Vol. VII.—No. 357.]

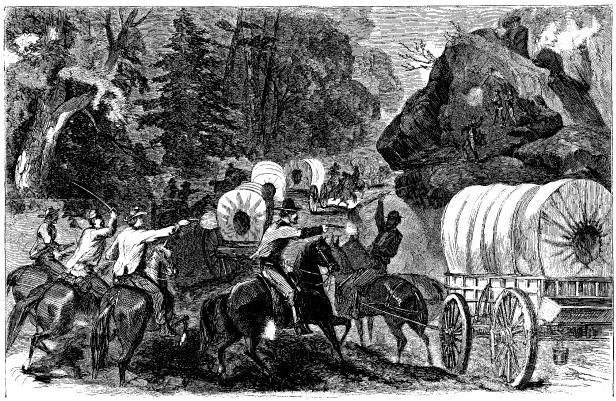

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1863.

SINGLE COPIES SIX CENTS. $3,00 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

Entered according to Act of Congress, in the Year 1863, by Harper & Brothers, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court for the Southern District of New York.

THE ARMY OF THE CUMBERLAND-DESTRUCTION OF UNITED STATES WAGONS BY REBEL CAVALRY, OCT. 2, 1863.—Sketched by Mr. Theodore R. Davis.—[See Page 690.]

THE ARMY OF THE CUMBERLAND-REBEL ATTACK UPON WAGONS IN ANDERSON'S GAP.-Skeiched by Mr. Theodobi K. Davic.-[See Page 690.]

THE ARMY OF THE CUMBER-LAND.

With devote pages 683, 692, 696, and 697 to illustrations of the Army of the Cumberland. On pages 693 and 697 will be found, a fine battle scene, which will convey an idea of the gallant stand made by General Thomas's heroes against the reliadvance at the battle of Chicamanga, whe role ladvance at the battle of Chicamanga, when they saved the day and covered themselves and their leader with glory.

On pages 689 and 692 we reproduce three illustrations of the cavalry operations which followed the battle, from sketches by Mr. Theodore R. Davis, who writes:

vis, who writes:

the hattle, from sketches by Mr. Theodore R. Davies, who writes:

Responsible for the control of the control

a very strong position they again flew up in line of battle, only to break in disorder as our men came upon them in a sabre charge.

At every commending position they drew up in line only to stand for a moment—the sabre charge of our men being demonstilizing in the extra Coment Wheeler had a very narrow escape. Colonel La Grange had cut down one of Whooler's sinf, run list stray blade through another, and dashed at Wheeler, whom he had nearly reached, when he rebel jumped his howe over a fence, which the horse distribution of the sabre of the sa

THE NEW CALL FOR MEN.

By the President of the United States. A PROCLAMATION.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS, The term of service of part of the volunteer forces of the United States will expire during the coming year; and whereas, in addition to the men raised by the present draft, it is deemed expedient to call out three hundred thousand volunteers, to serve for three years or the war—not, however, exceeding three years.

Now, therefore, I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, and Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy thereof, and of the militia of the several States when called into actual service, of issue this my proclamation, calling upon the Governors of the different States to raise and have cultied into the United States service, for the various companies and regiments in the field from their respective States, their quotas of three hundred thousand men.

If arither proclaim that all the volunteers thus called on.

en. I further procisim that all the volunteers thus called out I further proclaim that all the volunteers thus called out and dayle onlisted shall receive advance pay, premium, and bounty, as herestofore communicated to the Governors of States by the War Department, through the Provest Almahal General's office, by special lesters.

I further proclaim that all volunteers received under this cell, as well as all others not heretofore credited, shall be duly credited and deducted from the quotas established for the next draft.

I further proclaim that if any State shell fail to raise the ones a sessioned to it by the War Department under

I further proclaim that if any State shall fail to raise the quota assigned to it by the War Department under this call, then a draft for the deficiency in said quota shall be made in add State, or on the district of said State, for the consense or the birth day of January, 1868. Commence or the 6th day of January, 1868. It is commenced to the birth day of January, 1868. It is produced to the consensus of the said of the said for the said that shall be with the said of the said of commenced.

The quotes of the States and districts will be assigned by the War Department, through the Prevot Marcha Generals office, due regard being had for the men herestower farnished, whether by volunteering or drafting, and the recruiting will be conducted in accordance with such instructions as have been or may be issued by that department of the property of the state of t

Structures as have been as may be seemed by some sequence ment.

In issuing this proclamation I address myze finct only to the Governors of the several States, but also to the good and loyal people thereof, invoking them to lend their cheerin, willing, and effective aid to the measures thus adopted, with a view to refusione our victorious armies now in the field, and bring our needful military operations to a prosperous end, thus closing forever the fountains of sedition ". !view war.

perous end, tonis cosmip recent in the length of the filter in witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the sea of the United States to be riffixed. Done at the city of Washington, this seventeenth day of Cotobey, in the year of ore Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-throx, and of the independence of the United States the signity-eighth.

ABRAHAM LINGOLN.

By the President: WILLIAM H. SEWARD, Secretary of State,

HARPER'S WEEKLY.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1863.

THE REMOVAL OF ROSECRANS

CENERAL ROSECRANS.

CENERAL ROSECRANS has been removed from the command of the Army of the Cumberland, and General Thomas, the hero of Chicamauga, appointed in his place—General Grant taking the supreme command of all the armies on the Mississippi and in East and Southern Tennessee. The announcement has taken every one by surprise. But whereas, some months ago, the removal of a popular general from his command would have been a signal for a popular uprour, now even the Comerheads from his command would have been a signal tor a popular uproar, now even the Copperheads can barely get up a feeble hiss at the change; and the public at large, fully satisfied that the President knows what is required by the emerg-ency, and is doing his duty faithfully, accept the event without nurmur.

