Vol. VII.—No. 327.]

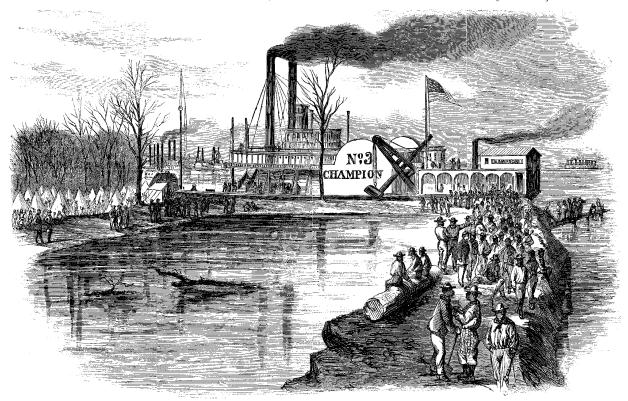

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 4, 1863.

SINGLE COPIES SIX CENTS. $3,00 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE

Fatered according to Act of Congress, in the Year 1863, by Harper & Brothers, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court for the Southern District of New York.

BREAK IN THE MISSISSIPPI LEVEE NEAR THE CANAL AT VICKSBURG.—Sketched by Mr. Theodore R. Davis.—[See Page 215.]

CUTTING AWAY THE DAM AT THE HEAD OF THE VICKSBURG CANAL.—SKETCHED BY Mr. THRODORG R. DAVIS.—[SEE PAGE 215.]

FORWARD—MARCH!

FORWARD? Yes, we are going! What craven turns back? See the blood that is flowing To moisten the track! Blood from loyal hearts form
When our foes passed this way,
A red pathway has worn,
We must walk there to-day!

Forward? Yes, God be praised! We are all of one mind,
When His standard is raised
We dare not lag behind.
Dark the world grows around,
And shall we hide our light? Trait'rous foemen abound, What can we do but fight?

What are you, friend, or I, While the Union's enslaved? Who should mourn if we die, So the nation be saved?
Oh! the earth closes tight
Where a coward finds rest But her green sods fall light On the patriot's breast!

Yes, we're all marching on Sword in hand, side by side, Bidding rebels begone Where our flag is defied; Till the land is united
That they've torn in twain,
And the flag they have slighted
Shall triumph again!

HARPER'S WEEKLY.

SATURDAY, APRIL 4, 1863.

NOW FOR A VICTORY!

THE news from all parts of the country con I firms the view we took last week of the despairing condition of the rebels, and the restoraspating condition of the recess, and the restora-tion of confidence throughout the North. Since we wrote the loyal people of the United States have been lending their money to Government for the prosecution of the war at the rate of a million and a half per day. The Assistant-Sec-retary of the Treasury has been obliged to come here to expedite the printing of bonds, for the engravers could not furnish them as fast as the people wanted to buy them. Gold has fallen twenty per cent., and the collapse of the cur-rency, so much dreaded at one time, is now indefinitely postponed.

On the other hand, each arrival from the South reveals a gloomier picture than the last. Starvation reigns at Mobile, Richmond, and Charleston. Flour is $60, $80 and $100 a bar-rel. The rebel currency, which is the only money current in Secessia, is so depreciated that money carrein in occessin, is so depreciment and gold sells at 600 per cent. All trailic of every kind is at an end. Agriculture has been reined by the Conscription Act. The growth of marfectures, which had commenced when the blockade was established, has been checked by the ourrency collapse, and those which are still working are worked by the Government. A correspondent in Richmond writes that quotations of prices are mostly fictitious, for the simple reason prices are mostly fictitions, for the simple reason that no one sells any thing which he can avoid selling, and all live simply "from hand to mouth." The railways are monopolized by Government, and from want of attention to repairs are fast wearing out—thus depriving the people of the States which have been the theatre of the ware of the means of obtaining provisions from other localities. As to civil rights, the from other localines. As to civil rights, the poor people of the South have none at all. Bands of horse, furnished with authority from Jeff Davis and his generals, scour the country, selzing young men and impressing them, stealing property, hanging all who differ with them, burning cotton, and laying the face of the land as waste as an African desert. Such is the picture as we find it in the rebel papers and the narratives of Southern refugees. To such a condition have two years of rebellion reduced the sunny South.

It is evident that this accursed insurrection only needs the coup de grace to finish it. That the rebels, however straitened for provisions and barassed by other tribulations, will succumb benarissed by other tributations, will succumo before they have been beaten, we are not prepared to believe. The rebel army will feed itself, though every one elso in the Confederacy starve; and pride will keep the leaders steadfast as long as it is possible to keep their armies together. But the news from the South indicates clearly that the rebels are in that state that a single defeat will destroy them titerly. Such a remise that the rebels are in that state that a single de-feat will destroy them utterly. Such a repulse as we met at Fredericksburg—which for sixty days plunged the North into mourning and al-most despair—would be fittal to the insurgents. Their armies would melt away as the French army did after Waterloo—when a magnificent corps of some 80,000 men disappeared in a single day so thoroughly that next morning it was in-possible to callect 1000 of them together. Dispossible to collect 1000 of them together. Discouragement and despair would overwhelm gar-rison after garrison, regiment after regiment, and we should very quickly have counter revolu-tionary movements in each Southern State, and hastily organized popular demonstrations in faver of the Union. Backed by a decided victory, the argumentum ad ventres: may be relied upon to finish the work.

to finish the work.

But a victory we must have. Who will be the General to win it? Hooker, they say, is moving more or less rapidly through the mud of the Rappalannock. Grant is not only engineering, but is getting ready to fight in the Southwest. Banks's cannon has been heard near Port Hudson. Hunter's bugle has sounded the advance at Port Royal. Rosecrans is feeling his way toward Southeastern Tennessee.

Which of these Conventions to the second Which of these Generals will be the one to en-throne himself in history as the man who put down the great slavery rebellion? There will be, we honestly think, but one more great battle. Who shall be the man to win it?

THE BRITISH PIRATES

The British pirate Florida bids fair to win as prominent a place in the annals of successful piracy as the other British pirate, the Alabama. The destruction of the Jacob Bell, with a cargo worth a million, has been followed by the destruction of another vessel, also, it is said, richly laden. The work goes bravely on.

When these vessels were placed on the stocks in England, the British Government was notified that they were intended to be pirates. At every step in their construction the evidence of their destination accumulated, and was carefully laid before the British Government. Minister Adams from week to week informed Earl Russell of the character of the Florida and the Alasent of the character of the Phorna and the Ma-hama, and placed at his disposal the opinion of Queen's Counsel to the effect that the construc-tion of these vessels was a violation of neutrality. The Earl was deaf to all remonstrance. "Her Majesty's Commissioners of Customs" at Liverpool and elsewhere, having probably had their pockets well lined with Southern money, discovered no evidence that either the Alabama or the Orato, alias the Florida, were destined for the service of the Slave Confederacy. It was not until Earl Russell felt sure that the Alabama had got fairly to sea that he issued orders to detain her Like master, like man. At Nassau and at Barbadoes the pirate Florida is a welcome visitor. Massit is asked to Government House, and congratulated by the British colonists on the de-struction of American vessels. The Alabama is feted in Jamaica; and the merchants of Kings-ton turn out on Change to give a right royal reception to the pirate Semmes. One can not help remembering that these British colonies were planted as pirates' nests, grew up on the profits of buccancering, and are now mostly peopled by the illegitimate offspring of pirates and

That it has been and is still the purpose of That it has been and is still the purpose of the British authorities, from Earl Russell down to the tide-waiters in "Her Majesty's Customs," to help these pirates to get to sea, and to assist them in their work of destroying American commerce, it is impossible, in view of the diplo-matic correspondence before Congress, to doubt for an instant. Only a few days ago, Mr. Lay-ard, on behalf of the British Government, stated in Parliament that he had no information of in Parliament that he had no information of any vessels being built for the rebels in England, though the list of their forthcoming fleet has been published in all the papers, with the names of the builders, and the sites of the dock-yards where the vessels are building. Two of the so called "Chinese" frigates have just been launch cd by Mr. Laird, the builder of the Alabama.

All the indications point to a general con-spiracy among persons in authority in England against our merchant navy. The gradual prog-ress of our merchant marine, the superiority which our builders have attained over British constructors, and the general preference given by shippers in Asiatic and South American ports to American over English bottoms, have aroused to American over English bottoms, have aroused the alarm of the "shop-keeping nation," and Englishmen are ready to avail themselves of the alliance of pirates to regain the carrying tsade of the world. Every British official, from Earl Russell to the half-disguised traiters who offici-ate as consuls in our ports, is possessed with the idea that now or never is the time to drive American ships from the face of the ocean.

This is one of the inversariances of the west

This is one of the inconveniences of the war in which we are engaged, and we must bear it like men. When peace comes—then will come like men. V

THE LOUNGER.

LETTER TO AN ENGLISH FRIEND

LETTER TO AN ENGLISH FRIEND.

MY DEAR SIR,—Although you have so clear a perception of the scope of our civil war, and so sincere a sympathy with the cause of the Government, I observe that you still conceive some sort of separation to be desirable and feasible, if not inevitable, and you add that many of our truest friends abroad are of the same opinion. If, however, you will look carefully at the facts, I am very sure that you will see, as we do, that the only alternative of the Government is the total overthrow of armed rebellion and a return to the constitutional methods of settling differences, or submission to its own ruit. snimission to its own ruin.

In the matter of disunion there are two points to be considered; first, the consequences, and, second.

the methods.

If we make the attempt to recognize the "Confederacy," and succeed in maintaining Northern unity, we surrender the navigation of our great rivers to a treaty settlement. We abandon Chesapeake Bay, which reaches almost to Philadelphia. We renounce all the Southern coasts and forts from the Capes of Delaware to and through the Gulf of Moxico. Those forts command the mouths of the rivers and the course of our Pacific and South American commerce. Your Thames is an inconsiderable river. Would Great Britain relinquish the control of its mouth to a foreign possession be but the sign of conquest? Besides this, we must establish an internal boundary line of 1500 miles, to defend against the most hostile of enemies. The greatest wars have been the defense of such lines. Such a line with us would be always festering; for slaves will escape, and the passions of borderers who have been wrenched asunder by civil war and consequent hate are uncontrolable. Then the Northwest is the granary of the continent. The Mississippi is its natural road to market, and the Northwest must and will central tit. What conceivable treaty could guarantee that centrol as the Union does? You will tell me that the self-interest of tready will enter that the treaty which in thas broken under a Union? There are other passions quite as strong as selfishness. But when, by the supposition, we have surrentered the conterpassions quite as strong as selfishness. If we make the attempt to recognize the "Con-will tell me that the self-interest of trade will suffice. But why should it keep a peace under a treaty which it has broken under a Union? There are other passions quite as strong as selfishness. But when, by the supposition, we have surrendered the coasts, and the rivers, and the forts, we have done so to a power that has and can have no maval resources, and which must therefore at once seek a maritime alliance. Disunion thus immediately establishes two foreign states upon our soil. And by the line which, in case of peace accepted by us, we must adopt, the North is almost territorially divided between the lowest point of the Lakes and the highest of the Slave region. And all this renunciation of territory, navigation, coast, commerce, internal communication, national honor, safety, and importance—all this whitting down of the imperial United States to a miserable cluster of balked political communities—when made after a war waged to maintain its pristine extension and power, is simply a conquest by the enemy, and an enomy that hates us the more because he was part of us, the ever-ready ally of any European or foreign foe against us, the willing and constant agreesor of a power that he has hamiliated by arms. This is upon the supposition that we ourselves propose an armistice and settlement. If, on the other hand, the rebels ask for peace, it will be infinitely easier and safer for the Government to maintain the Union upon terms that secure peace than to intrust the chances of that peace to an angry and sullen, although for the moment defeated, foreign power.

But any conceivable method of disunion is not less disastrous than the consequences. It is often forgotten by our foreign friends that union is an instinct with the great mass of our people, because union is synonymous with nation. We perfectly understand that our union is our strength and our success. It is this feeling which has hitherto enabled the Slave Power to carry all its measures. It had but to threaten the Union, and the country fall upon its k

Upon what principle, then, will you establish it? Davis will claim all the Slave States as his natural domain. But Kentucky does not willingly go with bim, nor Missouri, nor even Tennessee. Maryland has a strong rebelious tendency, but there is a vital Union element in the State. What is to be done? To be a Border State has been bad enough under the old system of one nation. How will it be when the border is to be that of a bostile foreign power? Who will stand in the breach? Evidently there can be but one solution. The question must be referred to the people of the States concerned. Let Maryland, for instance, decide by popular vote whether she will go with the South or the North. But if she elects the South she leaves Pennsylvania a Border State. Pennsylvania will therefore say at once, "I shall not let Maryland decide whether I am to be a Border State or ont." And she, too, will demand her vote upon the question. And so we shall immediately arrive at the practical perception of the dismal truth that by renoving one stone we have locesened the whole arch. The old national system will be gone, and the national bond being snapped each free State becomes a solitary community. But by the supposition, while thus the free States fall asunder the rebel States are close, cohesive power. Nor only that, but they have shown their ability to maintain themselves as a Confederacy against tremendous odds, and they have compassed the destruction of the old system. Is it not inevitable, then, that the remaining States must establish a new system or gravitate toward the only united national power upon our late domain? And inasnuch as Union is the most vital necessity, and the war for the maintenance of the old form of Union will then have failed, will not the combatant that remains virtual master necessarily dictate the terms of a Upon what principle, then, will you establish it? Davis will claim all the Slave States as his natural maintenance of the old form of Union will then have failed, will not the combatant that remains virtual master necessarily dictate the terms of a new Union? Party-spirit is still fierce. The North, or the body of loyal citizens, are not united upon any thing but the policy of preserving the Union, and when "the war for the Union," which is the common platform of good citizens, is ended by the conceded dissolution of the Union, every citizen will revert to his party allegiance. One party will cry, "We have been fighting for the Union, not for the nigger, and having lost the game we call for a fresh deal. We like slavery, and we go for a union with the South." Another will cry, "You can't mix cil and water. Any union of slave and free States, unless slavery or freedom are put in course of rapid extinction, will inevitably land us in another war." Intestine brawls will at once bristle all over separate States which have lost the strength and unity of a common purpose; and consequent anarchy will thus invite the forcible interference of the combined power which has compelled the separation.

When we are in a position to do what you suggest—namely, to curtail the dimensions of the rebellion, to push out the rebels from our system, and to hold them in check by a Sepoy army—we shall be masters, and our national peace, prosperity, and honor will be most wisely secured, as I said, by maintaining the Union. To offer any terms of composition until we have established that mastery is to confess our inability to do the work we have undertaken; in other works, to concede victory to the rebellion, and confess our machine. cede victory to the rebellion, and confess our national ruin cede victory to the rebellion, and confess our national ruin.

As a foreigner, your view of our war is that of human welfare at large, not especially that of the existence of our Government. Yet your sympathy is with the Government, and why? Because you believe that the great cause of popular liberty requires its success. Now can any thing be more disastrous to that Government and fatal to that cause than its defeat by armed rebels upon its own domain? The parallel which is constantly drawn in Europe and by many here between the attitude of our Government toward the rebellion and that of Great Britain at the American Colonies is radically false. The relation between Britain and the Colonies was not a union, and the geographical separation makes all the difference. If you would suppose a parallel case, it must be that of two or three counties of England, like Yorkshire and Kent, rising in rebellion, not because they had suffered the slightest injury or injustice, but because they could not extend certain local county laws repulsive to the common conscience of mankind over the whole empire. If the Imperial Government could be justly accused of gratifying a lust of dominion in aiming to reduce the robellion by arms, so may we, but not otherwise.

You will thus see, I hope, that we are shut up the robellion by arms, so may we, but not otherwise.

You will thus see, I hope, that we are shut up to the issue of victory or ruin. The "peace movement" is simply the appeal of the most reckless and depraved of our party politicians to popular ignorance and passion, counting for its success upon the natural fatigue of a tremendous war, its necessary expense, and, above all upon the brital prejudice against a most unfortunate race. Could such a movement become in any manner general, and by means of such arguments and such men as support it, the cause of civil liberty would be indefinitely lost here, and faith in the capacity of men for self-government would be every where extinguished. The Union is not only the master word of our destiny, but of that of free men throughout the world.

Faithfully yours.

THE OPERA.

THE OPERA.

AFTER all there is no manager like Maretzek. He has been familiar to us all now for many years. From the famous days of Truffi and Benedetti down to these very nights in which we hear one of the best companies that ever sung in New York. Maretzek has been the most faithful and undaunted of operatic benefactors. His management has been always skillful and enterprising, and the charge of the jarring and tumultuous interests of an opera is enough to try the stoutest heart. The success of the present company is as sure as it is deserved, and it is another obligation of the public to Maretzek.

COTOPAXI.

COTOPAXI.

It has been the happiness of Mr. Church to achieve a more popular reputation than any American painter since Alston. Cole, Durand, Kensett, and Gignoux, our other masters of landscape, have a justly won and sustained fame among the intelligent and cultivated lovers of art. So have Imman, Page, Huntington, Elliott, Gray, and Hicks, the historical and portrait painters. But the name of Church is doubtless more familiar to the general public. He alone, with the confidence of success, exhibits his single works as they are completed. No other name, perhaps, among our artists would summon such crowds as his.

The reason of this popularity, and the justice of the public preference, are questions which I do not mean to consider now. What fame is, what rejutation is, what fashion is, are inquiries that lead us into a region of subtle distinctions. As a Lounger, I have only to mention that one of the pleasantest public resorts at this moment is Goupil's gallery in Irondway, where, in the spacious upper hall, hangs in solitury splender Church's last great picture Cotopaci. It is a pendant to the Heart of the Andes. The other pendant is Chimborazo, a work upon which he is now engaged. The three are a series. They are parts of a whole in the painter's design, which is sevidently nothing less than an epic of the Tropics in color. If the artist is fortunate in the selection of a subject so suggestive, so magnificent, so effective, and practically untouched, the public is not less happy that the them has such an interpreter. You may listen to all the objections; you may hear of the want of imagination, of the mechanical detail, of the lacquered landscape, of the false glitter, and yet, after all, as we see in the statue of the Dying Gladiator exactly of the meanancia detail, of the includered min-scape, of the false glitter, and yet, after all, as we see in the statue of the Dying Gladiator exactly what Byron saw and sung, so we shall henceforth see in our fancies of the Tropics precisely what Church sees and paints. After seeing these pictures the Tropics is no vague word, but a vivid, gorgeous increase.

the Tropies is no vague wave, was a manage.

