command Usage

↑W

@SDN - The command name. You may rename it to whatever you prefer. I, however, have found this to be an ideal set of characters for this command.

↑W name to process. If nothing is specified, the ↑W current directory will be processed.

↑W Return codes

↑W SDN will halt with an error code of 100 or ↑W 101 (depending on which file is being
↑W processed at the time), if the maximum number
↑W of files is reached. Currently, this limit
↑W has been set at 300.

↑W Sample output

↑W The notes file is named !.SDN. A sample is shown below.

↑W	!.SDN	1227	7-29-88	22:36	....A	This file
↑W	COMMON.PAS	1536	7-29-88	20:32	.....	\ Common
↑W	COMMON.TPU	1600	7-29-88	20:32	.....	/
↑W	SDN.EXE	32064	7-29-88	20:35	.....	This program
↑W	SDN.PAS	1006	7-29-88	20:13	.....
↑W	UTILITY.PAS	5686	7-29-88	20:17+	.....
↑W	UTILITY.TPU	3104	7-29-88	20:32-	.....
↑W	WORKLOG	218	7-29-88	20:54	....A

↑W The first column lists the file names.

↑W The second column contains the file sizes.

↑W The third column contains the file creation/last
↑W modification date.

↑W The fourth column contains the file creation/last
↑W modification times.

↑W The fifth column is a one-character field, and it will
↑W contain either a blank, a plus, or a minus.

↑W A plus sign after the time indicates that this is a
↑W file that was created since the last time SDN was run
↑W on this directory.

↑W A minus sign indicates that this is a file that existed
↑W in the directory previously.

↑W The next column is a five-position field that contains
↑W codes that represent the file's attributes, r,h,s,d,a,
↑W respectively. If a period is contained in the position,
↑W the attribute is considered to be "off". Otherwise, a
↑W capital letter will appear:

↑W R - this file is a read-only file
↑W H - This file is a hidden file
↑W S - This file is a system file

↑W A - This file has been added or modified since the ↑W last time a backup was taken.

↑W Consult your DOS manual for a more detailed description
↑W of these codes.

↑W The final column is the field that contain your notes.
↑W Even though the Binary Editor will allow you to go
↑W further, the program will retain only G50H positions of ↑W this field. The next time SDN is run, if there are any ↑W notes fields over 50 bytes, they will be truncated to ↑W the maximum length.

↑W Modification History

↑W Vers 1.0, July, 1988 - Originally written

↑W Vers 1.1, Jul 29, 1988- Renamed notes file to ↑W !.SDN, to sort above all files that begin in ↑W numbers.

↑W Vers 1.2, Aug 6, 1988-

- ↑W 1) Corrected a problem whereby the program
↑W would not operate properly inside the root
↑W directory of a disk.
↑W 2) The work files created by the program are
↑W no longer processed as part of the directory

↑W Vers 1.3, Jan 27, 1989

- ↑W 1) Only the current directory can be ↑W processed.
↑W 2) Program no longer creates a .BAK file.
↑W 3) Program allows specification of a path for
↑W work file space
↑W 4) Cleaned up potential run time errors
↑W 5) Allow user to change his mind about
↑W exiting after hitting ESC

↑W Vers 1.4, Jan 31, 1989

- ↑W 1) Reinstated ability to process a different
↑W (than current) directory.
↑W 2) Corrected some minor bugs (faulty write-
↑W protect message, etc)

↑W Vers 1.5, Jul 4, 1989

- ↑W 1) Corrected the way the time printed
↑W (12:30pm printed as 0:30pm)
↑W 2) Editor now starts in insert mode.
↑W 3) Corrected a bug: an I/O error 2 occurred
↑W when trying to process a directory that
↑W contained a period in the name.

Vers 1.6, Jul 6, 1989
1) Oops! Bug in total bytes corrected (has an integer field where a LongInt should have been used).
2) Increased maximum length of notes field to 50 characters
3) Deleted trailing spaces in notes field, so the !.SDN file can now be properly browsed.

SimpEdit is a simple text editor. You can use it to edit any pure ASCII file.

↑W

↑W

Description

↑W

SimpEdit is used to create those quickie text files, or to create batch files. Firing up a word processor may be overkill for these purposes.

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

This program invokes the Borland Binary Editor. Those commands are listed later in this manual.

↑W

↑W

↑W

Command Usage

↑W

SimpEdit pathname /e

↑W

SimpEdit - The command. You may rename it to anything that you are comfortable with. I have renamed my personal version to "E"

↑W

↑W

↑W

pathname - The pathname of the file you wish to edit

↑W

↑W

/e - Specify this switch if you have an EGA system and you want a 42-line screen. The letters, however, will be quite small.

↑W

↑W

↑W

Return codes

↑W

If the program abends for any reason, a code that can be tested by the DOS ERRORLEVEL command will be set, along with an error message.