Whatever may have been the faults of Gen-ceal Reservans it is engouraging to see that the whatever may have been the names of cen-eral Rosecrans, it is encouraging to see that the President, when satisfied that he ought to be re-moved, had the courage to remove him, without hesitation or explanation to the public. We re-member the time when the public safety abso-lutely required the removal of General Frémont, whose impolic was isosweding our cense in Mis-Intely required the removal of General Frémont, whose impolicy was jeoparding our cause in Missouri, and whose friends were threatening us with a military despotism if their ravorite were disturbed. If ever a head wanted amputation, it was his. Yet Mr. Lincoln hesitated for weeks, and months, and only ventured at last to strike the blow after the public of the West had been educated to disturbs Frémont by the publication of Adjusta General Thomas's west had been contact to district Fremont by the publication of Adjutant-General Thomas's famous report in the Tribme. Again, there can be no doubt but M'Clellan's removal ought to have taken place much sooner than it didas soon, in fact, as that General refused to obey orders from Washington, and to report to the Commander-in-Chief. The President temporized and hesitated until a month of invaluable rized and hesitated until a month of invaluable time was lost—fearing the effect of the removal of a commander who had won great personal popularity. We are all of us learning, however, in these days; and Mr. Lincoln, perceiving that the Republicans did not throw down their arms when Frémont fell, nor the Democrats when McClellan retired to Jersey, now understand that the people, of whatever political party, are more devoted to the country than to any individual, and has not hesitated to remove Roscarans. It was just this nerve and this courage which were required to insure the success of the North.

There is a lesson to be learned by the people from this event, and that is, to beware of accepting the newspaper and popular estimate of generals as the true one. Up to the hour of Rose crans's removal he was believed to be nearly perfection. He was called prudent, daring, invincible, loval to the back-bone, dextrous as a vincible, loyal to the back-bone, dextrous as a strategist, and always obedient to his superiors. He was contrasted with other generals, to their invariable disparagement. When he failed at Chicamauga, the Copperheads—whose implacable foe he had proved himself—threw the whole blame on Government, and entirely exonerate him. At one time loyal range clampared for his At one time loyal men clamored for his appointment to the command of the Army of the appointment to the command of the Army of Potomac, and were only silenced when they assured that the Army of the Cumberland the more important duty of the two. V the more important duty of the two. Well, what if it should prove, when the truth comes to be known, that this paragon was prudent when he should have been daring, and rash when he should have been cautious; that the when he should have been cautions; that the battle of Murfreesborough was lost by him, and afterward—when he had given it up—won by his subordinates; that he should have taken Chattanooga weeks before he approached it, and should never have advanced a step beyond; that, by his advance, he disarranged the general plan of campaign determined at Washington, which had been prepared with his aid and approval—and this seemingly from no other motive than a vain wish to wis converse. other motive than a vain wish to win greater victories than Grant; that, so far from obeying orders promptly and cheerfully, he frequently disregarded the commands of the President; and that, so far from being the chivalric sol-dier we pictured him, he left the battle-field at Chicamanga in the middle of the fight, and was in bed at Chattanooga, snug and safe, when the gallant Thomas, with his handful of heroes, was gament Thomas, with ms mandati of heroes, was stemming the furious onset of the rebel army. If all this should be presently discovered to be the truth, what shall we then say of popular estimates of generals?

THE STATE ELECTIONS.

PENNSYLVANIA and Ohio have followed in the track of California and Maine, and Iowa and Indiana have not been behind and. New York will fittingly close the campaign with a magnificent Union majority.

Last year honest citizens were deeply pained

Last year nonest citizens were deeply panied by a precisely opposite result. New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio were carried by the opponents of the Government, and it seemed to superficial observers that the people of the North were about to be substantially divided, which in effect would have secured the triumph of the rebels. The chief European organ of the in-surgents—animated by a simple wish to see the United States destroyed—chuckled over the defeats of the Administration candidates, and confidently predicted the collapse of the "Lincoln Despotism."

We have changed all this now, and good citizens may congratulate themselves on the restoration of confidence. Throughout the North the flat has now gone forth that the war must be prosecuted until the entire territory of the Unitprosecuted until the entire territory of the Unit-ed States is permanently replaced under the do-minion of the flag. We hear no more sixty-day or ninety-day prophecies in these times. No one is now willing to pledge himself to the capture of Charleston, or Atlanta, or Richmond within a given time. We have learned to re-spect our enemy, and to bide our time. It may take now see, or it may take frust to complete spect our enemy, and to bide our time. It may take one year, or it may take four to complete the work of subjugating the rebels. The Administration is basing its calculations and its contracts upon the theory that it will take at least three years from this time. This is the reckoning of the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Treasury, though both are wisely providing for a prolongation of the contest become the secretary of the properties of the region of the contest because the secretary of the secretary of the contest because the secretary of the secretary of the contest because the secretary of the s yond the expiration of the period fixed in their yond the expiration of the period fixed in their estimates. The idea of every body, in and out of the Government, is that no further estimates as to time must be made, but that the war must be prosecuted steadily and perseveringly until the object sought has been attained.

In this view the overwhelming defeat of the Copperheads is a matter of decided congratulation. We learn from the elections in Pennsylvania and Ohio that the wasses of the provide vania and Ohio that the masses of the people vania and Ono that the masses of the people can be relied upon, and that they are not less resolutely fixed upon the vigorous prosecution of the war than their leaders. With such evi-dence of popular determination the ultimate re-sult is not dcubful. It is, as we said, a mere question of time.

History, which has pilloried Benedict Arnold, will erect a still higher gallows for the mean sneaks who, in this darkest hour of their coun-try's peril, wavered, and commended submission to the traitors of the South.

OUR TRANSATLANTIC COUSINS

THE Earl Russell, who made his reputation as a friend of liberty and democracy through-out the world, and who seriously damaged that reputation by espousing the cause of the slave-holding rebels against the United States, has nothing revers against the Orliner States, his lately seen fit to recent, and in a speech delivered in Scotland protests that he wishes to be considered as much a friend of the North as of the South, and reproaches Senator Sunner with trying to create ill-will between the two nations. The Earl contrasts Senator Sunner with Mr. Seward, and compliments the latter as a friend of peace, at the expense of the former as a friend of peace, at the expense of the former. People in this country are very much touched by the Earl's graceful allusions to the beauty of peace, and to our common tongue, our common origin, and so forth. We remembered these things when England was at war with Russia, and our authorities combined in an instant to prevent even the semblance of an infraction of our neutrality laws. Earl Russell forgot them when he let the Alabama, the Florida, and the Georgia go to sea to prey upon our defenselss commerce. They only occurred to him after he had heard of the capture of the Atlanta (a vessel as formidable as the Warrior) in fifteen minutes by the Weelweben, and of the performent of the performer of the performer of the theory of the performer minutes by the Weehawken, and of the performance of Gilmore's Parrott guns at Charleston.