The Cotopax's shows the apparently smooth, symmetrical cone of the volcano in the left distance. A vast plume of smoke floats from its point across the sky in heavy, corrugated clouds, through which the sun, just risen, shines, irradiating a lake which fills the middle distance. Beyond the cone are a few mountain peaks, and upon the right, in the depth of the picture, a group of restless hills. From the fore-ground to Cotopaxi is a stretch of rocky plateau, fifty miles broad, clad lightly with thin grass. This plateau is divided from the right fore-ground and depth of the scene by a deep alvass into which the lake discharges its water, that foams over jagged rocks and whirls in blue mist toward the front. In the fore-ground descends a sheer precipice, against which birds are circling in the void. The plateau above strethes, a level promontory of rock, toward the lake, the reflection of the sunlight gleaning along its glittering surface. In the extreme corner of the left fore-ground is a road along which comes a peasant leading a lama, and a tropical thicket is bierced by a bowery path in which the luminous shadow is one of the marvels of the work. A lake in the midst of a vast rocky plateau, fifty miles broad, clad lightly with and a tropical thicket is pierce by a lower, panin which the luminous shadow is one of the marvels of the work. A lake in the midst of a vast rocky plateau, through a rift of which it flows away—the cone of the volerno, with the heavy smoke clouds, through which the sun glares as he rises—the cliffs and plateau stained with the myriad shifting hues of lichens, and tremulous with thin, whispering grasses, a cluster of troes in a corner—is the substance of the picture.

Its power is in the impression it conveys of the resistless force of tropic nature, expending itself in apparently aimless grandeurs and useless magnificence. The sense of solitude withering in its splender, of a torrid farceness which seems to aim at aridity, but is baffied by mexpected and inexinguishable beauty, the superb disdain which the equator hurls at high civilization and lumnan mastery and progress, are subtly reproduced in this equator hurds at high civilization and luman mastery and progress, are subtly reproduced in this painting, leaving in the spectator's mind a feeling of that profound sadness, which the sight or the story of the Tropics always inspires.

The handling is of the same character and excellence as in Mr. Church's other works. The extraordinary elaboration of detail, as seen in the trees at the left, in the reckiness of the rock, and in the variety of surface, is unsurpassed even by the Pre-Raphaelite doctors. Yet it is subordinated to a breadth of effect which is equally striking. Brilliant and masterly effects of light and color with the greatest breadth are not uncommon. Diaz achieved them wonderfully in very small pictures. But Diaz sacrificed every thing to that single point. It was often smeared upon the canvas with a pal-But Diaz sacrificed every thing to take the pal-It was often smeared upon the canvas with a pallet knife. It was the crudest pigment. But Church secures the light, the brilliancy, the tell-ing and broad effect without slurring the least de-tail. You have the granulations of the bark and tail. You have the granulations of the bark and the broad splendor of the tree. There is no niggling. It is honest work, resulting from the most sagacious observation.

Lat us hope, some happy day, to see the Heart of the Andes, the Cotopazi, the Chimborazo, and the Andes of the Ecuador all combined in a single exhibition.

—In the ante-room of the gallery there is a proof of the engraving of the Heart of the Andes, the result of three years labor of ten hours a day. It is an exquisite specimen of line engraving worthy the most careful and intelligent study.

FROM ONE OF THE PEOPLE.

THE Lounger commends the following correspondent to the Delmonico Committee as a citizen in extreme need of "sound political information:"

DEAE LOUNGES,—Dr. Mackay, the New York correspondent of the London Times, must, from the nature of his communications, breathe in an atmosphere laden with the poison of sedition. His letter, duted January 29, 827s the poison of sedition. His letter, dated January 28, asys:

"The beginning of the end draws near. The patience of the people is well-nigh exhausted. They have long been disguisted with the war and the Administration. The disguist has communicated itself to the army. Confidence exists nowhere.

"From the Exterminators and the Abolitionists have begun to deepair of their cause, their President, and themselves, and see before them not only the dissemblement of the Union into the North and South, but into a third regulatio of the West, accompanied by the utter pressration, of orecit, if not by a crowning set of national benstratory.

this of credit, if not by a cowaring act of national bank-rupter,"

The first sentence is true, but not with the meaning of the correspondent of the London Times. The beginning of the cond draws near; but is will be the end of this gigantic Southern rebellion, and not the dissememberment of the Union. "The patience of the people is well-night exhausted," writes this profound student of American politics, and self-appointed dissector of American mationality. The patience of the people can never be exhausted to a point where they would consent to national disgrave and extinction for the sake as fave tables; in an autitual weak-news. Congress is a self-gy-valve through which the surplus atom accepts. But the great heart of the American pools throbe as strong and as loyal to-day as when the "correspondent" of the London Times learn something of the nature of the American pools as something in regard to American politics? The two Woods may talk treason by the hour; but the country has taken their measure. Neither does Horace Grooley speak for the American pools; for they do not believe in his doctrine Dr. Mackay can not judge justly of our cense. A man must be among and of the people in order to feel of their learns.

What does Dr. Mackay mean by the word "Externine What is the second of the country has the same with the country has the same whose the country has the doctrine the country has taken their measure.

What does Dr. Mackay mean by the word "Externine What does Dr. Mackay mean by the word "Externine What does Dr. Mackay mean by the word "Externine Testernine Teste must be among and of the people in order to rece to accu-learts.

What does Dr. Mackay mean by the word "Extermin-tor?" Deas he intend that it shall represent those who are for exterminating the rebellion? If he means this, then he must "Gount in" the great body of American citizens. Perhaps the fire of his excited imagination has conjured a people, demon-like, rushing South on a scalp-ing expedition!

I beg the correspondent of the London Wines, who is here fishing out of the by-lanes and places all the dirty stuff that he can find, to intertard his communications now and then with a little common sense. He need not be afraid of the article—it will not hurt him.

C. C. T.

THE SONG OF SONGS,

A most timely and admirable war-song is the following "broadside," which has been widely distributed among the Union soldiers, who are now "sitting upon stumps by the road-side and in the woods of the South," and who have a tolerably clear "understanding of politics and the duties of the citizen." clear "und the citizen.

N.B. Justice to the Delmonico Committee for the diffusion of Copperhead literature requires us to state that the song is not issued under their aus-

N.B. 2. The Honorable Isaac Toucey does not sing this song at the close of his speeches for Mr. Thomas H. Seymon. Neither was he humming it when he sent off all the national ships of war to the ends of the earth, in order that the rebellion might encounter no opposition.

The writer of the song is Charles G. Leland; the air, "My love she's but a lassie yet."

O! WE'RE NOT TIRED OF EIGHTING VET!

O: when not tribed of situating yet?

O! we're not the boys to frighten yet!

We're not the boys to frighten yet!

Wille druns are drumming we'll be coming,

With the ball and bayonet!

For we can hit while they can pound,

And so let's have another round!

Secsah is bound to lick the ground,

And we'll be in their pantry yet!

O! we're not tired of tramping yet—
Of soldier-life or camping yet;
And rough or level, man or devil,
We are game for stamping yet.
We've lived through weather wet and dry,
Through hall and fire, without a cry;
We wouldn't freeze and couldn't fry,
And haven't got through our ramping yet.

We haven't broke up the party yet; We're rough, and tough, and hearty yet Who talks of going pays what's owing And there's a bill will smart ye yet. So bang the doors, and lock 'en tight! Socsah, you're got to make it right! We'll have a little dance to right; You can't begin to travel yet!

O! we're not tired of fighting yet,
Nor ripe for diauniting yet!
Sefore they do it, or get through it,
Thereil be some savage bitting yet.
Then rip harma for Uncle Sum,
And down with all seessh and sharn!
From Davis to Vallandigham,
They all shall rue their treason yet!

UPON THE REVOLUTION.

It is part of the design of the Cooper Institute to fournish every season a series of popular lectures upon the most timely and permanently valuable topics, and several courses have been delivered this winter. Among them those of Professor G. W. Greene upon the American Revolution are worthy of especial notice; for they are the fruit of the extensive research and scholarship of a grandson of one of the most illustrions of Revolutionary heroes, General Greene, the friend of Washington. Professor Greene is in possession of his grandfather's private papers, which he was preparing for publication when the war began. Newer interests are now likely to postpone, if not entirely to prevent, their appearance. Meanwhile a series of discourses upon the Revolution has been prepared and delivered by Professor Greene before the Lowell Institute in Boston with the greatest success. They have been repeated, or are even now repeating, at the Cooper Institute. Professor Greene's scholarly accomplishments and hereditary interest in the great theme are the sure guarantees of the interest and value of his discourses. The Lyceum Committees of the next season might wisely bear the fact in mind. fact in mind.

LITERARY.

IN reply to numerous inquiries the Lounger says, what he omitted to say in his article upon "The Trial of the Constitution," by Sidney George Fisher, that it is published by Messra. J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

"Sylvia's Lovers" is the new novel by Mrs. Gaskell—a story of English life, told with the eloquent ferror and dramatic power for which the authoress of "Mary Barton" has long since established her fame. It has been greeted with great praise by the London critics, and shows that Mrs. prates by the London "rities, and shows that Mrs. Gaskell is not yet to be superseded by the fresher triumphs of Mrs. Wood or the authoress of "Aucra Floyd." Indeed Mrs. Gaskell and Miss Evans, the author of "Adam Bede" and "Romola" (now publishing in Harper's Magazino), are still unrivaled among the "femile novolists" of England. Published by Harper & Brothers.

In this number of the Weekly is the brilliant opening of Charles Reade's new novel, "Very Hard Cash." Mr. Tom Hughes must look to his laurels. Mr. Reade begins by a most spirited picture of boat-racing at Oxford, and places four marked characters upon the stage. The breeze blows in his stories from the very beginning. There is a staceato in the style, a brisk movement, a disdain of workings and presinces that make his narrae of weariness and prosinces, that make his pages sparkle. There are no better tales to read in numbers than Reade's, for his dramatic habit leads him to finish every part like a scene upon the stage. Begin with the beginning.

The value of General Butterfield's "Outpost Duty" may be inferred from the fact of the large Government orders for the use of the army. The accomplished Chief of Staff in the Army of the Potomae has prepared a most timely and lucid manual. It is both the illustration of his own military interfields and the contract of the contract o itary intelligence and a friendly service to his fellow-soldiers. Published by Harper & Brothers.

HUMORS OF THE DAY.

"I sax, Mike, what sort of potatoes are those you are planting?" "Raw ones, to be sure; yer honor wouldn't be thinking I would plant boiled ones."

"Papa, what is that picture over the mantle-piece?"
The vain father answered, "Why, that's papa's arms, my darling." "Then why don't you have your legs put up too?" was the reply.

A gentleman who had lost his wife, whose maiden name was Little, addressed the following to Miss More, a lady of diminutive stature:

was Little, addressed use manning or an of diminutive stature;

"I've lost the Hitle once I had, My heart is sed and sore, 85 now I should be very glad. To have a little more."

To which the lady sent the following numeer:

"I jiv much the loss you've had; The grief you must endure—A heart by Little made so sad, A little More worth cure."

The butler to Lord B.— gave up his place because his lordship's wife was always solding him. "Good gracious!" exclaimed his master, "ye're little to complain o'; ye may be thankfu' ye're no married to her."

A certain old lady, whenever she hires a servant-man aivays sake, "Can you whistle?" On being asked the reason of this curious question she says that the always makes him whistle when he goes to draw the ale until he returns, thus securing him from testing.

The philosopher Bion said pleasantly of the King who by handfuls pulled his hair off his head for sorrow, "Does this man think that baldness is a remedy for grief?"

The man who attempted to whistle a bar of soap, has in jured his voice by trying to sing a stave off a barrel.

A railroad contractor recently tried to take a ride on a "train of thought," and falling off, was run over by a "passing event."

He who said that the half is often better than the whole might have added that none at all is often better than the half.

Young ladies are like arrows—they are all in a quive till the beaux come and can't go off without them.

DO YOU GIVE IT UP? What Christian name reads both ways the same?

Hannah. Why is Ireland likely to become very rich? Because its capital is always doubling (Dublin).

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

Why is a pretty woman like a lock? Because she is a thing to a door (adore).

What flowers are there between a lady's nose and chin? Tulips (two lips).

Why have wine and cake very bad morals?

Because one is always drunk, and the other is often

What is the difference between a good and a bad oyster?
One is a native and the other is a settler. If the eyes and nose were going to run a race which sould win?

The eyes, for the nose would be the vous win? The eyes, for the nose would be blown, while the eyes would run till they dropped.

THE YAZOO PASS EXPEDITION.

THE YAZOO PASS EXPEDITION.

Our intelligence from the Southwest is confused, disconnected, and somewhat contradictory. On 20th the Department at Washington received a dispatch from Admiral Porter stating that he has received information from Lieutenau Communder Wazoon Smith that on the 4th instant the whole expedition arrived in the Talhahatchia. The two properties of the Wazoon Smith that on the 4th instant the whole expedition arrived in the Talhahatchia. The Market of the Wazoon Smith that on the 4th in the Petrel, which lost her wheel.

On 19th a dispatch was received at Washington from Memphis stating that our fleet had reached the junction of the Talhahatchia and Yallabusha Hivers, and there had had a fight, on 19th, with a robel fort, edited Fort Pemberro.

On 29th even a conting by way of Chico. Alter advices, without date, conting by way of Chico. Alter advices, in the stating that the statement Dispatch, with the Eighth Missourly, had succeeded in the statement Dispatch, with the Eighth Missourly, had succeeded in the statement Dispatch, with the Eighth Missourly, had succeeded in the statement Dispatch, with the Eighth Missourly, had succeeded in the statement Dispatch, with the Eighth Missourly find succeeding the Statement Dispatch, with the Eighth Missourly find succeeding the Statement Dispatch of the Statem

THE ATTACK ON PORT HUDSON.

THE ATTACK ON FORT HUDSON.

Admiral Farragut, supported by General Backs, has attacked Port Hudson. Our accounts of the after are this far very meagre. The rebel story is thus given in the lichmond Wig of ITh:

"The bombardment commenced on Port Hudson at two persons of the property of the property of the light of the property of the property of the property of the property of the given by the pression of the property of the darkness.

"The firstly was terrific. One gun-host passed in a diamaged condition. The United States sloop-of-war Mississipply was burned to the water's edge in front of our batteries under cover of the darkness.

"Our victory was complete. There were no cassatties on our part. Thirty-six men and one midelityman of the Mississipply were brought in by our cavality, several of the Mississipple were brought in by our cavality, several of the Prangut's flag-ship went down the river disabled." On the other hand, it is stated by Union officers from New Orleans that on 14th Admiral Farragut came into action with his floot at Port Hudson, and after a brisk cracking with the batteries, succeeded in passing the fort Mississipple behind, which run aground, and within the our like of the enemy's works. Dispatches from Southwest Pass, Louisians, appear to confirm this stationary, and the property was in good spirits, and would duth heavy hours.

THE LAKE PROVIDENCE CANAL.

THE LAKE PROVIDENCE CANAL.

The water was let into the canal at Lake Providence on the 16th inst. The aperture is twenty feet wide, and was opening at its mouth still wider. The greater part of the lower was threatened with an overflow on the following morting.

SKIRMISH IN TENNESSEE.

The following has been received at the head-quarters of the army:

The following has been receive as the secondarium tree we have army: MORFREENDOR, TENERSEE, Morch 90, 1882.

Major-General Hallock, General-in-Chief:
General Reynolds reports from Colonel Hall's brigade, Colonel Hall's brigade, and the secondarium of the secondarium trees and the was attacked to the secondarium trees and the was attacked to the secondarium trees and the secondarium trees and the secondarium trees and the secondarium trees are secondarium trees and the secondarium trees and the secondarium trees are secondarium trees and trees are secondarium trees and trees are secondarium trees are secondarium trees and trees are secondarium trees are secondari soven killed and thirty-one womenes, the train.

The robol loss was thirty or forty killed, including three commissioned officers, one hundred and forty wounded and twelve prisoners, including three commissioned officers, W. S. ROSEGRANS, Major-General,

DISTRESS IN DIXIE.

DISTRESS IN DIXIE.

The Richmond papers are creaking fearfully over the want of food under which the robol armies are now suffering. All the country around the localities where these armies are situated is completely stripped of provisions, and the only resource lies in the railmonds, which are said to be giving out for want of inborers to keep them in order. The wood-work is rotting and the machinery exiting out for convention of the contraction of the convention of the conv

DEATH OF GENERAL SUMBER.

The army of the United States and the cause of loyalty against rebellion have sustained a scrious loss in the death of Major-General Edvin V. Summer, who died at 8 Synause on 21st, rather suddenly, of congestion of the lungs.

FOREIGN NEWS.

ENGLAND.

THE FIRATES IN PARLIAMENT.

In the House of Commons Mr. Caird asked if the Covernment was informed of ships peparing for the Confederates in England similar to the Adabama, and Mr. Leyard said that the attention of the Government had been called to more than one vessel of the kind, but no evidence has been yet furnished to enable the Government to interfere. He said, however, that staffer dreat nave been given for all supported vessels to be closely watched.

TWO MORE LAUNCHED.

TWO MORE LAUNCHED,

Mesers, Laird, of Birkenbead, Eugland, have launched two eteamers—the Quarac-tong and Yen-t-isin—from their yard at that place. These vessels form part of the Anglo-Chinese fleet recently speken of as being builting in England, under that pretense, for the service of the rebels of the South.

ARRIVAL OF THE PRINCESS ALEXANDRA The Princess Alexandra, of Denmark, now the wife of the Prince of Wales, had reached Windson Castle. POLAND.

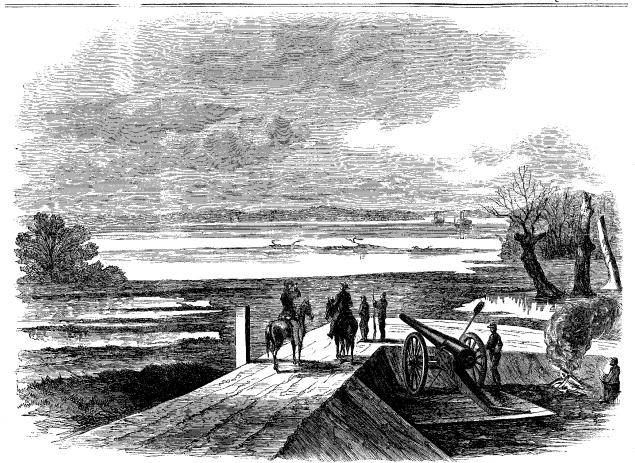

THE REBULLION.

THE EEBLLION.
The Prench and English Governments are quite agreed, it is said, as to their policy on the Folish question. In notes to Russia, they regret the partition of the ancient kingdom, but accept it as a fact which can not be requedied; but they speak carnestly, at the same time, of the colonn promises made of granting liberal institutions to the Foles.