↑W

↑W

↑W

↑W

Code	Message
------	---------

↑W

2	Unable to load the binary editor
---	----------------------------------

↑W

3	Unable to read file
---	---------------------

The purpose of SJ is to split large files into smaller, more manageable pieces, or to rejoin files that have been previously split.

Description

SJ can split a file into up to 20 output files. A binary input file must be at least 65,281 bytes long. There is no practical minimum for ASCII files.

How GbinaryH files are broken up by SJ:
The program divides the file size by the number of files that you specify. This figure is adjusted up to 32,640. The program then determines how many 32,640-byte blocks are contained in the input file, and adjusts the number of output files accordingly.

How GASCIIH files are broken up by SJ:
The program first counts the lines that are contained in the input file. The number of lines is then divided by the number of files, and any remainder is added to the first output file.

↑W

The program will display activity counts as it processes.

In an effort to maintain program speed, the program does not check to see if it has exceeded available disk space. If your input and output counts differ, it's a safe bet that this is what has happened.

The join function is intended for use only on files that have been split by this program. You can still combine files that were not split by this program, but you must name them as if this program had split them up initially.

File Names

When splitting an input file, the program will assign the output file name by substituting the file extension with @01, @02, etc, for as many as needed. When rejoining files, the program will look for files with those extensions. So when you are extension.

Applications

1) You may have a binary file that is very large, and you wish to transmit it via a modem. If you split the file first, then if the file transfer breaks, you won't have to retransmit everything that was previously sent.

2) You may have a file on your hard drive that is larger than your floppy drives can handle (DON'T use BACKUP/RESTORE!)

3) You have an ASCII file that is too large to be processed by your text editor. Simply split the file into as many smaller text files as needed, edit them, and join them back together when done.

Command Usage

SJ Oper FileName NoOfFiles Binary/ASCII

↑W

SJ - The program name

↑W

Oper - S for split, J for join, or H for help

↑W
↑W
↑W

FileName - The filename of the file that you wish to split files out of, or join files into.

↑W
↑W
↑W

NoOfFiles - The number of files that you want the program to split the file into, or combine from

↑W

Binary/ASCII- The format of the files being processed. Only the first letter is checked. If this operand is not supplied, then Binary is assumed. If this operand is in error, the command will stop.

Return codes

SJ will set the DOS return code that can be tested via ErrorLevel. All of the following are reasons for premature program termination.

↑W Example

↑W      To split the GIF of the SI girl into two
↑W      files (for purposes of sending them over a
↑W      modem): SJ S SiGirl.GIF 2
↑W      To rejoin them at the other end:
↑W      SJ J SiGirl 2

↑W Modification History

↑W      Vers 1.0, Feb 9, 1989- Originally written
↑W
↑W      Vers 1.1, Sept 8, 1989- Expanded the ↑W      capabilities of the program to allow it to ↑W      split/join up to 20 files instead of only
↑W      two.
↑W      Vers 1.2, Dec 17, 1989- Minor modifications
↑W      Vers 1.3, Dec 31, 1989- Added the facility to ↑W      process ASCII (text) files.
↑W      Vers 1.4, Jan 5, 1990- Cleaned up processing
↑W      for more than 18 files.

↑W The purpose of Stamp is to provide a
↑W recording of the date and time of an event.
↑W It is your typical "quickie", but has a
↑W purpose nonetheless.

↑W Description
↑W This program will send the current date and ↑W time to the normal DOS output file. This file
↑W is totally redirectable via normal DOS
↑W commands.

↑W Command Usage
↑W Stamp
↑W
↑W The program uses no command line parameters.

↑W Return codes
↑W This program does not use return codes.

↑W Example
↑W Stamp
↑W will produce:
↑W The date is 5/30/1988, the time is
↑W 10:15:44.04

↑W Stamp > logon.log
↑W will create that message to a file called ↑W Logon.Log.

↑W Stamp >> logon.log
↑W If logon.log exists, the message will be
↑W appended to it.
↑W If not the file will be created with that ↑W message.

↑W I have this in my autoexec as:
↑W Stamp >> Logon.Log
↑W so I can look back and see when I logged on ↑W to the system.

↑W Modification History
↑W
↑W Vers 1.0, May 30, 1989- Originally written
↑W Vers 1.1, Dec 17, 1989- Minor enhancements

↑W Planned
↑W Enhancements
↑W (none)

↑W here, because two of the utilities included in this package
↑W invoke the Borland Binary Editor.

↑W The Borland Binary Editor is included as part of the Turbo Editor
↑W Toolbox. It is copyrighted by Borland International, Inc.

↑W The commands are very similar to those used by the popular
↑W WordStar word-processor, and by all of Borland's language
↑W editors.

↑W your version. Shareware registration keeps shareware authors
↑W motivated, and provides the microcomputer user community a
↑W continuing supply of "try before you buy" software.

↑W Registration types range from single to special, depending on the ↑W plans for use.

↑W These utilities are not crippled for shareware; they are full
↑W working programs.
