

Fill your landscape with plants native to California. The weather is mild and warm in many areas of the Golden State, so you can include a great number of plants in your mix. Look around local garden stores to find other plants native to your California climate. Don't be afraid to experiment. This design can serve as inspiration to gardeners in other areas, proving that plants don't have to be exotic to be attractive.