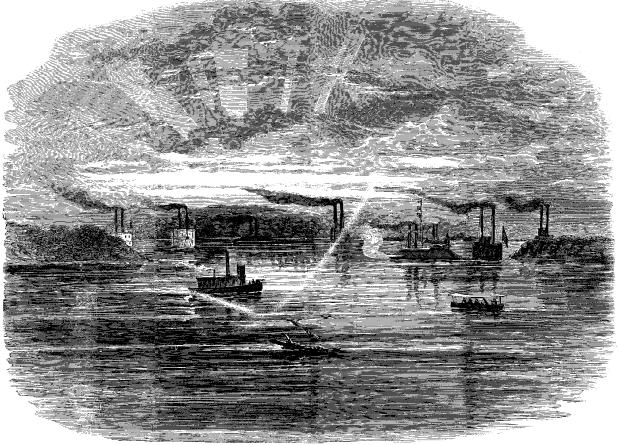

GENERAL STUART'S NEW AID.

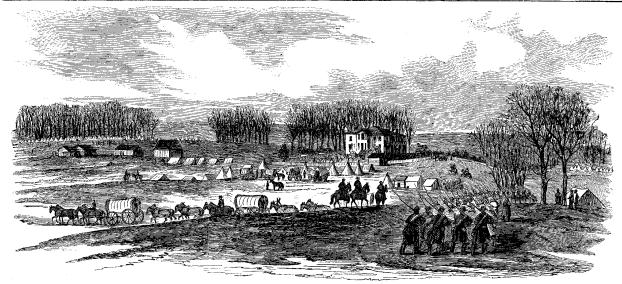

"The robel cavalry leader, STUART, has appointed to a position on his staff, with the rank of Major, a young lady residing at Fairfax Court House, who has been of great service to him in giving information," etc.—Daily Paper.

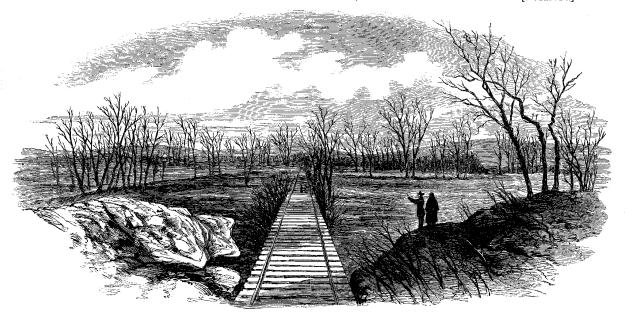

WARRENTON FROM OUR BATTERIES.—Sketched by Mr. Theodore R. Davis.—[See Page 215.]

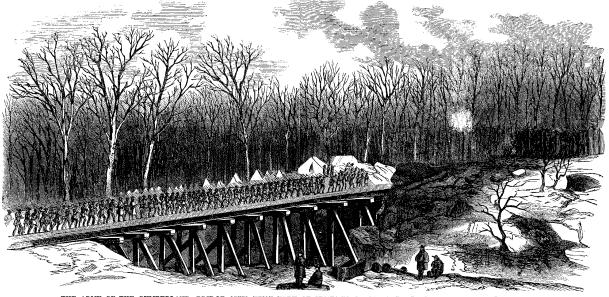

THE SUNSET GUN IN THE YAZOO.—Sketched by Mr. Theodore R. Davis.—[See Page 215.]

THE ARMY OF THE CUMBERLAND—HEAD-QUARTERS OF MAJOR-GENERAL M'COOK, COMMANDING TWENTIETH ARMY CORPS.—[See Page 215.]

THE ARMY OF THE CUMBERLAND—THE NASHVILLE AND CHATTANOOGA RAILROAD, LOOKING SOUTH.—[See Page 215.]

THE ARMY OF THE CUMBERLAND-BRIDGE OVER WEST FORK OF STONE RIVER, BUILT BY GENERAL MITCHELL.—[See Page 215.]

Entered according to Act of Congress, in the Year 1863, by Harper & Brothers, in the Clerk's Office of the Dis-trict Court for the Southern District of New York.]

very hard cash

By CHARLES READE, Esq., AUTHOR OF "IT IS NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND,"

With Original Kllustrations.

F Printed from the Manuscript and early Proof-sheets purchased by the Proprietors of "Harper's Weekly."

PROLOGUE.

in a snowy rilla, with a sloping lawn, 'ust outside the great commercial sea-port, Barking-ton, there lived, a few years ago, a happy fam-lly. A lady, middle-aged, but still charming; two young friends of hers; and a periodical risitor.

His figure it was that charmed the cu-Buil. His figure it was that charmed the Curious observer of male beauty: he was five feet ton; had square shoulders, a deep chest, mascrine flank, small foot, high instep. To crown all this, a head, overflowed by ripples of durkbrown hair, sat with heroic grace upon his solid white threat, like some glossy falcon new lighted on a Parian column.

and this, a head, overflowed by ripples of dark-brown hair, sat with beroic grace upon his solid white throat, like some glossy falcon new lighted on a Parian column.

This young gentleman had decided qualities, positive and negative. He could walk up to a five-barred gate, and clear it, alighting on the other side like a fallen feather; could row all day, and then dance all night; could fing a cricket ball a hundred and six yards; had a lather and a tool-box, and would make you in a trice a chair, a table, a doil, a nut-cracker, or any other movable, useful, or the very reverse. And could not learn his lessons, to save his life.

His sister Julia was not so easy to describe. Her figure was tall, lithe, and serpentine; her hair the color of a horse-chestnut frosh from its pod; her ears tiny and shell-like, her eyelashes long and silky; her mouth small when grave, large when smiling; her eyes pure hazel by day, and tinged with a little violet by night. But in joiting down these details, true as they are, I seem to myself to be painting fire, with a little snow and saffron mixed on a marble pallet. There is a beauty too spiritual to be chained in a string of items; and Julia's fair features were but the china vessel that brimmed over with the higher loveliness of her soul. Her essential charm was, what shall I say? Transparence.

"You would have said her very body t night." Modesty, Intelligence, and, above a'l, Enthusiasm, stone through her, and out of her, and made her an airy, fiery, household joy. Briefy, an incarnate sunbeaun.

This one could learn her lessons with unreasonable rapidity, and, until Edward went to Eton, would hisset upon learning his into the bargain, partly with the fond notion of coaxing him on; as the company of a swift horse indies a slow one; partly between the second contents of a solid one; and the form of a swift horse indies a slow one; partly between the company of a swift horse indies a slow one; partly between the company of a swift horse indies a slow one; partly between the comp him on; as the company of a swift horse incites a slow one; partly because she was determined to share his every trouble, if she could not re-move it. A little choleric, and indeed downmove it. A little choicine, and indeed down-right prone to that more generous indignation which fires at the wrongs of others. When heated with emotion, or sentiment, she lowered her voice, instead of raising it like the rest of us, she called her mother "Lady Placid," and her brother "Sir Imperturbable." And so much for outlines.

she called her mother "Lady Placid," and her brother "Sir Imperturbable." And so much for outlines.

Mrs. Dodd laid aside her personal ambition with her maiden name; but she looked high for her children. Perhaps she was all the more ambitions for them, that they had no rival aspirant in Mrs. Dodd. She educated Julia herself from first to last: but with true femainie distrust of her power to mould a lordling of creation, she sent Edward to Eton at nine.

This was slackoning her tortoise. For at Eton is no female master, to coax dry knowledge into a low head. However, he made good progress in two branches—aquatise and cricket.

After Eton came the cancice of a protession. His mother recognized out four; and these her discrect ambition speedily sifted down to two. For military heroes are slot now and then, however pacific the century; and naval ones drowned. She would never expose her Edward to this class of accidents. Glory by all means; glory by the pail; but asfe glory, please; or she would none of it. Remained the church and the bar: and, within these reasonable thmits she left her dear boy free as air; and not even hurried; there was plenty of time to choose; he must pass throught the university to either. This last essential had been settled about a twelvemonth, and the very day for his going to Oxford was at hand, when one morning Mr. Edward formally cleared his throat; it was an unusual act, and drew the ladies' eyes upon him. He followed the solemnity up by delivering calmly and ponderously a connected discourse, which astonished them by its length and purport. "Mamma, dear, let us look the thing in the face." This was his favorite expression, as well as habit. "I have been thinking it quietly over for the last six months. Why send me to the university? I shall be out of place there. It will cost you a lot of money, and no good. Now, you take a fool's advice! Don't you waste your money and papa's sending a dull fellow like me to Oxford! I did bad enough at Eton. Make me an engineer, or something. If you w ambitious tor them, that they nad no rival ascutside ties great compercial sea-port, Barthage, the content of the provided provided of the provided of the provided provided provided the provided pr an embrace and a little grunt of resignation from

"Take the dear boy and show him our purchases, love!" said Mrs. Dodd, with a little gentle accent of half reproach, scarce perceptible to a male ear.

"Oh yes:" and Julia rose and tripped to the door. There she stood a moment, half turned, with arching neck, coloring with innocent pleasure. "Come, darling. Oh, you good-for-nothing thing." On, you good-for-nothing

The pair found a little room hard by, paved with china, crockery, glass, baths, kettles, etc.
"Three, Sir. Look them in the face and us, if you can."
"Well wen."

if you can."

"Well, you know, I had no idea you had been and bought a cart-load of things for Oxford."
His eye brightened; he whipped out a two-foot rule, and began to calculate the cubic contents.

"I'll turn to and make the cases, Ju."

The ladies had their way; the cases were made and dispatched; and one morning the Bus came for Edward, and stopped at the gate of Albion Villa. At this sight mother and daughter both turned their heads quickly away by one independent impulse, and set a bad example. Apparently neither of them had calculated on this palry little detail. They were game for theoretical departures; to impalpable universities; and "an air-drawn Bus, a Bus of the mind," would not have dejected for a moment their lofty Spartan souls on glory bent; safe glory. But here was a Bus of wood, and Edward going bodily away inside it.

The victim kissed them, threw up his portmanteau and bag, and departed serve as Italian skies. The victors watched the pittless Bus quite out of sight; then went up to his bedroom, all disordered by packing, and, on the very face of it, vacant; and sat down on his little bed intertwining and weeping. The ladies had their way; the cases were made twining and weeping.

Edward was received at Exeter College, as

twining and weeping.

Relward was received at Excter College, as young gentlemen are received at college; and nowhere else; I hope, for the credit of Christendom. They showed him a hole in the roof, and called it an "Attie;" grim pleasantry! being a paneture in the modern Athens. They inserted him; told him what bour at the top of the morning he must be in chapel; and left him to find out his other ills. His cases were welcomed like Christians, by the whole staircase. These undergraduates abused one another's creckery as their own: the joint stock of breakables had just dwindled very low, and Mis. Dodd's bountiful contribution was a godsend.

The new-comer soon found that his views of a learned university had been narrow. Out of place in it? why, he could not have taken his wares to a better market; the modern Athens, like the ancient, cultivates muscle as well as mind. The captain of the university eleven saw a cricket-hall thrown all across the ground; he instantly sent a professional bowler to find out who that was; through the same embassador the thrower was invited to play on club days; and proving himself an infallible catch and long stop, a mighty thrower, a swift runner, and a steady, though not very brilliant, that, he was, after one or two repulses, actually adopted into the university eleven. He communicated this ray of glory by letter to his mother and sister with genuine delight, coldly and clumsily expressed; they replied with feigned and filment rapture. Advancing steadily in that line of academic study, toward which his genite lay, he was a hord or a hurdle voward which his genite lay, he was a hord or a hurdle voward which his genite lay, he was a factor or a further his wards and filment rapture. replied while legical and mean raphine. And vancing steadily in that line of academic study toward which his genius lay, he won a hurdle race, and sent home a little silver hurdle; and race, and sent home a little silver hurdle; and soon after brought a powter pot, with a Latin inscription, recording the victory at "Fives" of Edward Dodd; but not too arrogantly; for in the centre of the pot was this device, "Eye Bord is my Illumination."

The Cuntae of Sandford, who pulled number six in the Exeter boat, left Sandford for Winey: on this he felt he could no longer do his college justice by water, and his parish by land, nor escape the charge of pluralism, preaching at Witney, and rowing at Oxford. He fluctuated, sighed, kept his Witney, and laid down his oar. Then, Edward was solemnly weighed in his Jersey and flannel trowsers by the crew, and proving only cleven stone eight, whereas he had been ungenerously suspected of twelve stone, was elected to the vacant car by acclamation. He was a picture in a boat; and oh!!! well pulled, six!!! was a hearty ejaculation constantly hurled at him from the bank by many men of other colleges, and even by the more genial among the cads, as the Exeter glided at ease down the river, or shot up it in a race.

cads, as the Exeter glided at ease down the river, or shot up it in a race.

He was now as much talked of in the University as any man of his College, except one. Singularly enough that one was his townsman; but no friend of his: he was much Edward's senior in standing, though not in age; and this is a barrier the junior must not step over—without direct encouragement—at Oxford. Moreover the college was a large one, and some of "the sets" very exclusive; young Hardie was Dogo of a studious clique; and careful to make it understood that he was a reading man who boated and cricketed, to avoid the fatigue of lonnging; not a boatman or cricketer who strayed lounging: not a boatman or cricketer who straved Doge of a studious clique; and careful to make it understood that he was a reading man who boated and cricketed, to avoid the fatigue of lounging; not a boatman or cricketer who strayed into Aristotle in the intervals of Perspiration. His public running since he left Harrow was as follows; the prize poem in his fourth term; the sculls in his sixth; the Ireland scholarship in his eighth (he pulled second for it the year before); Stroke of the Exeter in his tenth; and reckened sure of a first class, to consummate his two-fold career.

To this young Apollo, crowned with variegated larrel, Edward looked up from a distance. The brilliant creature never hestowed a word on him by land; and by water only such observations as the following; "Time, Six!" "Well pulled, Six!" "Except, by-the-by, in one race; when he swore at him like a trooper for not being quicker at starting. The excitement of nearly being bumped by Brazenose in the first hundred yards was an excuse; however, Hardie apologized as they were dressing in the barge after the race: but the apology was so stiff, it did not pave the way to an acquaintance. Young Hardie, rising twenty-one, thought nothing human worthy of reverence but Intellect, Invited to dinner, on the same day, with the Emporer of Russia, and with Voltaire, and with meck St. John, he would certainly have told the coachman to put him down at Voltaire.

His quick eye detected Edward's character; but was not attracted by it: says he to one of his adherents "what a good-natured spoon that Dodd is! Pheebus, what a name!" Edward, on the other hand, praise ked through his own set, to reinvigorate mankind. This roused Julia's ire. It smouldered through three letters: but burst out when there was no letter, but Mrs. Dodd si! Pheebus, what a name!" Edward, on the other hand, praise ked through his own set, to reinvigorate mankind. This roused Julia's ire. It smouldered through three letters: but burst out when there was no letter, but Mrs. Dodd si! Pheebus, what a name!" Edward, on the other hand, prai and let Jane beat me at Things? never! never!

THE PROFESSIONAL BOWLER WELCOMING THE NEW-COMER

and let Jane beat me at Things? never! never! I couldn't."

"Your friend to the death, dear; was not that your expression?"

"Oh, that was a slip of the tongue, dear mamma; I was off my guard. I generally am, bytheway. But now I am on it, and propose an annendment. Now I second it. Now I carry it."

"And now let me hear it."

"She is my friend till death—or Eclipse; and that means until she cellipses me, of course." But that means until she colipses me, of course." But Julia added sofily, and with sudden gravity; "Ah! Jane Hardie has a fault, which will always prevent her from eclipsing your humble servant in this wicked world."

n this wicked world."

"What is that?"

"She is too good. Much."

"Par exemple!"

"Too religious."

"Oh, that is another matter."

"For shame, mamme! I am glad to hear: for, I scorn a life of frivolity, but then again should not like to give up every thing, you now."

Mrs. Dodd looked a little staggered, too, at so vast a scheme or capitulation. But "every thing" was soon explained to mean balls, con-certs, dinner-parties in general, tea-parties with-out exposition of Serripture, races and operas, cards, charades, and whatever else amuses socieards, entrinues, and winderer cise amoses society without perceptibly sanctifying it. All these, by Julia's account, Miss Hardie had renounced, and was now denouncing (with the young the latter verb treads on the very heels of the former). "And, you know, she is a district visited!"

latter verb treads on the very heels of the former). "And, you know, she is a district visitor!"
This climax delivered, Julia stopped short,
and awaited the result.
Mrs. Dodd heard it all with quiet disapproval and cool incredulity. She had seen so many young ladies healed of so many young enthusiasms, by a wedding-ring. But while she was searching diligently in her mine of ladylike Enplish—mine with plenty of water in it, begripue glish-mine with plenty of water in it, begging her pardon—for expressions to convey inoffensively, and roundabout, her conviction that Miss Hardie was a little, furious, simpleton, the post came, and swept the subject away in a moment. Two letters; one from Calcutta, one from Oxford.

Oxford.

They came quietly in upon one salver, and were opened and read with pleasurable interest, but without surprise, or misgiving; and without the slightest foretaste of their grave and singular consequences.

Rivers deep and broad start from such little

David's letter was of unusual length for him. The main topies were, first, the date and manner of his return home. His ship, a very old one, had been condemned in port; and he was to sail a fine new teak-built vessel, the Apra, as far as the Cape; where her captain, just recovered from a severe illness, would come on board, and convey her and him to England. In future, Dodd was to command one of the company's large steamers to Alexandria and back.

"It is rather a come-down for a sailor, to go straight ahead like a wheel-barrow, in all weathers, with a steam-pot and a crew of coal-heavers. But then I shall not be parted from my sweetheart such long dreary spells as I have been this twenty years, my dear love: so is it for me to complain?"

The second tople was pecuniary; the transfer David's letter was of unusual length for him complain?"

The second topic was pecuniary: the transfer of their savings from India, where interest was higher than at home, but the capital not so se-

And the third was ardent and tender expres sions of affection for the wife and children he adored. These effusions of the heart had no separate place, except in my somewhat arbitrary analysis of the honest sailor's letter; they were e under-current. Mrs. Dodd read part of it out to Julia; in fact

Mrs. Dodd read part of it out to Julia; in fact all but the money-matter: that concerned the heads of the family more immediately; and Cash was a topic her daughter did not understand, nor care about. And when Mrs. Dodd had read it with glistening eyes, she kissed it tenderly, and read it all over again to herself, and then put it into her bosom as naïvely as a milkmaid in love.

Edward's letter was short enough, and Mrs. Dodd allowed Julia to read it to her, which she did with panting breath, and glowing cheeks, and a running fire of comments.

""Dear Mamma, I hope you and Ju are quite well—"

well-

'Ju," murmured Mrs. Dodd, plaintively.

"Ju," murmured Mrs. Dodd, plaintively.

"'And that there is good news about papa coming home. As for me, I have plenty on my hands just now; all this term I have been' ('training' scratched out, and another word put in: e r—oh, I know) 'cramming.'

