About Art Browser 1.0b6…

Art Browser is a desk accessory that lets you view Adobe Illustrator™ art documents from within any Macintosh™ application. It provides a scrapbook-like function by letting you browse through your artwork files. Art Browser also lets you print the selected artwork.

Art Browser displays only those documents that have been saved in the "Encapsulated PostScript EPS (Macintosh)" format. These files contain a previewed image for screen display as well as the artwork's PostScript description. You should save your an artwork document in this format when you plan on using it within a page composition programs that support EPS documents, such as Aldus' Pagemaker.

When you choose Art Browser from the Apple Menu, a dialog will be displayed allowing you to select and open an artwork document. A window then appears showing you the previewed image.

Art Browser also add a menu titled "Art Browser" to the menu bar. The commands within the menu are self explanatory.

One thing may not be clear: If you wish to view another document, first close the window and then choose Art Browser once again from the Apple menu!

Happy Browsing,
Mike Schuster
