

Marathon ARA Directory

So you think you're the best damned Marathon player in the galaxy?

If you have Marathon and ARA (Specify client or Server) tell us at climax@grfn.org. Please, Please, PLEASE, use the following format:

To: climax@grfn.org
Subject: <Area Code Here>

Body:

Marathon ARA Directory
<ARA Client or Server?>
<Modem Speed>
<Processor (040, 030, PPC)>

What is ARA? And where can I get it?

ARA stands for Appletalk Remote Access. In essence, it allows you to have an Appletalk connection between to Macs over the modem. Which means you can play any Appletalk game over the modem.

In order to use ARA, one person must have ARA Server, which takes incoming calls (and can also make outgoing calls). The other person can have either ARA Server or Client.

ARA Server & Client is available in all the major Macintosh mail-order companies.

ARA Server runs for about $115 (?)

ARA Client runs for about $35

Ick! Why is it Hypercard?

Why? It makes it extremely easy to edit the entries of a state.

Why is there a password on it?

Got me. I hope it's not too hard to figure out. ; )