"Cramming, love?"

"Yes, that is the Oxfordish for studying."

"Tes, that is the Oxfordish for studying."

"Is, who understood her every accent, reminded her that "smalls" was the new word for "little go."

""—Cramming for smalls; and now I am in two races at Henley, and that rather puts the snaffle on reading and gooseberry pic' (Goodness me). 'and adds to my chance of being plowed for smalls.'"

"What does it all mean?" inquired mamme; "What does it all mean?" inquired mamme;

r smalls.'"
"What does it all mean?" inquired mamma
'gooseberrie pie?' and 'the snaffle?' and owed?""

'Well, the gooseberry pie is really too deep me: but plowed is the new Oxfordish for for me: but plowed is the new Oxfordish for plucked. O mamma, have you forgotten that? Plucked was vulgar, so now they are plowed. "'--For smalls; but I hope I shall not be, to vex you and puss.'"

"Heaven forbid he should be so disgraced!
But what has the cat to do with it?"

"Nothing on earth. Puss? that is me. How dare he? Did I not forbid all these nicknames, and all this Oxfordish, by proclamation, last Long."

"Last Long?"

"Hem! last protracted vacation.
"'Hem! last protracted vacation.
"'—Dear mamma, sometimes I can not help being down in the mouth' (why it is a string of pearls) 'to think you have not got a son like Hardie.'"

Hardic."

At this unfortunate reflection it was Julia's turn to suffer. She deposited the letter in her lap, and fired up. "Now, have not I cause to hate, and scorn, I nd despise, le petit Hardie?"

"Julia!"

"I mean to dislike with propriety, and gently

"Julia!"
"I mean to dislike with propriety, and gently to abominate Mr. Hardie, junior.
"'—Dear mamma, do come to Henley on the tenth, you and Ju. The university eights will not be there, but the best boats of the Oxford and Cambridge river will; and the Oxford head boat is Exeter, you know; and I pull six!
"Then I am truly sorry to hear it; my poor child will overtask his strength; and how unfair of the other young gentlemen; it seems ungenerous; unreasonable."
"'And I am entered for the sculls as well, and if you and "the Impetuosity"' (Vengeance!) 'were looking on from the bank, I do think I should be lucky this time. Henley is a long way from Barkington, but it is a pretty place; all the ladies admire it, and like to see both the universities out and a stunning race—"""
"Oh, well, there is an epithet. One would think thunder was going to race lightning, instead of Oxford Cambridge.
""—If you can come, please write, and I will get you nice lodgings; I will not let you go to a noisy inn. Love to Julia and no end of kisses to my." "From your affectionate Son, ""From your affectionate Son, ""Enward Dodd."

They wrote off a cordial assent, and reached

They wrote off a cordial assent, and reached Henley in time to see the dullest town in Europe; and also to see it turn one of the gayest in an hour or two; so impetuously came both the universities pouring into it—in all known vehicles that could go their pace—by land and water.

CHAPTER I

CHAPTER I.

Ir was a bright hot day in June. Mrs. Dodd and Julia sat half reclining, with their parasols up, in an open carriage, by the brink of the Thames at one of its loveliest bends.

About a furlong up stream a silvery stone bridge, just mellowed by time, spanned the river with many fair arches. Through these the coming river peeped spackling a long way above, then came meandering and shining down, loitered cool and sombre under the dark vaults, then glistening on again crookedly to the spot where act its two fairest visitors that day; but at that very pount flung off its serpentine habits, and shot straight away in a broad stream of scintillating water a mile long, down to an island in midstream; a little fairy island with old trees and a white temple. To curl round this fairy isle the broad current parted, and both silver streams turned purple in the shade of the grove; then winded and melted from the sight.

This noble and rare passage of the silvery a wine temple. To curr rount this say is the broad current parted, and both silver streams turned purple in the shade of the grove; then winded and melted from the sight.

This noble and rare passage of the silvery Thames was the Henley race-course. The starting-place was down at the island, and the goal was up at a point in the river below the bridge, but above the bend where Mrs. Dodd and Julia sat, unurelified by the racing, and enjoying Inxariously the glorious stream, the mellow bridge crowded with carriages—whose fair occupants stretched a broad band of bright color above the dark figures clustering on the battlements—and the green meadows opposite with the motley crowd streaming up and down.

Nor was that sense, which seems especially keen and delicate in women, left unregaled in the general bounty of the time. The green meadows on the opposite bank, and the gardens at the back of our fair friends, flung their sweet fresh odors at their liquid benefactor gliding by; and the sur himself seemed to burn perfumes, and the air to scatter them, over the motley merry crowd, that bright, hot, smiling, airy day in June.

Thus tuned to gentle enjoyment, the fair mother and her lovely daughter leaned back in a delicious languor proper to their sex, and eyed with unflagging, though denure, interest, and furrive curiosity, the wealth of youth, beauty, stature, agility, gayety, and good temper, the two great universities had poured out upon those obscure banks; all dressed in neat but casyfitting clothes, cut in the height of the fashion, or else in Jerseys, white or striped, and finanel trowsers, and straw-hats, or cloth caps of bright and various hnes; betting, strolling, laughing, chaffing, larking, and whirling stunted bludgeons at Annt Sally.

The Racing, my ladies did not understand it, nor try, nor care a hook-and-eye about it. But this mild dignified indifference to the main event roceived a shock at two r.m.: for then the first heat for the eup came on, and Edward was in it. So then racing became all in a mom

So then racing became all in a moment a most interesting pastime; an appendage to Loving, He left them to join his crew. And, soon after, the Excter glided down the river before their eyes, with the beloved one rowing quietly in it: his Jersey revealed not only the working power of his arms, as sunburnt below the elbow as a gipsy's, and as corded above as a blacksmith's, but also the play of the great muscles across his broad and deeply-indented chest: his care entered the water smoothly, gripped it severely, then came out clean, and feathered clear and trunbly on the ringing row-lock, the boat jumped, and then glided, at each neat, easy, powerful stroke.

"Oh, how beautiful and strong he is," cried Julia. "I had no idea."

Presently the competitor for this heat came down, the Cambridge boat, rowed by a fine crew in broad striped Jerseys. "Oh dear!" said Julia, "they are odious and strong in this boat too. I wish I was in it—with a gimlet; he should win, poor boy."

Which cork-screw staircase to Honor being inaccessible, the race had to be decided by two unferminine trifles called "Speed" and "Bottom."

Few things in this vale of tears are more worthy a pen of fire than an English beat-race is, as seen by the runners; and none clse have ever seen one, or can paint one. But I, unhappy, have nothing to do with this race, except as it appeared to two ladies seated on the Henley side of the Thames, nearly opposite the winning-post. These fair novices then looked all down the river, and could just discern two whitish streaks on the water, one on each side the little fairy isle; and a great black patch was about a hundred Cambridge and Oxford men, ready to run and hallo with the beats all the way, or at least till the last puff of wind should be run plus halloed out of their young bodies. Others less fleet and enduring, but equally clamorous, stood in knots at various distances, ripe for a shorter yell and run when the boats should come up to them. Of the natives and country visitors, those, who were not nailed down by bountcous Fate, ebbed and flowed up and down the bank with no settled idea, but of getting knocked into the Thames as little as might be. There was a long uneasy suspense.

At last a puff of smoke issued from a pistol down at the island; two oars seemed to splash into the water from each white streak; and the black patch was moving; so were the threatening streaks. Presently was heard af aint, continuous, distant murmur, and the estreaks began to get larger, and larger, and larger; and the eight splashing oars looked four instead of two.

Every head was now turned down the vier. Groups hung craning over it like nodding bul-

Every head was now turned down the river. Groups hung craning over it like nodding bulsnes. Next the runners were swelled by the strag-

Every head was now turned down the river. Groups hung craning over it like nodding bulrushes.

Next the runners were swelled by the stragglers they picked up; so were their voices; and on came the splashing oars and roaring lungs.

Now the colors of the racing Jerseys peeped distinct. The oarsmen's heads and hodies came swinging back like one, and the oars seemed to lash the water savagely, like a connected row of swords, and the spray squirted at each vicious stroke. The boats leaped and darted side by side, and, looking at them in front, nobody could say which was ahead. On they came nearer and nearer, with hundreds of voices voeiferating. "Go it Cambridge!" "Well pulled Oxford!" "You are gaining, hurrah!" "Well pulled Trinity!" "Hurrah!" "Oxford!" "Cambridge!" "Now is your time, Hardie, pick her up!" "Ob, weil pulled, six!" "Well pulled, Trivity!" "Up, up! lith her a bit!" "Cambridge!" "Oxford!" "Hurrah!"

At this Julia turned red and pale by turns. "Oh, mamma!" said she, clasping her handand coloring high, "would it be very wrong if I was to proay for Oxford to win?"

Mrs. Dodd had a monitory finger; it was on her left hand; she raised it; and, that moment, as if she had given a signal, the boats, foreshortened no longer, shot out to treble the length they had looked hitherto, and came broadside past our papitating fair, the elastic rowers stretched like greyhounds in a chase, darting forward at each stroke so boldly, they seemed flying out of the boats, and surging back as superbly, an eightfold human wave: their nostrils all open, the lips of some pale and glutinous; their white teeth all clenched grimly, their young eyes all glowing, their supple bodies swelling, the museles writting beneath their Jerseys, and the sinews starting on each bare brown arm; their little strill coxswains shouting imperiously at the young giants, and working to and fro with them, like jockeys at a finish; nine souls and bodies flung whole into each magnificent effort; water foaming and flying, row-locks ringging, crowd running

THE ARMY OF THE CUMBER-LAND.

WE are indebted to an occasional correspond-ent, Mr. Barrows, of the Ninety-third Ohio, for the three pictures of the Army of the Cumberland, which we publish on page 213. Mr. Barrows rites : " General M'Dowell M'Cook's head-quarters are "General M'Dowell M'Cook's head-quartors are situated 2½ miles south of Murfreesbore, a short distance from the Shelbyville turnpike. He occu-pies the mansion in which, a few mouths since, the owner, Mr. John Childress, resided. It is a com-motious and tasteful building of the better class of Southern homes, such as in this part of Tennes-see are few and far between. It is built of the superior brick which the soil of this region affords. Mr. Childress, though a wealthy and influential man, never took wery prominent part in the rebellion, but he quietly acted and sympathized with the leaders of the Southern movement. Ho remained in quiet possession of his property during the roign of General Buell, and did not find it necessary to withdraw. But when the tide of war turned against the rebels again at Murfreesboro he gathered together hi: movable household property, including some thirty slaves, and fied in company with Bragg's retreating hosts, leaving his beautiful home to the tender mercies of the "Lincolnites." The trestle-work, represented in sketch No. 2,

The trestle-work, represented in sketch No. 2, and the stockade defending it, were built by General Mitchel. The former is now used as a foot-eral microes. The former is now used as a root-bridge—simply as the cars do not at present run farther south than Murfreesboro.

In the view of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad, "looking south," the hill on the right is just beyond our picket-lines.

OUR ARMY IN THE SOUTHWEST.

Wx devote pages 209 and 212 to illustrations of our Army in the Southwest, from sketches by our special artist, Mr. Theodore R. Davis. On page 299 we publish an illustration representing the CUTTING AWAY THE HEAD OF THE CANAL.

CUTTING AWAY THE HEAD OF THE CANAL.

The "much meachine" Sampson is seen hard at work digging into the dam on the upper side. Its lunge iron scoop is ever in motion scooping away the earth, and demolishing the barrier which now keeps the Mississippi waters out of the bed of the canal. Since this picture was drawn the "Pather of Waters" himself has taken a hand in the game.

This scene is depicted on page 209, under the title of

BREAK IN THE LEVEE.

DEBLAK IN THE LEYEE.

Owing to heavy rains and the rapid rise of the Mississippi above and opposite Vicksburg, the head of the canal gave way, and the water poured in at a tremendous rate. The force of the current, however, did not break the dam near the mouth of the canal, but caused a crevasse on the western side, through which the water flowed in such profusion as to inundate the lower part of the peniusula to the depth of four or five feet. When the fracture occurred a number of soldiers were on the leves, and were thrown into the torrent. Some swam and scrambled out; but several of them would have been drowned but for the heroic exertions of John C. Keller, one of the officers of the transport Swallow, who succeeded at great personal risk in placing them once more upon terra firms, much wetter if not wiser men.

The Times correspondent writes:

wetter if not wiser men.

The Times correspondent writes:
Night before last the dam at this end of the caust gave way under a pressure of ten feet of Misiksippi, and in a few minutes thereafter there was a torront rearise additional and the second of the control of the contro

The Tribune correspondent, writing two days att-

The Tribune correspondent, writing invoices a covered a says in covered as the case, as I mere thought go of the dam of the case, as I mere thought my late theore in which the case the covered as the covered as the covered as the case of the penning. On this second in Mere lower part of the penning. On this second in Mere lower part of the penning to the case of the case of the penning of the ken's Bend, 10 mines above, where our process with the command has as yet made only a beginning or the bend with the country brendout say the bed above the canal will not be fooded, though the portion tere low the city, in the direction of Vicksburg, is already for feets under water. The dam at or near the mouth of Vicksburg, is already for the under the command of the command o

On page 212 we illustrate

WARRENTON FROM OUR BATTERIES.
Mr. Davis writes: "The little town of Warrenen, ten miles below Vicksburg, is the farthest joint up the river the rebel boats care to come at point up the river the rebel boats care to come at this time. It was near this place that the fight between the Indianola and the rams of the relest occurred. In my sketch I give near the town the rams Queen of the West and Grand Duke. It will be seen by the sketch how easily the level is con-verted into an 'earth-work' for the reception of bat-twice."

The sketch by our special artist of

SUNSET AT THE MOUTH OF THE YAZOO gives a representation of the Union gun-boats un-der Admiral Porter, guarding the river and wair-ing for the signals from the fleet that has gone through the Yazoo Pass below Helena, to begin a simultaneous attack upon Haines's Bluff, some twenty miles from the disemboguement of the twenty miles from the disemboguement of the stream.

The Yazoo is a peculiar, dreary, unwholesome stream, its pale-green, sickly-looking waters having their origin in swamps, and being so fatal to health that it is well named, as its origin implies, in the aboriginal tongue, the "River of Death."

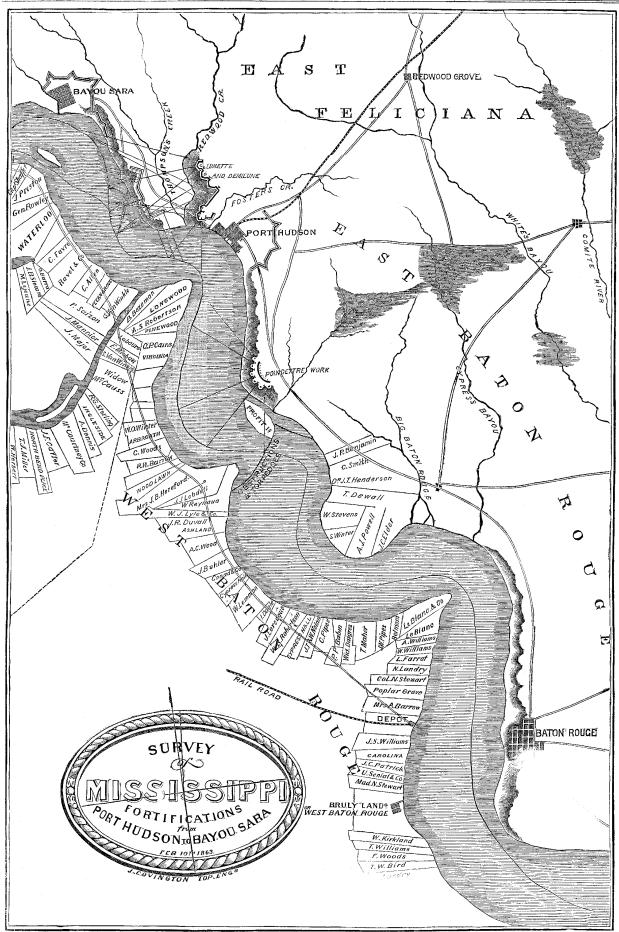

The sunset scenes down the Mississippi, in spite of the dreariness of the landscape, are often splendil—gorzeous in light and shadow and variegated tints. They remind one of the sky-glances he has witnessed in Tuscany and along the Mediterrnean, and which enter into his memory like a flash of imagination into an inspired soul.

A WEDDING IN THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.—Drawy by Mr. A. R. Watd.—[See Page 219.]

A NIGHT SCOUT IN THE SOUTHWEST-SURPRISE OF AN OUTPOST, AND SURVEY OF THE REBEL GUNS.

MAP OF THE COURSE OF THE MISSISSIPPI FROM BAYOU SARA TO BATON ROUGE.

A DARK NIGHT'S WORK.

By the Author of "Mary Barton," etc.

Frinted from the Manuscript and early Proof-sheets purchased by the Proprietors of "Harper's Weekly."

CHAPTER XVI .- (Contin

Suddenty there was a shock and stound all over the vessel, her progress was stopped, and a rocking vibration was felt every where. The quarter-deck was filled with blasts of steam, which obscured every thing. Sick people came rashing up out of their berths in strange up. rushing up out of their berths in strange undress; the sterage passengers—a motley and picturesque set of people, in many varieties of gay ossume—rook refuge on the quarter-deck, speaking loudly in all varieties of French and Italian patois. Ellinor stood up in silent wondering dismay. Was the Santa Lucia going down on the great deep, and Dixon unaided in his peril? Dr. Livingstone was by her side in a moment. She could scarcely see him for the vapor, nor hear him for the roar of the escaping steam.

steam.
"Do not be unnecessarily frightened," he repeated, a little londer. "Some accident has occurred to the engines. I will go and make instant inquiry, and come back to you as soon as I can. Trust to mo."
He came back to where she sat trembling.

He came back to where she sat trembling.

"A part of the engine is broken, through the carelessness of these Neapolitan engineers; they say we must make for the nearest port—return to Civita, in fact."

"But Elba is not many miles away," said Ellinor; "if this steam were but away you could see it still."

"And if we were landed there we might stay "And if we were landed there we might stay."

see it still."

"And if we were landed there we might stay on the island for many days; no steamer touches there; but if we return to Civita we shall be in time for the Sunday boat."

"Oh, dear, dear!" said Ellinor. "To-day is the second—Sunday will be the fourth—the assizes begin on the seventh; how miserably unfortunate!"

is the second—Sunday will be the fourth—the assizes begin on the seventh; how miserably unfortunate?"

"Yes," he said, "it is. And these things always appear so doubly unfortunate when they hinder our serving others. But it does not follow that because the assizes begin at Hellingford on the seventh that Dixon's trial will come on so soon. We may still get to Marseilles on Monday evening, on by diligence to Lyons; it will, it must, flear, be Thursday, at the earliest, before we reach Paris—Thursday, the cighth—and I suppose you know of some exculpatory evidence that has to be hunted up?"

