

To accommodate dry, scorching Italian summers landscapers historically chose heat-deflecting white hardscape—concrete, stone, or marble—and year-round greenery. Evergreen trees, shrubs, or expansive lawns maintain a balanced and geometric pattern like the one shown here. A water feature, such as a classical-style fountain, is a favorite source of refreshing coolness.