When a man has trampled on his onemy and done him all the harm he can do, and is beginning to apprehend that the foe who seems crushed may rise and retaliate, he is very apt to be a lover of peace, and a hater of war. be a lover of peace, and a hater or war. The Earl Russell's recollection of our common origin would have been better timed if it had occurred to him before he let the Alahama go to sea, in spite of the earnest protests of our offi...als.

He thinks it horrid that Senator Summer should, on the heels of the bloody fight at Cettrabure, express view, which pray lead to should, on the heels of the bloody fight at Gettysburg, express views which may lead to bloody battles with British troops. It had never occurred to him, probably, when he made his famous Newcastle speech which encouraged the rebels so much, that the natural conse-quence of that speech would be bloody battle-fields. We, like Earl Russell, dislike battles. But it is rather cool for the man who has done more than any other individual to foster the re-ciproper of the whole to turn on us own and sistance of the rebels, to turn on us now, and exclaim against the blood spilled in the Why did he not think of this before he nounced the slaveholding insurgents a belliger

Blood-letting, in war, is a shocking thing no doubt. No nation loves peace more than the United States. But we have been driven into a United States. But we have been driven into a desperate war, mainly through the acts and expressed opinions of Earl Russell and his colleagues; and they may now rely upon it that Senator Summer, much more than Secretary Seward, expresses the views of the people on our relations with England, when he tells the English that their conduct during the present war has aroused a hostility to them in this country which will outlive this generation.

TEE LOUNGER.

INTERPRETING ELECTIONS.

INTERPRETING ELECTIONS.

It is amusing to see the different interpretations that are put upon the recent elections. One Copperhead paper finds that they mean merely that nobody wants peace at any price. Another, of a lighter hue, discovers that they are a terrible rebute of Mr. Lincola for listening to radical advisers. Another insists that they prove that loyal men are going to do exactly what the rebels want them to do. And so the doleful tale goes round, and the Copperheads console themselves with thinking what would happen if only the sky would fall, and twice two make seven and a half.

One thing is clear amidst all the speculation. It is pretty evident that Ohio does not wish Vallandigham for Governor, nor Pennsylvania Woodward. We can all agree that they prove so much. Then why did those States not wish such Governors? The canvass was exactly the same in both ward. We can all agree that they prove so much. Then why did those States not wish such Governors? The canvass was exactly the same in both States. The arguments were identical. And what were they? Simply that Vallandigham a. at wootward were not heartily for the war. There might he shadowy differences of opinion between them. Vallandigham might wish peace upon terms of separation, looking to reconstruction; and Woodward might pronounce for war upon terms certain to secure the success of the rebellion. But the popular common sense sees that if the rebellion is to subdued, it must be done by cordially supporting and supplying the men and means for the war. The people knew that nother W. nor V. intended so to support and supply—and they "berefore reputiance them both.

The policy of the war is as clearly defined as the war itself. Fighting, confiscation, emancipation, suspension of the habeas corpus "when the public safety requires it," and drafting, are all measures of that policy. In one word, the policy of the war is its prosecution by all honorable means of warfare. That has been plainly aunounced for a year. It went into practical operation on the 1st of Janary, 1863, and exery nounder elections in the part of the property and the property and the property is the property of the war.

the went into practical operation on the 1st of January, 1863, and every popular election since has overwhelmigly approved it. Every man whose vote swelled the Union majorities did not, of course, mean to say that he approved every detail and every person involved in the working out of the policy. But allowing for human nature, confiding in the good intention of the Government, and especially in the unquestioned honesty of the President, all loyal men know that to perplex and embarrass the operations of the war is to help the enemy. They have, therefore, in the great States of Pennsylvania, Ohio, California, Iowa, and Maine, as well as in the smaller States of Connecticut, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island, declared for the war and the policy of the war. Does any body suppose that New York will failter? It went into practical operation on the 1st of Jan-

REBEL FRANKNESS.

is one great change in the policy of the

THERE is one great change in the policy of the rebels. They bogan by shouting that they would cut themselves off clean from any association with the vile Yankee North. Every Northern party and man excepting Vallandighern and Seymour were repugnant to them. They would establish their independence, and then, perhaps, hold their noses and trade with us.
Wisdom is the child of experience. They confess now that they need Northern co-operation. It is not enough that they have an army invincible and innumerable. They must have Northern support. The Chattanooga Rebel, published in Atlanta, says plainly that all the rebels have to do is to pulverize Rosecrans, winter in Kentucky and East Tennessee, "tetake the Valley of the Mississippi, secure the election of a Peace-Democrat to the Presidency in the full, and arrange the terms of treaty and independence." Here is a very pretty programme, but one of its cardinal points is the aid of the Northern Copperheads. Now the rebels may be supposed to know their friends as well as we do. When they say that they want rebel bullets and peace ballots, who does not see that to vote for the candidates they wish to see elected is as serviceable to them as to shoot in the ranks of Bragg's or Lee's army? Bragg's or Lee's army?

DOTAGE.

The London Times, speaking of Mr. Chauming's expression of the want of English symps and the wonder of wonders, says: "To make a complaint that spectators of the borrible condict have not approved the plunge into national ruin is unreasonable almost to childichness."

Here are words of the most solemn sound, and utterly meaningless. "The plunge into national ruin" is a phrase meant to describe the war. Very well. If the rebel States had been suffered to seedle without opposition, and the Union and Government had been consequently destroyed, would there have been any less national ruin? Where would then have been the nation known as the United States? Or if, after an unquestioned and peaceful constitutional election in which they took part, the rebels had offered, or had been solicited to offer, terms upon which they would obey the laws, would the Government have been any the less overthrown, and could its usurpation, without so much as a shot fired, for the sole purpose of perpetuating human slavery, have been any less excited with the second progressive western the second progressive western and the second progress of perpetuating human slavery, have been any less excited with the second progress of the second progress o f perpetuating human slavery, have been any less ational ruin?

of perpetuating human slavery, have been any less national ruin?