He added this unwillingly; for he saw that Ellinor was jealous of the secrecy she had hitherto maintained as to her reasons for believing Dixon innocent; but he could not help thinking that she, a gentle, timid woman, unaccustomed to action or business, would require some of the assistance which he would have been so thankful to give her; especially as this untoward accident would increase the press of time in which what was to be done would have to be done.

But no. Ellinor scarcely replied to his half-inquiry as to her reasons for hastening to England. She yielded to all his directions, agreed to his plans, but gave him none of her confidence, and he had to submit to this exclusion from sympathy in the exact causes of her anxiety.

Once more in the dreary sala, with the gaudy painted ceiling, the bare, dirty floor, the innumerable rattling doors and windows: Ellinor was submissive and patient in demeancy, because so sick and despairing at heart. Her maid was ten times as demonstrative of annoyance and disgust; she who had no particular reason for wanting to reach England, but who thought it ten times as demonstrative of annoyance and disgnst; she who had no particular reason for wanting to reach England, but who thought it became her dignity to make as though she had. At length the weary time was over, and again they sailed past Elba and neared Marseilles. Now Ellinor began to feel how much assistance it was to her to have Dr. Livingstone for a "courier," as he had several times called himself.

it was to her to have Dr. Livingstone for a "courier," as he had several times called himself.

He secured the earliest places in the diligence while Ellinor and the maid were only struggling through the donane, along with most of their fellow-passengers; he provided that a comfortable meal should be ready for them before starting; and placed them in the coupé, which he had secured for the long day-and-night journey, himself retiring to the "interieur." All through the traveling across France he occupied another compartment or another carriage to that in which Ellinor was placed; but he was always at their window if there was any stoppage, to learn their wishes and wants. The waters of the Rhone were out, and flooded the country through which the diligence had to pass, and caused a delay of two days. Ellinor seemed as one stapefied with repeated disappointments. At Paris he brought Ellinor a Golignami of two days old. He could not help looking over her shoulder as she searched its columns for some of the intelligence she craved. There was nothing to be learned from them; a bare announcement of Dixon's approaching trial for a murder committed sixteen years ago was all that was to be seen. Ellinor laid down the paper, and sighed.

"We shall be in England to-morrow," said he, with quick sympathy. "We can be in Hellingford the morning after to-morrow."

"Thank you; you are very good. But after I am in Eugland I must go on alone. You must not think me ungrateful," continued she, with a faint effort at a smile on her pale face. "Some time I will tell you how glad I am you have come with me. I could not have done without the have done without my help on the journey, and yet you see I have really been of use to you-may it not be the same now?" asked he, anx-may it not be the same now ?" asked he, anxiously.

"No," said she. "It was all plain sailing then, but now I must do all myself as well as I can; a terrible— You must trust me now to judge for myself, for I am aware of circumstances which— I can not go on talking about it, for you have been so kind to me I shall say something that I shall be sorry for afterward."

And with this he was obliged to be content. Off again, to the coast of France, across the Channel to London, as fast as steam could carry them.

them.
"Where now?" said the Canon, as they approached the London Bridge station.

"To the Great Western," said she; "Hellingford is on that line, I see. But, please, now proached the London Bridge station.

"To the Great Western," said she; "Hellingford is on that line, I see. But, please, now we must part."

"Then I may not go with you to Hellingford? At any rate you will allow me to go with you to the reliable of the station, and do my last office as courier in getting you your ticket and placing you in the carriage."

So they went together to the station, and learned that no train was leaving for Hellingford for two hours. There was nothing for it but to go to the hotel close by and pass away the time as best they could. Ellinor called for her maid's accounts, and dismissed her. Some refreshment that the Canon had ordered was eaten, and the table cleared. He began walking up and down the room, his arms folded, his eyes cast down. Every now and then he looked at the clock on the mantlepiece. When that showed that it only wanted a quarter of an hour to the time appointed for the train to start, he came up to Ellinor, who sat leaning her head upon her hand, her hand resting on the table.

"Miss Wilkins," he began—and there was something peculiar in his tone which startled Ellinor—"I am sure yon will not scruple to apply to me if in any possible way I can help you in this sad touble of yours."

"No, indeed I won't." said Ellinor, gratefully, and putting out her hand as a token. He took it and heid it; she went on a little more hastly than before: "You know you were so good as to say yon would go at once and see Miss Monro, and tell her all you know, and that I will write to her as soon as I can."

"May I not ask for one line?" he continued, still holding her hand.

"Cortainty; so kind a friend as you shall hear all I can tell—that is, all I am at liberty to tell."

"Certainly; so kind a friend as you shall hear all I can tell—that is, all I am at liberty to tell."

"A friend! Yes, I am a friend; and I will not urge any other claim just now. Perhaps—"
Ellion could not affect to misunderstand him. His manner implied even more than his words.

"No!" she said, eagerly. "We are friends. That is it. I think we shall always be friends; though I will tell you now—something—this much—it is a sad seeret. God help me! I am as guilty as poor Dixon, if, indeed, he is guilty; but he is innocent—indeed he is!"

"If he is no more guilty than you, I am sure he is! Let me be more than your friend, Ellinor—let me know all, and help you all that I can, with the right of an afflanced busband."

"No, no!" said she, frightened both at what she had revealed, and his enger, warm, imploring manner. "That can never be. You do not know the disgrace that may be hanging over me."

"If that is all," said he, "I take my risk; if that is all, if you only fear that I may shrink from sharing any peril you may be exposed to."

"It is not peril; it is shame and obloquy," she nurmured.

"Well! shame and obloquy. Perhaps, if I knew all, I could shield you from it."

"Don't, pray, speak any more about it now; if yon do, I must say "No."

She did not perceive the implied encouragement in these words; but he did, and they sufficed to make him patient. The time was up, and he could only render her his last services as courier, and none other but the necessary words at starting passed between them. But he went away from the station with a cheerful heart; while she, sitting alone and quiet, and at last approaching near to the place where so much was to be decided, felt sadder and sadder, heavier and heavier.

CHAPTER XVII.

ALL the intelligence Ellinor had gained since she had seen the Galignani in Paris had been from the waiter at the Great Western Hotel, who, aftthe waiter at the Great Western Hotel, who, affer refurning from a vain search for an unoccupied Times, had volunteered the information that there was an unusual demand for the paper because of Hellingford Assizes, and the trial there for murder that was going on.

There were no electric telegraphs in those days; at ever station Ellinor put her head out and inquire, if the murder trial at Hellingford was ended. Some porters told her one thing, some another, in their hurry: she felt that she could not rely on them.

"Drive to Mr. Johnson's, in the High Street—quick, quick. I will give you half a crown if you will go quick."

Fo, indeed, her endurance, her patience was strained almost to enapping; yet at Hellingford

For, indeed, nor endurance, ner patience was strained almost to snapping; yet at Hellingford station, where doubtless they could have told her the tru", she dared not ask the question. It was pe teight o'clock at night. In many houses in t'.o little country town there were unusual lights and sounds. The inhabitants were shownot this me ingratem, communed sue, with a faint effort at a smile on her pale face. "Some time I will tell you how glad I am you have come with me. I could not have done without your kind help, though I thought once I could. But just now I have no heart to express gratitade or any other feeling but one."

"But you say you once thought you could list of a neighboring county town.

Mr. Johnson was entertaining a dinner-party of attorneys when he was summoned from dessert by the announcement of a "lady who wanted to speak to him immediate and particular." He went into his study in not the best of tempers. There he found his client, Miss Wilkins, which was a deadly study in the fore place.

pers. There he bound his chem, hiss whather, with eard ghastly, standing by the fire-place, with her eyes fixed on the door.

"It is you, Miss Wilkins! I am very glad—"
"Dixon!" said she. It was all she could ut-

Mr. Johnson shook his head.

"Ah! that's a sad piece of business, and I'm afraid it has shortened your visit at Rome."

"Is he—?"
"Ay, I am afraid there's no doubt of his guilt. At any rate the jury found him guilty, and—"

and—"
"And!" repeated she, quickly, sitting down, the better to bear the words that she knew were coming.
"Is condemned to death!"

"Is conde

"To condemned to death!"

"When?"

"The Saturday but one after the judges left the town, I suppose—it's the usual time."

"Who tried him?"

"Judge Corbet; and for a new judge I must say I never knew one who got through his business so well. It was really as much as I could stand to hear him condemning the prisoner to death. Dixon was undoubtedly guilty, and he was as stubborn as could be—a sullen old fellow who would let no one help him through. I am sure I did my best for him, at Miss Monro's desire and for your sake. But he would furnish me with no particulars, help us to no evidence. I had the hardest work to keep him from confessing all before witnesses, who would have been bound to repeat it as evidence against him. Indeed I never thought he would have pleaded "Not Guilty." I think it was only with a desire to justify himself in the eyes of some old Hamber acquaintances. Good God, Miss Wilkins! what's the matter? You're not fainting!" He rang the bell till the rope remained in his hands. "Here, Esther! Jerry! Whoever you are, comequick! Miss Wilkins has fainted! Water! Wine! Tell Mrs. Johnson to come here directly!"

Mrs. Johnson, a kind, motherly woman, who had been excluded from the "gentleman's directly of the proper than the supplemental of the means the matter.

rectly!"
Mrs. Johnson, a kind, motherly woman, who had been excluded from the "gentleman's din-ner-party," and had devoted her time to super-intending the dinner her husband had ordered, came in answer to his call for assistance, ar found Ellinor lying back in her chair white and came in answer to his call for assistance, and found Ellinor lying back in her chair white and senseless.

"Bessy, Miss Wilkins has fainted; she has had a long journey, and is in a fidget about Dixon, the old fellow who was sentenced to be hung for that murder, you know. I can't stop here; I must go back to those men. You bring her round, and see her to bed. The blue-room is empty since Horner left. She must stop here, and I'll see her in the morning. Take care of her, and keep her mind as easy as you can, will you, for she can do no good by fidgeting."

And knowing that he left Ellinor in good hands, and with plenty of assistance about her, he returned to his friends.

Ellinor came to herself before long.

"It was very foolish of me, but I could not help it," said she, apologetically.

"No; to be sure not, dear. Here, drink this; it is some of Mr. Johnson's best port-wine that he has sent out on purpose for you. Or would you rather have some white soup—or what? We have had every thing you could think of at diuner, and you've only to ask and have. And then you must go to bed, my dear—Mr. Johnson says you must; and there's a well-aired room, for Mr. Horner only left us this morning."

"I must see Mr. Johnson again, please."

"But indeed you must not. You must not worry your poor head with business mow; and Johnson would only talk to you on business."

"I can not sleep—I can not rest till I have saked Mr. Johnson one or two more questions;

No; go to bed and sleep soundly, and then you'll get up quite bright and strong, and fit to talk about business."

"I can not sleep—I can not rest till I have asked Mr. Johnson one or two more questions; indeed I can not; pleaded Ellinor.

Mrs. Johnson knew that her busband's orders on such occasions as the present were perempitory, and that she could come in for a good conjugal scolding if, after what he had said, she ventured to send for him again. Yet Ellinor looked so entreating and wistful that she could hardly find in her heart to refuse her. A bright thought struck her.

"Here is pen and paper, my dear. Could you not write down the questions you wanted to ask? and he'll just jot down the answers upon the same piece of paper. I'll send it in by Jerry. He has got friends to dinner with him, you see."

Ellinor yielded. She sat, resting her weary head on her hand, and wondering what were the questions which would have come so readily to her tongue could she have been face to face with him. As it was she only wrote this:

"How early can I see you to-morrow morning? Will you take all the necessary steps for my going to Dixon as soon as possible? Could I be admitted to him to-night?"

The penciled answers were:

"Eight O'clock. Yes. No."

"I suppose he knows best," said Ellinor, sighing as she read the last word. "But it seems wicked in me to be going to bed, and he so near in prison."

in prison."
When she rose up and stood she felt the former dizziness return, and that reconciled her to seeking rest before she entered upon the duties which were becoming clearer before her now that she knew all, and was on the seeme of that sue knew an, and not action.

Mrs. Johnson brought her white-wine whey instead of the tea she had asked for; and perhaps it was owing to this that she slept so soundly. When she wakened the clear light of dawn was fully in the room. She could not remember where she was; for so many mornings she had wakened up in strange places that it took her several minutes before she could make out the geographical whereabouts of the heavy blue moreen curtains, the print of the lord-lieutenant of the county on the wall, and all the handsome ponderous mahogany furniture that stuffed up the room. As soon as full memory came into her mind she started up; nor did she go to bed again, although she saw by her watch on the dressing-table that it was not yet six o'clock. She dressed herself with the dainty completeness so habitual to her that it had become an unconscious habit, and them—the ino'clock. She dressed herself with the dainty completeness so habitual to her that it had become an unconscious habit, and then—the instance was irrepressible—she put on her bonnet and shawl, and went down, past the servant on her knees cleaning the door-step, out into the fresh open air; and so she found her way down the High Street to Hellingford Castle, the building in which the courts of assize were held—the prison in which bixon lay condemned to die. She almost knew she could not see him; yet it seemed like some amends to her conscience for having slept through so many hours of the night if she made the attempt. She went up to the porter's lodge, and asked the little girl sweeping out the place if she might see Abraham Dixon. The child stared at her, and ran into the house, bringing out her father, a great burly man, who had not yet donned either coat or waistoots, and who, consequently, felt the morning air as rather nipping. To him Ellinor repeated her question.

"Him as is to be hung come Saturday."

and who, consequently, selt the morning air as rather nipping. To him Ellinor repeated her question.

"Him as is to be hung come Saturday se'nnight? Why, ma'am, I've naught to do with it. You may go to the governor's house and try; but, if you'll excuse me, you'll have your walk for your pains. Them in the condemned cells is never seen by nobody without the sheriff's order. You may go up to the governor's house, and welcome; but they'll only tell you the same. Yon's the governor's house."

Ellinor fully believed the man, and yet she went on to the house indicated as if she still hoped that in her case there might be some exception to the rule, which she now remembered to have heard of before, in days when such a possible desire as to see a condemned prisoner was treated by her as a wish that some people might have, did have—people as far removed from her circle of circumstances as the inhabitants of the moon. Of course she met with the same reply, a little more abruptly given, as if every man was from his birth bound to know such an obvious regulation.

She went out past the porter, now fully elethed. He was sorry for her disappointment, but could not help saying, with a slight tone of exultation, "Well, you see I was right, ma'am!"

ultation,
"Well, you see I was right, ma'am!"

A WEDDING IN CAMP.

A WEDDING IN CAMP.

We reproduce on page 216 a picture of Mr. Wand's, representing a Marehade in the Army of the Potomac. Mr. Wand writes:

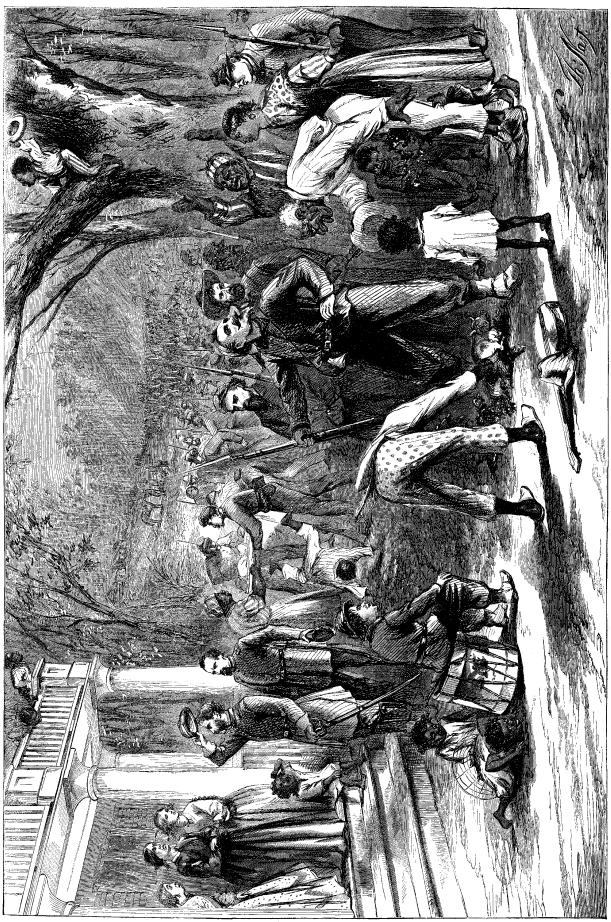

"An event to destroy the monotony of life in one of Hooker's old regiments. The camp was very prettily decorated, and being very trimly arranged among the pines, was just the eamp a visitor would like to see. A little before noon the guests began to arrive in considerable numbers. Among them were Generals Hooker, Sickles, Carr, Mott, Hobart Ward, Revere, Bartlett, Birney, Berry, Colonel Dickinson, and other aids to General Hooker; Colonels Burling, Farnham, Egan, etc. Colonel Francine and Lieutenant-Colonel Price, of the Seventh, with the rest of the officers of that regiment, proceeded to make all welcome, and then the ceremony commenced. In a hollow square formed by the troops a canopy was srected, with an alkar of drums, officers grouped on each side of this. On General Hooker's arrival the band played Hail to the Chief, and on the approach of the bridal party the Wedding March. It was rather cold, windy, and threat-ened snow, altogether tending to produce a slight pink tinge on the nesse present; but the ladies bore it with courage, and looked, to the unaccustomed eyes of the soldiers, like real angels in their light clothing. To add to the dramatic force of the scene, the rest of the brigade and other troops were drawn up in line of battle not more than a mile away to repel an expected attack from Fredericksburg. Few persons are wedded under more romantic circumstances than Nellie Lammond and Captain De Hart. He could not get leave of absence, so she came down like a brave gifl, and married him in camp. After the wedding was a dinner, a ball, fire-works, etc.; and on the whole it eelipsed entirely an opera at the Academy of Music in dramatic effect and reality."

IN DIXIE.

On page 220 we publish a picture, by Mr. Thomas ON page 220 We putons a picture, or air. Information and their reception by the ladies and negroes of the plantation. The picture explains itself. We append, however, a newspaper extract from an officer's letter in Dixie:

a newspaper extract from an omeer's feeter in Dixie:

Heavy planters live all along the road, whose bread acres extend for miles, and whose aristocratic mansions show them to be the mbobs of the soil. Long rows of neuron cabins are seen at short distances from the eldences. The soil of the soil of the eldences of the soil of the eldences. These negrees, in large numbers, men, women, and children, come and evimen the most comical and unsophisticated manifestations of delight at our appearance. The older ones bow, and grin, and serage, and throw themselves into all sorts of the most indicross attitudes. The younger ones done and frisk about in high glee. "Gerninghty bless you, genmen—may you live allers?" exclusive the second of the soil of t

ARRIVAL OF A FEDERAL COLUMN AT A PLANTER'S HOUSE IN DIXIE.—[See Page 219.]

