

Gardening can be difficult if you live in the city with a small patio or in an apartment where a balcony offers the only available space. Container gardening is ideal for these situations. The plants shown flourish in containers and are easily maintained. With the plants situated in a corner area, it is a good idea to make sure that the foliage you select is suitable for partial shade most of the day.