The Times says further: "Whatever may riso out of the wreck, it will not be the oll Federal Union of America." Very likely; and what then? Whatever arose out of the great rebellion of 145 in England was not the old monarchy of England. Was the civil war consequently a process of "mational ruila?" The nationality and the union of these States will be preserved under a better and more stringent form than ever. Is that ruin? A man finds the walls of his house cracking. He strengthens them with new beams and rafters. It is not, in a certain sense, the old house that rises from the scaffolding; but is the of house ruined?

LOVAL SHOTS AND VOTES GO TOGETHER.

GOVERNOR SEYMOUR, who declares that he had rather see the Union destroyed than Slavery, and who insists that we had no business to discuss subjects which were disagreeable to our Southern mas ters, who are now trying to whip us in to obedience, last winter vetoed the bill for allowing the soldiers to vote. Why? Because his instinct was just. Because be knew that the soldiers would in-evitably vote for the Government to support which they were fighting. Their fire and their vote are equally true to their country and the Union. How correct he was the late millitary vote in Ohio shows. There are so few votes against the Union and the war for it that they are not worth counting. Sey-mour knows that his "friends" are not in the army fighting the rebels. They stay at home to burn orphan asylums and murder innocent and helpless men and children. Perhaps some one would like to insist that the rank and file of the army are Copperheads. It is as true as the other story that the Army of the Potomac will fight under nobody but M 'Clellan. Because he knew that the soldiers would in

HOW'S THE WIND?

INOWS THE WIND?

In the great debate in the British Parliament last April upon the duty of England under her neutrality law, Lord Palmerston in his most jaunty tone declared, amidst the applause of the House, that no menace would induce the Government "to come down to this House and propose a change of the law." In his late speech at Blairgowrie, Lord Russell said that the Government were prepared to do every thing that the duty of neutrality required, even if it should be necessary "that the sauction of Parliament should be asked to further measures."

Lord Palmerston spoke when the rebellion seemed to be sure of success; Lord Russell, when it is pretty surely defeated. The two speeches are a fair representation of what the Government of Great Britain understands by neutrality. It sobligation to ask a change of the law last April was exactly what it is now. That one party in the war is more or less successful can not alter the attitude of a neutral power. War with England will doubtless be avoided by her action. But let us not deceive ourselves as to the occasion of her action. It is not a change of heart—Vicksburg, Fort Hudson, Gettysburg, Charleston, these have been the "eye-openers" of Great Britain. Lord Palmerston spoke when the rebellion seem-

DUMBNESS IN LIBRARIES.

DUMBNESS IN LIBRARIES.

"A Constant Reader," writes that, having occasion recently to apply for a book at the Mercantile Library (in what city is not stated), he was requested, almost inaudibly, to write his name, address, etc., upon a slip of paper, and, upon inquiry, was "curtly answered" that communication between the librarian and the reader was to be held by signs that there might be no noise of conversation. "Why, then, dear Lounger," asks the writer, "did the Lord give us voice and language, if it was intended we should transact all the business of this world by signs? And he further remarks: "If this system is to be permanent, I would simply suggest that the library hire persons who are really deaf and dumb for hibrarians; in which case we should all be content, and it would be giving employment to a class who do not often have the chance of making a living, and who could hand us the slips of paper and get us our books as well as those now in charge."

"A Constant Reader" is perhaps not aware that the slip of paper is a receipt for the book, is of great convenience for reference in case of loss, and saves nurmuring in the library, where many students may be reading. And although, as he suggests, it is fair to presume that persons who do not know the value of silence. Mean-while, because that is true of libraries, we do not understand that it is proposed to transact all the business of the world by signs or by slips of paper. It does not exactly follow because the tide is high at four o'clock that there will be a deluge at six. Does it?

A COMBINED MOVEMENT

A COMBINED MOVEMENT.

Ox the 7th of September the Richmond Inquirersaid; "The success of the Democratic [Copperhead] party would be no longer doubtful should General Lee once more advance upon Meade. Let him drive Meade into Washington, and he will again raise the spirits of the Democrats [Copperheads], confirm their timid, and give confidence to their wavering." In conformity with this plan General Lee did move upon Meade, but did not happen to "drive" him. At the same moment, and for the same purpose of raising the spirits of the Copperheads, General M Clellan moved against the Government in concert with Lee, But the combined movement of Generals Lee and M Clellan neither defeated the Government in the field nor at the polls. Neither chief can be classed among the successful Generals.

THE LYCEUM.

THE Lyceum all over the country begins to arrange its winter course of lectures. The demand for good lecturers was never greater, and some of the most eminent and popular, such as Mr. Beecher, Mr. Chapin, Mr. Bayard Taylor, return from their European absence refreshed and inspired. Inevitably and happily, the profound interest of the time will hardly suffer any speaker to wander far from some aspect of the condition of the country. Parties have disappeared. Politics are not now a question of partisan ascendency, but of national salvation. And as there never was a time when the fullest public intelligence was more desirable, so there was never a better opportunity for the vigso there was never a better opportunity for the vig-orous and frank discussion of the great fundamental social questions, to which our attention must be for a long time turned, than the Lyceum.

There will be a desire of variety, certainly, in the general range of topics, although there is no fear that the same subject will be treated in the same way by any of the chief lecturers. It is the treatment, no less than the topic, which is of the turnost importance. But for Lyceums which wish to leave the current of public interests altogether, Mr. Tasistro's and Mr. Vandenhoff's readings, Professor Youman's and Richard's scientific lectures, and the illustrated lectures of Mr. Oscanyan upon Turkish life, will be most attractive. The series of card-photographs illustrative of Mr. Oscanyan's lectures are extremely interesting. They are vallectures are extremely interesting. lectures are extremely interesting. They are val-uable studies of Oriental costume, and Mr. Oscanyan is so fluent in the English language, with which he is entirely familiar, that his lectures, with with their tableaux, will be a most agreeable va riety.

LITERARY.