BRIGADIER-GENERAL ROBERT B. MITCHELL, COMMANDING AT NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

GENERAL ROBERT B. MITCHELL, whose portrait we give on this page, is a native of Richland County, Ohio. At the age of nineteen he went to the Mexican war, a private in the Company of the present General George W. Morgan. He served twenty-seven months and reached the rank of First Lieutenant. After his return he completed his law studies with "Miller and Morgan," in Mount Vernon. During his practice in the adjoining counties

BRIGADIER-GENERAL ROBERT

B. MITCHELL.

GENERAL ROBERT B. MITCHELL, whose portrait we give on this page, is a native of Richland Compty, this, old, limit to Kansas. His home is Mansfeld, Jinn County. In 1857 and 1858 he represented eneral George W. Morgan. He served the present General George W. Morgan. He served twenty-seven months and reached the rank of First Lieutenant. After his return he completed his law studies with 'Miller and Morgan,' in Mount Vernon. During his practice in the adjoining counties

BRIGADIER-GENERAL, LEONARD F. ROSS, COMMANDING YAZOO EXPEDITION.—[SEE NEXT PAGE.]

Ied his regiment in the battle of Wilson's Creek, [ led his regiment in the battle of Wilson's Creek, where he received four wounds, one of which proved almost fatal. His regiment here earned the title of the "Bloody Second."

As a compliment to him and his regiment, General Cameron ordered it to be mounted at a time when he was dismounting cavalry. For services at Wilson's Creek Colonel Mitchell was made a Brigadier. He was assigned to command the expedition to New Mexico, which, after the battle of Shiloh, had to be abandoned. He then embarked with a brigade from Leavenworth to reinforce Gen eral Halleck. Much of the time that he has been with Generals Halleck, Rosecrans, and Buell he has been commanding a division. He has been in many small engagements. He took an active and distinguished part in the battle of Perryville as commander of a division. He met John Morgan with his division at Lancaster, Kentacky, and drove him out after a severe engagement.

When General Mitchell was placed in command of Nashville. The post, in labor and responsibility, is almost equal to a Department. General Mitchell is understood to have performed the varied and delicate duties of his position with so much diplomatic and military skill as to have elicited from General Roscerans the highest praise and a most urgent recommendation of his promotion. The miration of his prompt and rigid method of dealing with the rebels.

221

SALE OF CONFISCATED BLOOD-HORSES AT NEW ORLEANS.—From a Sertice by Mr. Hamilton.—[See next Page.]

GENERAL LEONARD F. ROSS.

WE publish on page 221 a portrait of GENERAL LEGNARD F. Ross, the commander of the Yazoo River Expedition, and append the following sketch of his life from the Herald:

LEONARD F. Koss, the commander of the 1azoo River Expedition, and append the following sketch of his life from the Herald:

Brigadler-General Leonard F. Ress, the military commander of the Yazoo River Expedition, is a native of Illinois, in which State he was born in the year 1852. He is, therefore, about forty years of age. He was a First Lieutenate of the Fourth Illinois Volunteers during the Mochand of the Fourth Illinois Volunteers, thering the Mochand of the Fourth Illinois Volunteers, the Lieutenate of the Fourth Illinois Volunteers, the term of that regiment's service, which lasted from July, 1846, to May, 1847. At the commencement of the present rebellion he resided at Lewiszon, Fulton County; and when the call was made for takes years' volunteers, he liboid Volunteers, and was chosen the Colonel of the same, with a commission dating from May 20, 1861. The regiment was stationed at Peoria, Illinois, until the middle of June, 1861, when it was sent to Allon, on the Mississpil River. It partisented several points in Missouri successiva-Ross was placed in command of the post at Cape Girardeau. It was about this time that General Grant prepared for his advance into Kenthedy. In the following January Ross's command garrisoned Fort Holt, Kentucky, and formed partised in the battle of Shitoh, where Colonal Ross gained south of the People of Colonal Colonal Colonal Professional Colonal Colonal Ross and Colonal Colonal Colonal Ross and Colonal Colonal Colonal Colonal Ross gained and the Colonal Ross favored to the Ross of Colonal Colonal Colonal Ross and Colonal Colonal Ross and Colonal Ross and

SALE OF CONFISCATED BLOOD-HORSES AT NEW ORLEANS.

On page 221 we present a very interesting sketch, by our New Orleans correspondent, of a seene that occurred there on the 3d March. I two on the occasion of the forced sale, by auction, of a large stock of blood-horses, once the property of Messra. Kenner and Minor, now in rebellion against the Union. The seizure and confiscation of these horses was by an order issued by Major-General Butler, and afterward confirmed by Major-General

Butler, and afterward confirmed by Major-Generul Banks.

Messrs. Kenner and Minor were long celebrated for possessing some of the very finest blood-borses in the country. Many exhibited on this occasion were splendid animals, tracing back their pedigree through long generations, and with the blood of Lexington and other famous chargers coursing in their veins. It was painful to see horses worth two or three thousand dollars selling for only a few hundreds. The principal purchasers seemed to be agents for people in the North, and many a splendid bargain was made on this occasion.

The sale took place at the open space near French's stables, on Philippa Street. When the crowd assembled, largely sprinkled with gayly dressed officers, and the noble-looking animals were brought out one after another, to exhibit their action during the bidding, the seene was one well worthy of the pencil of a Rosa Bonheur.

IN HOSPITAL

"YEs, there's no use denying that we had rather a stormy time of it."

And Captain Ferdinand Lawrence stroked his mustache, and complacently handled the semblard of his sword, as he spoke, with the air of a hero who has no objection to being properly appreciated.

ated.

Grace Bryan had listened to the whole of his Grace Bryan had listened to the whole of his circumstantial description with blue, dilated eyes fixed on his, curved lips, half apart, and a check where the color varied, as you have seen sun and shadow chase one another over slopes of blossoming grass. No wonder that the doughty Captain felt inwardly elated at the success of his eloquence. Had he at last struck the responsive key-note to this pale young beauty's nature? Was his long servitude of love at last to meet its exceeding great reward?

servitude of love at last to meet its exceeding great reward?

Oh, Captain Lawrence, Captain Lawrence I could you but have seen into the hidden mysteries of Grace Bryan's thoughts, what a crash there would be among the dazzling colonnades and airy petiments of your grand Chateau on Expanel? But love is blind, and so, unfortunately, is self-esteem. "Captain Lawrence," said Grace, with her little hands nervously interlocked, and her serious eyes never moving from his face, "was there not a private in your company called John Harral?" Captain Lawrence gave a groke, involuntary start, but recovered himself immediately, though with a heightened color on his oark cheek: "Harral—Harral; yes, I believe there was." "And can you tell me what has become of him?" "Upon my word," said the Captain, with a little uneasy laugh that was decidedly at variance with the keen glance shooting from underneath his bent brows—"Private Harral is a lucky fellow to have inspired such an interest!"

repeated Grace, as calmly as if she had not heard the covert sneer.

"One don't keep the run of these privates," said Lawrence, carelessly; "but if Miss Grace really cares to know, why, of course, my poor services are at her disposal."

He drew out a little memorandum book, neatly bound in black morocco, and leisurely turned over

"Let me see-Gates-Hall-Hanna-oh, here it "Let me see-Gates-Hall-Hanna-oh, here it is! Harral, John-marked 'missing.' Just the sort of fellow to take particularly good care of his bones and sinews-deserted, I dare say. Oh, they will do it, Miss Grace. Hold on, though, here's another entry. Harral-killed in the action-buried on left side of creek-hum-m-m. Any thing else I can do for you, Miss Grace?" But Grace did not answer; she did not even ask to see the treacherous "minutes" which might have revealed their own irrequisitence. She at like have revealed their own inconsistency. She sat like one stunned, with hands still folded, and eyes me-chanically fastened on the winter sunshine that quiv-

one scanned, with and as Bill release, and eyes mechanically fastened on the wintersumshine that quivered along the opposite wall, while the blood slowly receded from her cheek, and the color from her lip. "Gracious Heavens, she has fainted!" ejaculated the Capatain, springing from his seat. Hallo here, somebody! Bring camphor, Cologne, any thing! Confound Private Harral!"

Are there any wounds so bitter that Time, whose gentle finger draws the mantle of velvet grass over new-made graves, and puts the chiaro-oscuro of many sunrises and sunsets between us and our griefs, can not heal them? Yes, there are some that bleed on silently, and mine life and heart away with their unseen gush—nad such a one was hidden under Grace Bryan's sad smile and heavy eyes, always luminous with the melancholy shine of unshed tears. shed tears.

shed tears.

"I assure you, Miss Grace, I consider it a very Quixotic piece of business," said Captain Lawrence, in accents of grave displeasure. "You'll do nobedy any good, and only upset your own nerves. It's all nonsense, this idea of ladies visiting the hospitals—what can a woman who has been accustomed to shrick at the sight of a spider do in the midst of such dreadful scenes? My dear Mrs. Bryan, do persuade your daughter to abandon this absurd fancy!"

Mrs. Bryan looked helplessly from her daughter to the Captain, and then back again.

to the Captain, and then back again.
"Captain Lawrence is right," she said. "Consider, my love, what suffering you will be compelled to witness."

led to witness."
"Mamma," said Grace, firmly, "is it any worse than for these brave fellows to for me to witness than for these brave fellows to endure? Oh, mamma, to think that we have been sitting at home in ease and luxury while the men who periled life and limb in our behalf lie perishing within a stone's-throw of our Maladin palaces! Let me go, for it breaks my heart to remember how selfish I have been!" Soft-natured Mrs. Bryan looked appealingly toward the Captain. He shrugged his shoulders. "Well, if Miss Bryan chooses to be so foolish, I have, of course, no right to interfere. Only—" "Don't trouble yourself to finish the sentence, Captain Lawrence," said Grace, quietly. "I need not say that I have not expected the honor of your attendance, nor do I ask for it now!" She walked out of the room with the air of a for me to witnes; than for the sendance, nor do I ask for it now!"

She walked out of the room with the air of a bung queen. Lawrence watched her with a glance which vexation and admiration were curiously in which vexation and admiration were curiously blended.

"The superb little vixen?" he muttered between his esteth. "What evil genius has put that hospital idea in where head? However, it can't make any difference; he must be dead long ago. Only I wish I could have dissuaded her, for it—Pooh!" he broke off suddenly, "there's no use bothering navaff with each car wenderly the myself with each of the wenderly the myself with each of the wenderly the myself with the wenderly the myself with each of the wenderly the myself with the wenderly the myself with the wenderly the myself with the wenderly the wenderly the wenderly the myself with the wenderly the wende myself with such an exceedingly improbable sup-position. I wonder what makes me love that girl better the more she sets me at defiance? Why position. I wonder what makes me love that girl better the more she sets me at defiance? Why can't I scorn her as she scorns me? It's a curious psychological puzzle, tho ins and outs of that throbing, passionate thing that we call a heart! By all the Powers! she shall be mine if I peril my own soul to win her."

The noonday sunshine lay brightly on the floor of the long barrack room, with its wooden ceiling, and range of narrow pallets on either side, and Grace Bryan felt a sick giddiness reeling through her brain as she saw the pale, ghastly faces outlined against pillows scarcely whiter than thenselves—the shattered arms—the mangled limbs bound down to wooden stretchers—the expressionless faces whence life and light were drifting away into the shoroless tide, side by side with muscles all racked and contorted by fierce spasms of psin! This, then, was a hospital!

"My dearest, you are fainting!"

"No, mamma, I am not," said Grace, resolutely battling with the involuntary recoil of her whole physical nature. "Let us go on. I feel quite well now."

now."

How the sunken eyes of the sick men brightened as the fair, slight figure bent above them with gentle words of pitying encouragement—what healthful remembrances of absent mother and sister love returned to them with the touch of her long, soft curl: upon their burning forcheads—the cool contact of her hand against their fevered palms! And as she passed on, strength and courage came back, and the surgeon bimself wondered at her nerve and

They had reached the last of the white beds, where an attenuated figure was supported amony pillows, with an open book before him. Not reading, however. The heavy eyelids drooped above the hollow cheeks, as if slumber had weighed them down, and there was a sort of weary repose shadowed over the sharpened features.

"He is asleep, do not distut' him!" murmured Grace, under her breath.

"No, he is not asleep," said the surgeon; "and this is one of the cases on which I most pride myself. Just gone, when he was brought here—dreadfully wounded at Fredericksburg, but he's in a fair way to recover now, thanks to our new system. Come a little nearer—he'll be glad to see you!" They had reached the last of the white heds

The heavy lashes were slowly lifted at the sound of their footsteps, disclosing dark, grave eyes full of the strange mystery that only comes to those who have stood on Death's threshold and seen the flow of the dark, dark river!

"Harral! what's the matter! Speak to me!" exclaimed the surgeon, in dire perplexity. "A glass of wine, Johnson, quick! he's swooning

Where were your eyes, good Esculapius, to imwhere were your eyes, good Escuapius, to imagine that John Harral could swoon with those fluttering fingers in his own, those blue eyes pouring tides of eager light into his uplifted heart? Your Pharmacopœia knows no such remedies as these! "I knew you would come, Grace. I knew you would not leave me all alone!" he murmured, with the passive bliss of a child who wakes from hideous dreams to find his face against his mother's bosom. For Grace Bryan had laid her cheek on his pile.

low and breathed one whisper into his ear—a whis-per that was like the pulsing of magnetic life through his veins.

"Tell me once more that you love me! Let me hear it over and over, dearest!" he said, with closed oyes. "Ah, I shall soon be well now!"

oyes. "Ah, I shall soon be well none?"
It was not until they were in the open air, safe beyond the hospital ward, that Grace Bryan fulfilled the Captain's prediction, and fainted.
"Of course; didn't I tell you it would be so?"
triumphantly exclaimed Captain Lawrence, twisting the fingers of his buckskin glove round and round. "A woman can't help fainting in such a blace."

round. "A would can be a place."
"It was not from foolish terror, nor shrinking tremors," said Grace, meeting his exultant eye with the serene glance that disarmed its fire at once,

"No; what then?"

"No; what then ?"
"From great happiness—the happiness of meeting one whom I have mourned for as dead."
"Mourned for as dead?" vaguely repeated the Captain. eam. I have seen John Harral this day."

"I have seen John Harral this day."

"Oh!" said Captain Lawrence, after a moment's blank silence, during which the ticking of his watch sounded like a thousand trip-hammers, and his face turned a dull yellow. "Indeed! Pardon me, but I've just recollected—good-morning—hope to see you again."
And so Captain Ferdinand Lawrence walked off the stage of Grace Bryan's existence.
Need we describe how Miss Grace transformed herself into nurse, physician, and consulting faculty to a hospital consisting of one patient? And how she found it an even more "interesting case" than the honest ward surgeon had done? If our readers want any more explicit details they must readers want any more explicit details they must ask Mrs, Harral,

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Davis Collamore & Co.,

479 Broadway,
Below Broome Street, N. Y., Have just received another lot of Crickens, White and Speckled, Engraved Glass, China, &c.

First Display of Spring Novelties.

1863.

F. Derby & Company, Merchant Tailors, Still continue to make up Clothing to order in their usual well-known style of excellence, from an unlimited variety of all the new materials of their own importation, at Popular Friezs. 57 Walker Street, New York.

Fine Ivory SLEEVE AND BOSOM STUDS.

FRENCH (Soltaire) PATTERNS.

All colors engraved with initial letter, Old English, &c.
Complete setts, $1 50. Free by matl

Trade Supplied.

JOHN F. PHELPS,

429 Broadway, N. Y. Artificial Legs and Arms, Selpho's Patent, 516 Broadway, N. Y., are the best substitutes for lest limbs the World of Science has ever invented. (Established 24 years.) Send for Pamphict.

Finkle & Lyon Sewing Machine Co.,

518 Broadway, N. Y. N. B. New and important improvements.

$75 FEE MONTH AND EXPENSES, OF 100 per cent, on sole. Access, Marchaver, and Pardames will find the amen investment. 30 see, useful, and carriags patented carticles. 6 samples for $1, or 14 for $2, sent to any part of the country or receipt of price.

120 Everybody should have them.

MICHARDS & CO.

onld have the RICHARDS m. & CO. 438 Broadway, N. Y.

PEADY—(OFFICIAL), THE UNITED STATES Conscription Act, or National Militia Bill, with a copious Index for reference, JAS. W. FORTUNE, Publisher, 102 Centre Street, N. Y. Price five cents.

Rheumatism-Who has It?

Mesers. MESTAM & CO.—Gents: You will plones send to my address one pair of your METALLIC INSOLES. I have used them for more than one year, and I can say truly, that they are a cure and a preventative of likeum-atism. I commend them to the public. Respectfully, EDMURUD J. FONTER. Major, U. S. A. Price $1.00; per mail $1.25. Office 429 Broadway, New York. Send for direllar.

MOUNT KISCO MILITARY AND COLLEGIATE Instant, M. Kisco, Westchester Co., N. Y., is a first-class Boarding School for young men and boys. Send for a cir-cular to A. B. WIGGIN, A.M., Prin., Fo keepsie, N. Y.

FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS!

All Articles for Soldiers at Baltimore, Washington, Hil-ton Head, Newbern, and all places occupied by Union troops, should be sent, at half rates, by HARNDEN'S EXPRESS, No. 74 Broadway. Sutlets charged low rates.

WEDDING CARDS

These Celebrated Engraved Cards sold only at J. EVERDEL.
Old Establishment, 302 Broadway, cor. Duano St., N. Y.
La Established 1840. FF For Specimen by Mail, send two stan

J. H. Winslow & Co., 100.000

WATCHES, CHAINS, &c., &c.

Worth $500.000.

To be sold for One Dollar each, without regard to value, and not to be paid for till you know what you are to get.

SPLENDID LIST!!

OF ARTICLES TO BE SOLD FOR ONE DOLLAR EACH.

| 100 Gold Hunting Cased Watches | | $100 | 00 | each. |
|--|----------|-------|----|-------|
| 100 Gold Watches | | 60 | 60 | ench. |
| 200 Ladies' Gold Watches | . | 85 | 00 | each. |
| 500 Ladies' and Gent's Silver Watch | es | 15 | 00 | each. |
| 3000 Vest and Neck Chains | 5 00 | to 10 | 00 | each. |
| 3000 Gold Band Bracelets | 5 00 | to 10 | 00 | each. |
| 8000 " " " | 3 00 | to 5 | 00 | each. |
| 3000 Cameo Brooches | 4 00 | to 6 | 00 | each. |
| 3000 Mosaic and Jet Brooches | 4 00 | to 6 | 00 | each. |
| 3000 Lava and Florentine Brooches | 4 00 | to 6 | 00 | esch. |
| 3000 Coral, Opal, and Em. Brooches. | 4.00 | to G | 60 | each. |
| 3000 Cameo Ear Drops | 4 00 | to 6 | 00 | each. |
| 3000 Mosaic and Jet Ear Drops | 4 00 | to 6 | 00 | each. |
| 3000 Lava and Florentine Ear Drops, | 4 00 | to 6 | 00 | each. |
| 3000 Coral, Em., and Opal Ear Drops | 4 00 | to 8 | 00 | each. |
| 5100 Gent's Breast Pins | 2 50 | to 8 | 00 | each. |
| 3000 Watch Keys | 2 00 | to 6 | 00 | each. |
| 5000 Fob and Ribbon Slides | 2 00 | to 6 | 00 | each. |
| 5000 Sets of Bosom Studs | 2 50 | to 6 | 00 | each. |
| 5000 Sleeve Buttons | 2 50 | to 6 | 60 | each. |
| 6000 Plain Rings | 2 50 | to 5 | 00 | each. |
| 6000 Stone Set Rings | | | 00 | each. |
| 6000 Lockets | | | 00 | each. |
| 5000 Sets Ladies' Jewelry | 5 00 | to 10 | 00 | each. |
| 10000 Gold Pens, Silver M'ted Holders | | | | |
| 10000 Gold Pens, with Silver Extension | | | | |
| Cases and Pencils | 4 00 | to 6 | 00 | each. |
| | | | | |

All Gold Pens 14 Carats and Warranted.

All of the above list of Goods will be sold for one dollar each. Certificates of all the various articles, stating what each one can have, are first put into envelopes, scaled up, and mixed; and when ordered, are taken out without re and mixed; and when ordered, are taken out without re-gard to chokes, and sent by mail, thus giving all a fair chance. On receipt of the Cortificate, you will see what you can have, and then it is at your option to send one dollar and take the article or no. In all transactions by mail, we shall charge for forwarding the Certificates, paying postage, and doing the business, 25 cents each, which must be inclosed when the Certificate is sent for. Five Certificates will be sent for $1: eleven for $2; thirty for $5; sixty-five for $10; and a eleven for $2; thirty for $5; eixty-five for $10; and a hundred for $15. Agents.—These acting as Agents will be allowed ten cents on every Certificate ordered by them, provided their remiltance amounts to one dollar. Agents will collect 25 cents for every Certificate, and remit 15 cents to us, either in each or postage stamps. Great caution should be used by our correspondents in regard to giving their correct ad-dress, Town, County, and State. Address

J. H. WINSLOW & CO.,

208 Broadway, New York.

The League of States-1774.

THE HOUSEN OF STATES—1774.

Our forefather's appeal for the Union—the most important products appeal for the Union—the most important principle for the Union—the most important principle for the Union—the Market Perfect WHITER. Over 100 different Pumphlets on the War for sale. Priced List sent on application, Publisher, C. B. RIGHARDSON, Publisher, No. 204 Canal Street, New York.

10,000 Barrels of the Lodi Manufacturing Company's POUDRETTE.

POUR ETT E.

FOR SALE BY

JAMES T. FOSTIER, No. 66 Courtlands St., New York,
This articles, repeased from the India tool of the city of New York, is the CHEAPIST, BLST, and MOST FOWBRITLI FERTILIZIRE offered in market, It greatly increases the yield, and ripens the crops from two to three weeks earlier, at an expense of from $5 to $4 per sere.

Also, FIFTY TUNS OF BONE TA-FEU, being a mixterm of the principle for grain and grass.

A pamplele containing direction, ée, may be had free,
Address JAMES T. FOSTIER.

Care of Lodi Mannfacturing Co., No. 65 Courtlands St.

Cristadoro's Hair Dye.

Cristadoro's Hair Preservative.
Unequaled as a dressing. Both for sale everywhere, and applied at No. 6 Astor House, N. Y.

Woman's Rights!!—Every lady can have beau-tiful wany hair by haing "Trins' Patent Hair Crimpers." For sale everywhere. Manufactured and soid wholesale only, by the Patentee, E. IVINS, Sixth and Columbia Avenne, Philadelphia.

HARPER & BROTHERS Have Just Ready:

Have Just Ready:

THE STUDIENT'S HISTORY OF FRANCE. A History of France from the Earliest Times to the Establishment of the Second Empire in 1852. Illustrated by Engravings on Wood. Large 12me (Uniform with "The Student's Hume," "The Student's Gibbon," "Student's Greece," "Liddell's Rome," &c.), Cloth, $1 25.

STREAKS OF LIGHT; or, Fifty-Two Facts from the Bible for Fifty-Two Sundays of the Year. By the Au-thor of "Peper of Day," "Line upon line," "leading without Tears," and "More about Jesus," Illustra-tions. 16mo, Manlin glit, 75 cents.

MEMOIRS OF THE REV. NICHOLAS MURRAY, D.D. (KIRWAN). By SAMBER, IRREWS PRIME, Author of "Travels in Europe and the East," etc., etc. With Steel Fortrait. 12mo, Cloth, $1.2n.

HISTORY OF FRIEDRICH U., CALLED FREDERICK THE GREAT. By THOMAS CARLYLE. Vol. III., with Portrait and Maps. 12mo, Cloth, $1 56.

KENDALL'S AMBOLINE for the HAIR.

A STIMULATING COMPOUND FROM FLOWERS, ROOTS AND HERBS FOR THE GROWTH AND BEAUTY OF THE HAIR.

Dr. Chilton says—
"Its use would prove beneficial where the scalp requires a gentle stimulant application."

WARREN WARD, Esq., 277 Canal Street, says—"I have never had any thing in my family which so per-fectly answers the purpose of a Hair Dressing."

Prof. John Senia, 35 King Street, says —"After being hald for over seven years, your AMBOLINE has covered the cutire scalp with a growth of NEW HAIR."

For sale by al! Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers. Put up in Bexes contain-ing two bottles each.

Price $1.

Prepared only by

KENDALL &

BANNISTEE,

542 BROADWAY.

KENDALL & BANNISTER, 542 Broadway, N. Y.

Country Board Wanted,

By a small family, within about an hour of the City.— On the Sound preferred. There must be bathing and good drives in the Vicinity. A liberal price will be paid for the right accommodations.

Address F. II., at the Office of "Harper's Weekly," stating particu

Just Tribute to Merit.

AT INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, LONDON, July 11th, 1862,

Duryeas' Maizena

Titryeas' Maizena

Was the only "preparation for ford from Indian Cora" that received a medal and honorable mention from the Royal Commissioners, the competition of all prominent Edward Commissioners, the competition of all prominent Edward Commissioners, the competition of all prominent Edward Commissioners, the competition of the Indian Control of the Indian Commissioners, the commissioners are the following that the following the Royal Control of the Indian Commissioners, the Indian Commissioners and Indian Commi

The Diaphragm Filter,

The Diaphragm Filter,
With additional improvement, as been awarded two Gold and three Silver Medals by the American and MaryInal Institutes and by the Masschusetta Mechanics' CharItable Association. The wet season and the works on the New Reservoir make the Croton Water very oncient.

The DIAPHRAGM FILTPER, manufactured by ALEXANDER MSEKNAIJE, No. 308 drd Birter, between the kind of Porous Filter to which I alluded in my recent report to the Croton Bond. I consider the artificial sandstode which considers the filtering medium to be an exdensity of the considering of the control of the durable, and requires to be reversed occasionally to insure its action. JAMPS B. CHILITON, M.D., Chemist.

$10 positively made from $1. Something urgently needed by every person. Very light and pertable. Agents wanted. Call and see, or a sample sent free by mail for 10 cents, that retails for $3, by

B. L. WOLCOTT, No. 179 Chatham Square, N. Y.

Nature has Provided a Remedy

For every Disease.—Dr. O. PHILL'S BROWN has labely published a Treatise on Foreign and Native Herbell Freigntains for the positive and permanent current of Can-Presentation for the positive and permanent current of Sandrains and General Debility, which he will send free to all on receipt of a stamp for return postage. Address Dr. O. PHILL'S BROWN, No. 19 Grand Street, Jerzey Gilly, N. Sandrains and General Debility, which has well been considered to the property of the prop

Portable Printing Offices,

For the use of Merchants, Druggists, and all who wish to do their own Printing. Grecular sent free. Specimen Sheets of Type, Cute, &c. on receipt of two 3 ct. stamps. ADAMS PRESS CO., 31 Park Row, N. Y.

SPONSALIA WILLINERY ROOMS,

Madama Bendeller of the para Davidson, and Davidson Madama Bendeller of the para Davidson, and Davidson, and Davidson, and Davidson Madama Bendeller of the para the parameter of the parameter o

INDIA RUBBLR GLOVES

Sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of $1.00 for Ladies Sizes, $1.12 for Gents. O. B. GRAY, 201 Broadway, N. Y. Every variety of Rubber Goods wholesale and retail.

Worth its Weight in Gold.

A Pamphlet mailed, post-paid, for $2, containing exact croics of advertisaments for pursons cutilled to property. Address or apply to HENRY HAYS, 649 Broadway, N. Y. Coats of arms found, painted, and engraved.

BOOK AGENTS, TEACHERS. All who would clear $25 to $50 per week, should canvass for the HISTO YOF THE REBELLION, issued by the AUBURN PUBLISHING COMPANY, and for "all about it should write be f. d. STORKE, Adburn, N. Y. Noe is the time."

If you Play the Pianoforte

Don't fail to have a copy of the "HOME OURGLE" a collection of choice instrumental blush; the "SILVER a collection of choice instrumental blush; the "SILVER the "SHOWER OF FEARLE," a collection of favorite Vocal Duets with Fiano Accompaniments;—one or all, Frico of each, in cloth binding, $2.25; plain, $2.60. Cop-les sent by mail, pert-paid, on receipt of price. OLIVER DITSON & O.C., bubbless, $2.77 Weshington Sal, Beston

BRANDRETH'S PILLS, New Style,

BRANDRETH'S PILLS, NEW STYLE, BRANDRETH'S PILLS. NEW STYLE.

BRANDRETTIS PILLS, NEW STYLE,
Are infalandrettis Pills, NEW STYLE,
Are infalandrettis processes, spanse, loss of appetites sidheadache, giddiness, sense of bloating after metal, dizziness, drowsiness, and cramping pains, and all disorders of the stomach and howels.

ONE OF MANY CASES.

ONE OF MANY CASES.

1. C. Cook, publisher of the State Benner, Bennington, V., says: he was attacked with DYSPETSIA, and suffered so exercily from it, that not a particle of food could be swallowed without occasioning the most unconfortable sensation in his stomach. For five years he suffered from this dreadful complaint, when he used BRAND-REPHS PILIS. The first box did not seem to benefit humanic, but the second modules a chance, and by the RETH'S PILLS. The first box did not seem to benefit im much, but the second produced a change, and by the time he had taken six boxes, a COMPLETE CUIES was off.cted. He says: "My dyspepsia was gone, and my expectation of an early death vanished."

ASK FOR NEW STYLE.

PRINCIPAL OFFICE 294 CANAL STREET.

dealers in medicines.

NEW YORK. Sold also at No. 4 Union Square, and by all respectable Gillies' Old Plantation Coffee.

Gilties' Old Plantation Coffee,

25 Cents per Pound.

To all lovers of fine flavored Coffee, we offer a superior bevarge to any persoforce old in this market. It is an perior to Coffee considered to the superior to Coffee considered to the superior of Coffee considered to Coffee co discount to the trade,

WRIGHT GILLIES & BRO., 233, 235 and 237 Washington Street, N, Y., Importers and Manufacturers.

CATARRH!—Dr. Goodale's CATARRH REMEDIA constrates to the very sent of this terrible disease, and sterminates it, root and branch. Price $1 00. Send a stamp for a pamphlet. Depot 612 Broadway.

Volunteers for the Army should not leave the City until supplied with HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OBYTHENT. For Sores, Sourry, Wounds, Small Fox, Fevers, and Doved Complaints, these medicines are the best in the word. Every French Soldier uses them. Only 25 ceats per hox.

Surgeons and Physicians send for a circular of the new Patent Lap-Eyed Needle, free by mail; or a Sett of Needles for 75 cents. ALLYN & PHELPS, Inventor's and Manufacturer's Depot, 429 Breadway, N.Y.

TRUSSES, Marsh's Radical Cure Truss Office, orner of Broadway and Ann Street. No connection what-ser with any other Truss Office of same name. A fe-nde attends Ladies.

The response parties.

O'YOU WANT LUXURIANT

O'WHISEERS OR MUSTACHIES?—My Organet will force then to grow heavily in alx weeks (upon the smoothest fisco without stain or injury to the skin. Price §t.—
sunt by meil, nost fees, to may address, on receipt of an orter. R. G. GRAHAM, No. 100 Nazaus Street, N. Y.

THE HUBBARD BROS, have the pleasure of announcing to their numerous Friends and Patrons in the Army and Navy, that they are prepared to fill ordor and transmit parcels, ny MAIL, with the utmost care and promptitude. Watches, no forewirded, are registered; we take upon ourselves all risks of transportation, and guarantee a set delivery.

take upon ounselves all risks of transportation, and guarantee a safe delivery.

RAILWAY TIMEREPPERS. especially adapted for Army Sales is We are obliged to pay gold for these Watches in Switzerland, and owing to the premium loss amountains. These are our forest rates. Frank Lorentee Hunsards Timerrans are becoming proverbial for their scenariog and rolling. They are particularly validation. Supplementally, the second of the second provided for their scenariog and rolling. Prices—Ileay diversibated or electro gold-plated, per case of six, §45. Postage, per case, §455.

THE WAGING TIME OBSERVER. the THE OBSERVER, the THE WAGING AND THE OBSERVER. THE PROFECTION of McGING IN I.—BURNEY A LICETTES AND THE PROFECTION OF MCGING IN I.—BURNEY A LICETTES AND THE PROFESS. THE NEW YOR I.—WIND THE SELF-WINDING SERF-WINDING SELF-WINDING SELF-W ge, per case, $1 60.

THE MAGIC TIME OBSERVER, the actualized of Machanism !__Being a Hinting and Open the postage is 56 conts. Retains at $100 and upwards, you from the first impression of the first impression of the first impression of the first impression of the materials the first materials the first contains a first material by the most experience diagram of the first material by the most experienced judges; acids will not affect it. Has sweep seconds, and is not to excelled in general appearance. Engineers, engineers, and persons traveling will find them superior to any other particular contains of the first persons traveling will find them superior to any other; attention of climate will not affect their accuracy; will readily retain at $100 and upwards. Price $85 00.

Rostage 20 cents.

HONTING COMPOSITION CASED
LEVERS,—English manufacture movement; capped and fail jeweled, have sunk eccods, and the newest imPrice per case of half dozen $115.00, or per single one only $20.00. Postage 27 cents. Retails at $75 and upwards.

RUNTING SILVER PLATED ARMY WATCHES, - Superior regulated movement and e finish, decorated dial, funcy hands, &c., per case of half dozon, $55 00; a single one. $15. Postage 33 cts.

HUNTING COMPOSITION GASED
ARMY WATCHES,—develed and fancy polished ctp, handsomely engraved, in octagon or round cases.

Prior per case of a half dozen, $55 00; single one, $15.

Postage 35 cents.

Postage 35 cents. We have no agents or travelers. Buyers must deal with us direct, ordering from this advertisement. Texus, CASS ITS ADVANCE. Remittances may be made in United States money or draft payable to our order in this city. If you wish goods sent by mail, enclose the amount of the postage with your order. Write your address in full. Richiterated Interprets soult are Our Blass. Address.

HUBBARD BROS., Importers,

Next of Kin-Heirs, &c., Wanted-Un-Wext of Kin-Heirs, &c., Wanted-Un-claimed Money — Being exact copies of Advertisements from the English, Colonial, European, American, East Indian, and Australian papers for the last 80 years relat-ing to several thousand names and descriptions of persons wanted to claim property to the value of many millions of pounds sterling, in Great Britain, America, and vari-ous parts of the world. Fee to search for mane, Sc. Copy to the control of the control of the control of the property of the control of the control of the con-trol of the control of the control of the control of the ROBERT GIV, GUYA & CO., 17 Charlotte Street, Bed-ford Square, London, England.

Pensions, Bounty, Pay, Prize

Money, for Soldiers and Sailors, or heirs, promptly col-lected. Soldiers discharged for wounds, entitlet to boun-ty, wo send our Hand-Book of Information and Circular, with Liets of Prices, by enclosing address, with stamp to pay return postage. SOMES & BROWN, 2 Park Place, New York, and 476 7th Street, Washington, D. C.

To all Wanting Farms.

Large and thriving settlement of Violencia. Rich soil.
Good crops of Whoat Corm, Praches, &c., to be sext—and you make the Philadelphia. Delightful circums—20 acre tracts of from $15 to $50 per uere, payabe within 4 years.
Good schools and sectley. Handred are settling. Apply to CHAS. K. LAXDIS, P.M., Vincland, Cumberland Co., New Jersey. Report of Solon Robinson and Vincland Rural cent free. From Report of Solon Robinson, Ag. Ed. Tribune.

" It is one of the most extensive fertile tracts, in an almost level position, and suitable condition for pleasant farming that we know of this side of the Western Prairies.

A Good Article a laways recommends itself.—The best and most wholesome Coffee ever offered is the celebrated Gravurs Preparation of Ear Rival Corre. Daly 20 cents per pound!! Wholesome and retail at 79 Barcules Street and by Aowheay & Fechium, 56 Fulton Street, and Korny & Southworth, Yeavy Street, Control of the Corresponding to the World-Orders for Flour executed at receiver's prices.

Address orders, G. DENTLEY, 79 Barculy Street, New York.

SOMETHING NEW.

NATIONAL AMBRICAN AMUSEMENT OARDS.
Colonel for King, Goddess of Liberty for Queen, and Major for Jack. 25 enameled cards to the pack. Englist, Shields, Stars, and Flags are the suits, and you can play all the usual games. Three packs mailed free on receipt of one Dollar.
The usual discount to the trade. Send for a Circular. Address AMERICAN PUBLISHING AGENCY.
14 Chambers Street, New York.

LANDRETH'S (WARRANTED)

SEEDS

Have been before the American People for nearly Three Ouarters of a Century, and daily grow in popular favor. They will speak their own praise wherever planted, LANDRETH'S RURAL REGISTER AND ALMANAC, 1863, is mailed, without charge, to all applicants. DAVID LANDRETH & SON, Philadelphia, Penn.

575 A MONTH! I want to hire Agents in every county at $75 a month, expenses paid, to sell my new cheap Family Sewing Machines. Address, S. MADISON, Alfred, Maine.