"MARTIN POLK" is the last issue in the Har-per's Library of Select Novels. It is by John Saunders, the author of "Abel Drake's Wife," a writer who is fast acquiring great reputation for his vigorous and powerful stories of modern domes-

The Harpers also issue "The Ring of Amasis," a tale "edited" by Owen Meredith, which is the pseudonym of Robert Bulwer Lytton, son of the novelist, and a poet of some repute. This story is grotesque and fanciful; a love story which will not fail to interest those who like the peculiarly intense poetry of the author.

"Does the Bible sanction American Slavery?" is the title of the latest essay of Goldwin Smith, Professor of History at Oxford, England, republished by Severs and Francis of Cambridge, Massachusetts. It is a brief, clear, and masterly exposition of the whole subject. And if the men at the South, who muddle their brains about the "Christianity" of slavery, could read and understand this short and trenchant work of a most accomplished scholar and noble Englishman, they would not fire another shot for the "divine" institution. This pamphlet of Professor Smith's we especially commend to our readers, because Bistop Hopkins of Vermont, in a letter to Bishop Potter of Pennsylvania, announces that he shall, within a few months, publish "a full demonstration of the truth wherein I stand"—namely, that its a highly Christian business to breed babies for sale. A pleasing truth for a Bishop to stand upon! Let the Bishop comprehend the full scope of his work. He proposes to show that the Christian Church has always justified slavery, and his conclusion will be that Slavery is therefore a Christian institution. Does be know the little work called "Slavery in Christendom," by Patrice Larroque, formerly vector of the Academy of Lyons in France? Larroque, with perhaps as profound and extensive a scholarship as the Bishop of Vermont, laso declares that the Christian Church has always approved slavery. But his conclusion is very different from the Bishop's. "Does the Bible sanction American Slavery?" Bishop of Vermont, also declares that the Christian Church has always approved slavery. But his conclusion is very different from the Bishop's. It is that it is not a true Church! He declares that slavery and "dogmatic Christianity" rise and fall together. And while he says plainly that Christ habitually taught a humanity which is the utter condemnation of slavery, he asserts that those principles have never been practiced by the Church! It will be seen that the Bishop thus enters upon a tolerably wide field. But to every simple Christian heart, which is more anxious to hear what Christ said than what men say that he said, Goldwin Smith's little pamphlet is conclusive.

"The Union Generals," a work which G. W. Childs is preparing, will be the natural companion of every history of the war. It will be written by distinguished literary gentlemen, most of whom have made the rebellion a subject of special study. With its descriptive battle-pictures in the text, and its steel-plate portraits of the heroes, with maps, plans, and wood-cuts, it must be a very important addition to the history of the times. The publisher, Mr. Childs, would be very glad to receive any facts or verified incidents relative to the Generals or to the battles and sieges in which they may have been engaged. have been engaged.

"The Student's Repository" is the title of a modest periodical published at Spartanburg, Indiana, which is written and conducted by the students and friends of the Union Literary Institute, a society of colored persons. It is to be issued quarterly at fifty cents a year; and is worthy the interest of all Americans who wish that all men in this country should have fair play. Many of the articles in the first number are naturally crude and experimental, but the tone of the work is earnest and manly. A brief paper by the editor, "What shall be done with the Negro?" written in 1860, is a very simple and conclusive statement of "What shall be done with the Negro?" written in 1800, is a very simple and conclasive statement of the wisdom of doing the best rather than the worst with him. In the opening article a few remarks show a quiet good sense, which is worthy the careful consideration of every coloned man. "If we as a race ever become educated, elevated, and respected, we have got to do the work ourselves. No one else can do it for us. We must prove to the white man that we are as susceptible of improvement as he is."

ARMY AND NAVY TEEMS.

Lieutenant-Colonel Lloyd D. Waddeel, of the Eleventh Regiment Bilinois Volunteers, who served with distinction at Fort Donelson, Silloih, and Vicksburg, and was for a long time Chief of Staff for Major-General M*Pines sow, has been officially announced as Provest Marshal of the Post of Vicksburg.

the Pear of Visionary

Brigadier-General Rupes Kane has been composined Minister Resident at Rome, and accept the appointment, his acceptance to take effect immediately. The mission becomes vasant by the return and resignation of the Hon.
Buarcurous, of New York, the recent incumbent, General King turned the command of his division in the Army of the Profonance over to General Microgar Comocana.

Major J. W. Asser, of the largueer cope, her been consoned upon the staff of Major-General Gilmon. He will have the department of records and topographical surveys under his control. Major Asser is an old army officer, and served for a long time upon the staff of Major-General Baxas.

General Banks.

The well-extract star has been conferred upon Colonel J.

W. THREE. That offiner is now a Brigadis-General, continuing, however, to serve as Chief of the Staff and Chief of Artillery.

Colonel Draunson, formerly Assistant Adjustus-General on General Hookstafe staff, has been assigned to the command of the convenience amp, vice Colonel General, Flowers.

Lieuteuant Disosway, Provost Marshal of Williams-burg, Vlighila, was shot on 14th October by Private BOVLE, of the First New York Mounted Rilles; and a day or two before Private BLAKE stabled Private REDSON, both of the same organization.

of the same organization.

Colonel PARROWILL, of the Second Wisconsin Regiment, arrived in Washington last week, having recovered from the effects of his wound, received at Gethysburg, by which he lost an arm. He is now about to resign his commission and assume the duties of Secretary of State of Wisconsin, for which he is a candidate as a War Democrat.

Colonel Cosean Bakers, First Indiann Cavalry, and Colonel E. A. Parsorrs, First Ohio Volunteers, have been detailed to superintend the volunteer recruiting service in their respective States. Hitherto none but officers of the regular army have been assigned to this duty.

regular army have been assigned to this duty.

Colonel Lucrus Franchizot of the Second Wisconsin regiment, has been amount to the Second Wisconsin regiment, has been amount to the Second Wisconsin regiment, has been amount to the second with the state of Surgeon-General Hammon say that there is no donth the battle of Settyaburg.

The friends of Surgeon-General Hammon has tour of inspection to New Orleans, on his return from his tour of inspection to New Orleans, on the head of the burners.

Captains Cutture and Bennam, of General Amounts staff, have entired their duties. The remainder of the General's staff are at New Orleans. General Hamman's staff, however, will remain on duty for the present.

main on duty for the present.

Major-General Douglanday, who was recently ordered to the Department of the Gulf, remains in Washington awaiting further instructions. It is rumored that he is to be assigned to a different field.

awaiting further instructions. It is rumored that he is to be assigned to a different field.

A court-martial, cortposed of thirteen officers, under medical treatment, but who are capable of performing this comparatively light detry, has been appointed for the trial of military officers. Colonel Srows, of the One Hundred and Forty-ninth Pennsylvania Volunteers, is President of the court. A similar court, of which Colonel Warstys, The contract of the court of the court

Last week Major-General ATOUR assumed command of the Department of Washington. It is reported that this change is only a temporary one, caused by the illness of General HINXTENDAY, and that the latter will resume command as soon as his health will permit. His staff re-main in the performance of their duties at head-quarter, main in the performance of their duties at head-quarters. Lieutenants O'Doxavas and Luxe, of Colonel Raxge? Cavalty regiment, have been dismissed the service for drunkenness on duty.

Five officers were arrested at Washington on 17th for remaining in the city without authority, after their regiment had left for the front, and ordered to report under arrest to the Foroves Marchal General of the Army of the Fotomac. To show the expedition with which such matters are attended to, these officers were arrested in less than as hour after the telegram informing against them was reached.

Lieutenant-Commander BEARDSLEE has been det rom special duty in New York, and ordered to the DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

THERE has been since our last number went to press a great deal of manosuring, marching, and countermarching, by the hostile armies of the Potomac, and one small deavered to get between our army and Washinston, in twenty of the property of the Potomac, and one small deavered to get between our army and Washinston, in twenty of the property of the property of the property of the property of the cases where the property of the cases were roughly should-as described in the cases were roughly should-as described in the cases were roughly should-as described in the cases were roughly should-as administration of the cases of the property of the cases of the property of the cases of the property of the pro

THE BATTLE OF BRISTOE STATION.

HEAD-QUARTERS, ABUY OF THE PRODAG, OE 1, 1862.

The Major-General commanding amounces to the array that the rear-guard, consisting of the Second corps, was attacked yesterday, while marching by the flunk. The enemy after a spirited contest was repulsed, sking a fast-tery of five guns, two colors, and 450 prisoners. The skill and prompitude of Major-General Warren, and the gallantry and bearing of the different and soldings of the conders, are cuttiled to high carefully and the conders of the conders, are cuttiled to high carefully MAGOG GINERAL MANUE.

MAGOG GINERAL MANUE.

S. WILLIAMS, ASSISTAN Adjitant-General.

BURNSIDE'S ADVANCE.

General Burnside is reported by the robels to be advancing into Western Vinginia with fourteen thousand awardy, for the purpose of making a raid on the East Tennessee Railroad, and doubtless also intending the destruction of the great salt-works must Abingdon. They alknowledge that he had engaged and driven their forces, to Greenesstle, and theneway advancing on Abingdon. It of Greenesstle, and thene was advancing on Abingdon. He is also said to have organized three regiments of Tennessee "rengades," and that 4000 refugees were following his army.

THE ARMY OF THE CUMBERLAND. The following has been received at the head-quarters of the army: Major-General II. W. Halleck, General-in-Chief:

Major-General II. W. Halleck, General-in-Chiej:

Chartxosca, dot. 18, 1983.

The following dispatch has Just been received from Beigadier-General George Crook, commanding the Second Cavalry division, dated Rogerville, Jahahama, October 10, 1884.

Linave the honor to inform you that I have had three fightle with the enemy since I left the Sequatchie Valley, whiteping his wery hady seed time. The last battle ended at Farmington, Tennessee, where I fought Wheeler's entire command with only two brigades. Grow the Command of artillery, 1000 stand of cavalry arms, and 240 prisoners, hesides the wounde! As I puried at after the casely fromediately, I have not been able to ascertain the number under the property of the prope

REMOVAL OF ROSECRANS.

REMOVAL OF ROSECRANS.

General Researchs has been relieved from the command of the Army of the Cumberland; and Major-General Ulysses S. Grant aksec command of thet Department and of the Army of the Tennesses (Grant's old army), the Army of the Cumberland (Rosecrans's late army), and the Army of the Cumberland (Rosecrans's late army), and the Army of Kentucky (Burnside's). General Thomas, who fought so splendidly at Chicamanga, takes the immediate command vacated by General Rosecrans.

THE LOSSES AT CRICAMAUGA.

Complete official roturns from the infantry engaged in the battles of Chicamanga have been received, showing a total loss of 950 officers and 14,891 men. The losses or the cavalry will swell the grand total to about 16,000. Of 4,685 missing, 2,500 were wounded. Thirty-six pieces of artillery were lost and a few wagous.

SHELBY ROUTED.

SHELBY ROUTED.

St. Louis, Octobr 14, 1853.

Major-General H. W. Hallock, General-In-Chief*:

General Brown brought the rebels under Shelby to a decisive engagement yesterday. The fight was obtlinate, and lasted five hours. The rebels were finally completely routed and scattered in all directions, with the loss of all reast control and scattered in all directions, with the loss of all reast control of the second of Our troops are still pursuing the flying rebels.

J. M. SLORITEM, Major-General.

J. M. SLORITEM, Major-General.

OUR PRISONERS AT RICHMOND.

Lieutenant-Colonel Broderlick, of the First New Jorsey Cavalry, who was wounded and taken prisoner by the encury in the cavalry fight on the Repubanisoneck hast June, arrived at Washington on 19th from Richmond. Hiss are of the most remarkable character, and shendl induce the Government to initiate at once prompt measures for their relief. There are now confined at Richmond at least nine himsted officers and over ten thousand enlisted meaning the state of t

BRITISH CONSULS EXPELLED FROM THE SOUTH.