Chemicals, &c.,—We have for Sale

250 tons of SODA ASH, different brands and tests, in store and to arrive, for Soap or Glass Makers. CAUSTIG
SODA, the best makes, in 1ron 5 ext. packages. NEWCASTLE SAI SOUA, 157 tons in assorted packages.—slop
Flace & Goose, one own make. Newcestle H CB SODA
GOOSE Chemical Works, our own manufacture, unrecelled. CREAM TARTAR, crystal and powdered. Ale TARTARIC AOID, crystal and powdered in our own mults, parfectly pure. "EXCLESION" YEAST POW.
DER, of acknowledged excellence, the standard article.
SALARRATCES, the Best and I runed in the market, made guaranteed. Also the following Sundries: COONSTREAMD
LYP, TERFARED POTASIR, FOT AND PEAUL ASHIS. SOAP FOWDER, INDRO, &c. 150,000 lbs. of PAIM OIL, duty paid, in assorted packages.

Tayers from strictly first hands should send us their orders.

CHOMAS ANDREWS & CO.

188 and 188 Cadas Street Will You're.

orders.
THOMAS ANDREWS & CO.,
136 and 188 Cedar Street, New York, for Fifteen Years, IMPORTEES and MANUFACTURERS.

Almost as Interesting as Robinson Crusoe

So vivid that we are reminded of Defoc.

HARPER & BROTHERS.

FRANKLIN SQUARE, NEW YORK,

Publish this Day:

BALDWIN'S AFRICAN HUNTING.

AFRICAN HUNTING FROM NATAL TO THE ZAM-BESI, Including Lake Ngami, the Kalahari Desert, &c., from 1852 to 1860. By WILLIAN CHARLES BALDWIN, F.R.G.S. With Map, Fifty Illustrations by Wolf and Zwecker, and a Portrait of the Great Sportsman. Small 8vc, Cloth, $150.

HARPER & BROTHERS

Have just Published;

SYLVIA'S LOVERS. A Novel. By Mrz. Garkell. Au-thor of "Mary Barton," "Cranford," "My Lady Lud-low," "North and South," "The Morthand Cottege," "Right at Last," dec. 8vo, Taper, 60 cent. "The New Edition of Spivid's Lovers is just ready.

LINES LEFT OUT; or, Some of the Historics Left Out in "Line upon Line." This First Part relates to Frents in the Times of the Partnaxons and the Jimese. By the Author of "Line upon Line," "Reading without Tears," "More about Jesse," "Streaks of Light," &c. Hisstrated. 15mc, Cloth, 75 cents.

CHRONICLES OF CARLINGFORD. A Novel. By Mrs. OTHERANT, Author of "The Life of Edward Irving," "The Last of the Mortimers," "The Days of My Life," "The Laird of Norlaw," &c. 8vo, Paper, 75 cents; Cloth, $1 00.

BARRINGTON. A Novel. By CHARLES LEVER, Author of "Charles O'Malley," "Gerald Fitzgerald," "The Martine of Cro Martin," "Maurice Thermy," "The DATA Family Abrond," "One of Them," &c., &c., &c. Svo, Paper, 50 cents.

NO NAME. A Novel. By WYLKER COLLINS, Author of "The Woman in White," "Queen of Hearts," &c. Hustrated by John McLenan. 8vo, Paper, $1 25; Cloth, $150.

AURORA FLOYD. A Novel. By M. E. Braddon, Anthor of "Lady Audley's Secret." Svo, Paper, 25 conts.

MY DIARY NORTH AND SOUTH. By WILLIAM HOW-AED RUSSELL, LL.D. Svo, Paper, 50 cents.

SPRINGS OF ACTION. By Mrs. C. H. B. RIGHARDS. 12mo, printed on Tinted Paper, Cloth, $1 00; Cloth, 12mo, printed on Gilt Edges, $1 25.

MODERN WAR: Its Theory and Practice. Illustrated from Celebrated Campaigns and Battles. With Maps and Diagrams. By Emmit Szahad, Captain U. S. A. 17mo, Cioth, $1.20.

GENERAL BUTTERFIELD'S OUTPOST DUTY. Camp and Outpost Duty for Infantry. With Standing Orders, Extracts from the Revised Regulations for the Army, Rules for Health, Maxims for Soldiers, and Dutles of Officers. By DANIEL BUTTERFERIN, Major-Gein. Volts., U.S.A., Chief of Staff to General Hooker. Approved by the War Department. ISino, Flexible Cloth, 63 cents.

HARPER'S HAND-BOOK FOR TRAVELLERS IN EUROPE AND THE EAST; being a Guide through France, Beigium, Holland, Gormany, Austria, Italy, Sichy, Egyrk, Syria, Turkey, Greece, Switzerland, Russia, Dennark, Sweden, Spain, and Great Bridin and Ireland. By W. Frankoux Ferrence. With a Map
Rubbraching Colored Routes of Travel in the above Countries. Large 12ms Guide, § 7 o; Leather, § 5 0?, Haf
Call, § 35 0; Roan with Tucks, § 5 00.

Any of the above Works sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price.

HARPER'S NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

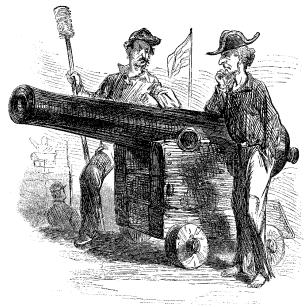

Two Copies for One Year Dub of Tex Sub-An Extra Copp., gratis, for every Club of Tex Sub-scritters, at $2 50 each, or 11 Copies for $25 00. Harper's Magazine and Harper's Weekly, together, one year, $5 00. HARPER & BROTHERS, PUBLISHERS.

HARPER'S WEEKLY. Single Copies Six Cents.

TERMS.

ent with whom way... billity they are assured. HARPER & BRYPHERS, Publishers, Franklin Square, New York.

THE LAST SHOT.

Beauergard. "What's to be done, now? Only two more Charges left."

Jeff Davis. "Oh, bother! Can't you ram them both down together, and burst the whole darned thing up!"

FISK & HATCH, Rankers

Dealers in Government Securities, Agents for U. S. Five Twenty Loan, ASSUTES 107 U. S. FIVE TWENTY LOAD, are person to formeth at C. S. FIVE TWENTY ALEA BY 1931. CENT. HONDS, direct from the Government, at PAR and ACCINCED INTEREST, as benefore, EFON AND AFFER JULY 1, FIRE PRIVATED OF CONTENNED LEAST-ENDING NOTES INTO THE FIVE ITWENTY-YEAR HONDS AFFER THE WILL CRASS. INTIRE WHISING TO SEE THE WILL AT FAIL, should send in their orders before that time. We also keep on hand a constant supply of all classes of Government Securities for sale at the lowest market rates.

rates.
U. S. 7-30 TREASURY NOTES.
U. S. 6 PER CENT. BOXDS of ISSI.
U. S. ONE-YEAR CERTIFICATES OF INDEBTEDNESS, &c., &c.

FISK & HATCH, No. 38 Wall Street, New York.

New Dime Books, now Ready.

New Dime Books, now Heady.

I. MENO FTHE TIMES, No. 3.—Comprising original and exhaustive Biographies of Major-Generals Hooker, Rosecross, Grent, McCiternand, and Mickell. A nost delightful book for all.

II. SONGS OF THE CLIEN TIME. Being a very unique collection of those old-the longer which our fathers are not seen to be a few for the control of the second of the second collection of the second old-dashioned tecesary of wards.

used to sing. It 18 a rea good variables of the Songs.

HI. NATIONAL TAX LAW. New Edition, embodying the amendments, medifications, and additions of the late Congress. Beadles "Citizen's Edition" of the Tax Law is, by far, the best for popular use and reference F2F For side by all Nows Dealers, Suttlers, &c.

BEADLE & CO., Phillibries,

118 William Street, New York,

UNION ADAMS,

Hosier, Glover,

SHIRT-MAKER. No. 637 Broadway,

New York City.

A GENTS WANTED to SELL a LIVE BOOK.—THE NATIONAL ATMANAC AND ANNUAL BECOME FOR 1865, containing a complete Robellion Booten), theraphies of the Officers killed, Army List, Navy List, Volverty and the Control of the Officers killed, Army List, Navy List, Volverty Lings, and the Control of each of the States. Send for a copy by mail. Price counts of each of the States. Send for a copy by mail. Price counts of each of the States. Send for a copy by mail. Price counts of each of the States. Send for a Control of the Control of th

TO CONSUMPTIVES,—You will get the Recipe for a sure care for Couchs, Colds, Consumption, and all lung complaints, by sending to D. Adee, SSI Peri St., X, Y. He sends it free. Write for it.—It has cured thousands.

IE YOU DESIRE AFINE HEAD OF HAIR STERLING'S AMBROSIA ITS EFFECTS ARE WONDERFUL. CALL AT 493 BROADWAY.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS PRICE $ 1 ABOX; 2 BOTTLES

"Loyal Union League." To the Trade.

We have just received a new Pin, emblematical of the above organization, which we offer very cheap to the

e. N. FOOTE & CO., |Manufacturers Jewelry, 208 Broadway, New York.

Agents and Soldiers.

ALGENTS AND SOUGHETS.

Agents in Towns, and Soldiers in camp or dischanged, are making easily $15 per day relling our GREAT NEW and WONDERFUL LIND NEIDE AND STATIONERY PACKAGES, NOVEL AND UNEXPAULATIONERY PACKAGES, INCOME AND ADDRESS OF THE AND ADDRESS OF THE AND ADDRESS OF THE AND ADDRESS OF THE ADDRESS OF ducements.

S. C. RICKARDS & CO., 102 Nassau Street, New York, largest and oldest Prize Package House in the World.

$10 PER DAY NETT PROFIT. Agents wanted for a light wholesale business. Send for a circular to C. F. SHULT'S, Troy, N. Y.

The Polar Refrigerator

Maintains the pre-eminence. A full assertment at wholesale and retail.

LESLEY & ELLIOT, 494 Broadway, N. Y.

Elegant Colored Photographs.

ELEGANT COLOTEC Photographs.

Any person, though not an Artist, can plant the Cortect the Visite and Photographs quickly and beautifully with "Newton's Preparant Golony."
Specimen Cards, painted with these colors, sent, past poid, at 50 cents, by the arbitrophers, and with Reducing liquid 38 35, accounted with full directions.
Caution.—Persons are cantineed against a worthloss inlitation of "Newton's Alexander Colons," offered in shape and style similar to the genuine and style similar to the genuine.
The genuine Newton's Colons have the name of the Sole Agent for the United 3, E. WILLTON & CO., Boston,
On each bottle and box.

Ladies! Look, Read, and Buy. George's Patent Hair Crimpers.

Any lady can wave her own hair beautifully, in less an five minutes, and give it a rich, glessy appearance. On receipt of $1.25, the Crimper will be forwarded free than five minutes, and give it a rich, glessy opporance.

On-receipt of $1.25, the Orimper will be forwarded free by Express.
Boware of Metal Crimpers, they both hum and cut the hair.
For sale, wholesale and retail, by H. G. SUPLER, No.
537 Broadway, at the Booms of the "Celebrated SLOAT ELLIPTIC IMPROVED SEWING MACHINED."

Soldiers Presented Free with Literature upon receipt of their Names and Address. WM. H. CATELY, 40 Ann Street, N. Y.

NEWS DEALERS.

Sand for our revised Price List, ready Mar. 2, FEER'S & BANCKER, 24 Ann 81, N.Y. Wholessle Dealors in Daily and Wockly Newspapers, Magazines, Choad Publications, Albums, Carte de Visite, and Merchandize of overy description.

ATTENTION

Agents, Soldiers, and Masons.

Any one wishing to purchase JEWELRY, I will send as sample, on the receipt of $1, together with my wholesale Circular, either a Gold Masone Fin or Ring, or a Gent's Chaster Pin with Chain attached, or a man new style Vest distributed by the Chain attached, or a man in the style of the control of the Chain of th

Superior Farm Land

Superior Failing Resident Alog piece Franklinvilla and Lake Trace, on West Jorsey Ralinvad, 25 miles south of Philadelphia, in less to acti purchasers. Circulars, containing reports of Solon Robinson, Hon, Wm. Parry, and others, with full information, sent from by addressing JOHN H. COFFIN, Franklinville, Glomester County, New Jersey.

The Alabama taken!!

The famous 290.

Card Photographs from a view taken by an Artist on

ACCURATE! SPIRITED! LIFE-LIKE! Price 25 cents. Can be sent by mail on receipt of

E. & H. T. ANTHONY, 501 Broadway.

N.B.—Don't confound this with a picture advertised at a cheaper price, copied from a lithograph.

Lithography, Engraving, and Printing, by LANG & COOPER, 117 CUPON STREET, NEW YORK. Transferring from Copper and Stool Flate to Stone made equal to copper-plate printing at one half the cost. Country orders particu-larly attended to. Send for samples and prices.

LANDS.—To all wanting Farms. Thriving Settlement. Rich soil. Mild climate. See advertisement of Vineland, on previous page.

American Watches

For Soldiers

AT REDUCED PRICES.

American Watches for Americans!

THE AMERICAN WATCH COMPANY give notice that they The American Warou Courany give notice that they have lately issued a new style of Watche, sprossly designed for Sulties and others who desire a good watch at a modernte price. These watches are intended to displace the wordliess, cheap watches of British and Swiss monitacture with which the country is flooded, and which were mover expected to keep time when they were made, being refuse manufactures sent to this country because unsalable at home, and used here only for jucksying and swindling purposes.

We offer to self our Watch, which is of the most sun-We offer to sell our Watch, which is of the most sen-TRANTAL MANDYAGTER, AN AGUARAT AND DEBAIRS THES-REPER, and in Steeling Silver Cases, Hunting pat-tern, at as low a price as is selved for the fancy-mamed Amers and Impines of foreign make, already referred to. We have manned the new series of Watches, WM. Ex-LERY, Beston, Mass., which name will be found on the plate of every watch of this manufacture, and is one of our trade-morks.

Sold by all respectable watch dealers in the loyal States Wholesale orders should be addressed to

ROBBINS & APPLETON.

Agents of the American Watch Company, 182 BROADWAY, N. Y.

Preserve your sight. Spectacles and Evo-plasses adapted to the various changes and defections of the Eye, silerting the clearest and cariest vision, at the Optical Institute, cor. Breadway and Ann Street, N. Y.

Enameled Furniture.

All styles and prices. Also Chamber Suites in Walnut and Chostnut. The best assortment in the city, Wholegale and Retail, at 277 Canal Street. WARREN WARD.

SHIRTS. Warranted to FIT, and to be CHEAPER for the same qualities and make than those of any other Shirt House in this city.

Patented

Circular containing drawings and prices sent free.

For sale by all the principal dealers throughout the United States

BALLOU BROTHERS, 403 Broadway, New York.

Tomes, Son & Melvain, 6 Maiden Lane, New York.

Dealers in Arms and Military Goods of every Description

RICH PRESENTATION SWORDS. Smith & Wessen's Breech-leading Rifles and Pistols, Bacon Manufacturing Co. Revolving Fistols.

Milligan's Army Mess Kettle.

Endersed by the best Milliery Talent in the Country. In a lotter from GEN. ROSECHANS he says:

"It is so convenient and compact that I wish it were carded by all wherever His Army moves. I hope they may entirely replace the Officer's Moss Chest now in use."

may entirely replace the Officer's Mess thest now in user, GFN. LEW WAILAGE writes us: "It is the most complete article of the kind I have such. Its compactures commends it for transportation," weight 15 lise, price $15. Sold by all dealers in Army Equipments. Wholesalo Depet, No. 29 Cliff, our Fution St., N. Y. Send for cir-cular. "MILLIGAN BIOS.

Brown & Wilson,

Bankers and Brokers, No. 19 Wall St. LEWIS M. BROWN. HENRY S. WILSON.

7 3-10 U. S. Treasury Notes, U. S. 6 per cent Debt Certificates, Uncurrent Money, Gold and Silver hought and sold. Commission Dealers in Stocks, Bonds, and Scentitics.

Refer by permission to
Bank of the Commonwealth, Spefford & Theston,
John J. Crane, Moses Taylor.
Le 19 Wall Street,

$16 Watches.

Fine Gold Plate Silver Hunting Case Ladles' Watches, equal to 18 karat Solid Gold in finish and general appearance, for $16, usually solid at $38.

J. L. FERGUSON, 208 Broadway, N. Y.

GOLD PENS

Retailed at wholesale prices. Gools warranted. Scal for a circular, giving list of prices and engravings of Pens. Pens re-pointed on the receipt of 56 cents. E. S. JOHNSON, Manufactory and Office 15 Maiden Lane, New York City.

Olinson, Manufactory and Comments of the City.

The American Parlor Or Floor Sixate, Hard Rubber Rollers, Auti-friction Axles, Prederick Stevens, 215 Pearl Street, New York.

63 Killy Street, Roston.

Army Watches,—A Beautiful Engraved Gold-Pla-d Watch, Lover Cap. English Mosoments, perfect time-erger. Sent free by mail for only $7. A Solid Silver, same above, $5. Chas. P. Norton & Co., $8 & 40 Ann St., N.Y.

AGENTS WANTED for our Splendid New Mammoth Eureka Prize Package. 200 per cent, profit. Su-perb Watch free to Agents. $18 per day made. Send for New Girculars. W. H. CATELY & CO., 46 Ann St., N.Y.

FRENCH AND ENGLISH FANCY GOODS

Also, a full assortment of Jet. Coral, and Steel Goods. Schuyler, Hartley & Graham, 19 Maiden Lane & 22 John Street, N. Y., 15 Rue d'Enghein, Paris, 47 Hampton St., Birmingham, Eng.

A BEAUTIFUL MICROSCOPE io ets. (in silver), magnifying small objects 500Five of different powers for $1 60. Mailed free.
285 F. C. BOWEN, Dox 220, Boston. Mass.

Made to Measure at $24, $30, $36 & $42

Self-Measurement for Shirts.

ted directions for self-measurement, list of prices, awings of different styles of shirts and collars sent ce everywhere. Frenom Flaverl Aumy Smers, $24, $27, $30 and $33 ATO SUPPLY WITH HAD

FAIRBANK'S SCALE WAREHOUSE, REMOVED

FROM No. 189 BROADWAY, TO FROM No. 180 DROADDWAY,

No. 252 BROADWAY,

DIRECTLY OPPOSITE THE CITY HALL,

NEW YORK.

Descriptive circulars furnished on application. Pimples, Blotches, Tan, Freckles, &c.

Finiples, Biolubiles, I'all, Freckles, &u. Chapmais Recipe for the permanent Removal of the above disfigurements of the face, leaving the ckin rofa and smooth, can be obtained free of charge by addressing DR. THOS. F. GHAPMAN, PRACTICAL CHRISTS, SRI Broadway, N. Y. a full et of Whiskers in less than six weeks.