BIRTISH CONSULS EXPELLED FROM THE SOUTH, Jeff Davis has taken umbrage at the action of the Bittish Consuls in reference to foreigness enlisted in the army of the retel service, and has dismissed them 11 from the Confederacy. The Southern papers rejoice greatly at this covert. Some of them attribute the dismissal of ther Britanian that the service of the Britanian that the service of the Britanian that the service of the Britanian that the Britanian that the Confederacy—sa examplified in Lord Russell endings of the International Confederacy—sa examplified in Lord Russell mands, and a firmer confidence in the friendly interference of France is exhibited.

LOYAL PAPERS IN DIXIE.

Loyal papers are now published in Vicksburg, Mississippi; Knoxville, Tennessee; Natchez, Mississippi, and Little Rock, Arkansas.

Little Rock, Arkansan.

NOTE OF THE OHIO TROOPS.

Luder date of Chattanonga, October 14, General J. A. Gurdel scale the Sollewing to the Ohio State Organical. Gurdel scale the Sollewing to the Ohio State Organical. "Returns thus far of the Ohio voluntaer in the Ohio will be the Ohio the Ohio Tropic of the Ohio voluntaer of the Ohio Tropic organization of the Ohio Child on Volce at Ohio Child Ohio Tropic organization of the Ohio Child Ohio Tropic organization of the Ohio Child Ohio Ch

FOREIGN NEWS.

ENGLAND. SOUTHERN CLUBS.

SOUTHERN OLUBS.

The "Southern Club" of England and the "Central Association for the Recognition of the Southern States" have been formally amalgamated at Manchester into one society under the title of "The Southern Independence Association." Lord Wharmcliffe, the President, delivered a strong speech in favor of the recognition of the robel States by England

AN EARTHQUAKE.

AN EARTHQUAKE.
England has again been visited by an earthquake. It took place on Tuneday, October 6, between 4 and 6 celestin the merning, and was foll very generally. From 11:e-eroot, Hercford, and numerous other places, we have no counts of its having shaken the house. There seems to have been an upleaving of the earth from west to extra followed by an immediate subsidence, after which a load, rambling noise was heard.

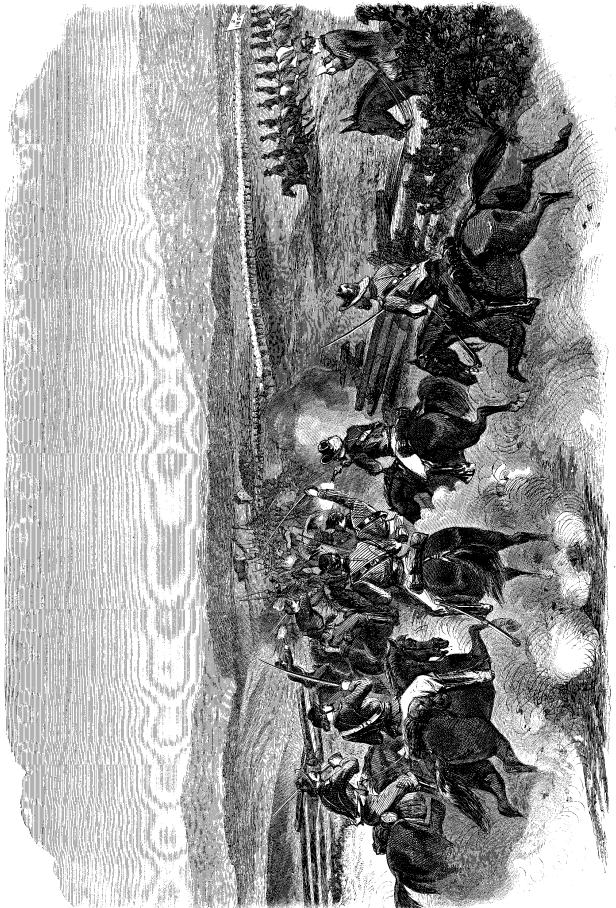

THE GREEK KING IN ENGLAND.

The King of the Greeks has arrived in England from St. Petershurg. Having visited Queen Victoria he was to go to Paris, and proceed from the Tuileries to Athens.

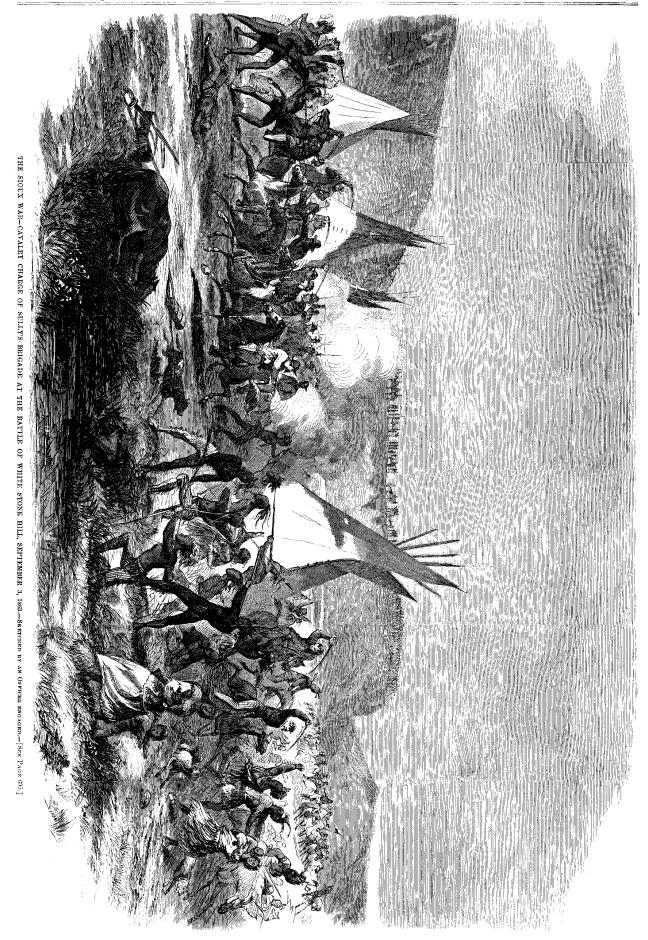

ATISTRIA.

AUSTRIA.

The Mexican deputation reached Miramer, the seat of the Archduko Maximilian, in great state from Vienna. Senor de Estrada made the tender of the crown to the Emperor elect in a lengthy address. He also presented the roll of the voles of the Chamber of Notables of Mexico, applendially engressed and inclosed in the head of a septro duke replied in a speech in which he formally set forth the conditions on which he will accept the crown, declaring that a monarchy could not be astisfactorly re-established in Mexico without the spontaneous consent of the whole nation. Having regard also to certain "dangeres" which the reached in Mexico without the spontaneous consent of the whole nation. Having regard also to certain "dangeres" which there is a special condition are fulfilled the Archduke infinites that he will accept the proffered crown, subject to the approval of his brother, the Emperor of Austria. In the ovent of buccoming monarch, the Archduke would "open the path of pregress" by giving "a constitution" to the cauntry of his adoption. He paid a compliment to the Emperor Napoleon.

THE ARMY OF THE CUMBERLAND-CHARGE OF THE FIRST WISCONSIN AND SECOND INDIANA CAVALRY ON THE REBELS, OCTOBER 2, 1853.—Serringd by Mr. Thronore R. Davis.—[Ser Pace 690.]

WHIFF.

Go back with me to an old New England village, as sleepy almost as a Dutch berg. I was about to lescribe it, but on the whole think I will not; per-Go back with me to an out a vew England strongs, as sleepy almost as a Dutch berg. I was about to lescribe it, but on the whole think I will not; perhaps you know the town, perhaps you were born here, or have uncles and cousins there. If you don't know any thing of the place, I doubt if I could wrest it away from time and distance, who now have it fast; yet some other day perhaps I will show it to you. I believe it is somewhere along the Sound, for it has a wharf, though not much use for that; the India trade never came that way, and the whalers have gradually gone to other ports, so that the piles are green with slime and not over-strong, and the warlenouses near by are getting forlors; but sometimes a vessel comes in, and then all the idlers about the village have an excitement.

The time was a Sunday, after the second service. The time was a Sunday, after the second service. In Deacon Hodges's keeping-room sat Miss Mahala Sievens, tailoress. She was given to the weakness of talking about every body, for if people strack themselves up they must expect to be seen. She had dropped in now, full of something to tell; but of course she hung back—no use at all to hurry her. She sat, trotting one foot and sewing an imaginary jacket, prickly and unvielding as any bur. No favors asked, large or small; you can't get on a day without me and I know it, was what she said to the world of the village—all the world the village have on cared any thing about.

"You see, Miss Hodges, I clipped it right up here fast as my legs could carry me, fear somebody else'd tell if first; an' now what with the heat an' the sarmon an' my general flustrin', I do believe I've forgot what 'twas."

"Yes 2" suggested the Deacon's wife, the New England "yes," meaning any thing and every thing. Here it was a gentle stroke of Mahaly's plannage tog oon.

"I guess it wasn't of sevy much consequence," "weathly every thing.

plumage to go on.
"I guess it wasn't of very much consequence," smoothly remarked Dorr, the Deacon's pretty daughter. "If it wasn't a lie, you know, you wouldn't have forgot it.

have forgot it."

Great spinsterly indignation. "That's you, Dorr Hodges, all over. That's right, keep on knettin', it'll come right handy bineby when you het o't keer for yourself, and when you're gray's them socks in your lap you'll wish you hedn't. Them that smuffs when they're young allers snuffs when they're old, I tell 'em.'"

"Never mind, Mahaly; Dorr was only in play,"

"Well, well, it's no odds, but what's bred in the bone will come out on the skin, an' there ain't no young folks nowadays; they git ahead of their elders. I was just goin' to say something 'bont Frank Handy, he that used to sheep round Dorr—what on earth was it now?"

Toss of the head on the part of the young lady. "Wish somebody'd show me how to toss my head. Comes nat'ral, does it, or do ye hev to practice?"

"Guess was never had any practice," said Sam. Great spinsterly indignation. "That's you, Dorn nead. Comes nat rai, does it, or do ye nev to practice?"

"Guess you never had any practice," said Sam, the "terrible" child that fulfilled for that house the saying about deacons families.

"Sam!" said Mrs. Hodges, with some peculiar tone that meant a great deal.

"Well, Dorr, toss your head, but mind not toss once too many times. I heerd of a girl that tossed a pail o' milk off her head once, an' 'tain't all straight sticks grows in the woods by a long sight, though that ain't what I was goin' to say about Frank Handy—"

"You needn't trouble yourself to say any thing at all about Frank Handy to me," 'retorted Dorr; "I don't want to see him or hear any thing about him."

"I don't want to see him."
"H'm," sniffed the sagacious Mahaly. "Well,
"B'm," sniffed the sagacious Mahaly. "Well, got back—I believe now that's just what I run in to say; I thought 'twas gone from me sure; Mr.
Handy's aboard; but then, of course, he won't show himself harn."

msoif here."
"You don't!" tersely remarked Mrs. Hodges.
"I do, though; the folks was a crowdin' do the wharf when I first see em an'run. Y "I do, though; the folis was a crowdin down to the wharf when I first see em an' run. You needst jump, Sam; it's all over by this time. It's most too bad for Frank, now—Mr. Handyl, I mean —the folks doesn't want to see him, a'ter a two-years' v'yage. Well, good-day, sorry you're so spiteful, Dorr; wait till you're gray an' knet socks or a livin', then folks' Il bar it of ye when ye snap. What makes your cheeks so red, child? Got burst in the sun? Should say so, if you weren't dark complect nat'rally."
Now, generally speaking, there is nothing very soothing to the nerves or musical to the ear in the shutting of a doer, especially if it happens to be shut rather spitefully; but I am mistaken if the slam of the door after Mahaly was not the pleasantest sound Dorr kad heard that day. "Well, I don't care, now," said she, with an emphasis on the last word.

"I wouldn't mind it, dear," said Mrs. Hodges.
"Do you think so?" asked Dorr, with eyes and lips both. (I don't know what she meant.)

lips both. (I don't know what she meant.)

"No, I guess not; cloth that's well combed always has the smoothest nap in the end. Never mind Mahaly, Dorr; you vexed her or she wouldn't talked quite so bad. Nobody sets much by what she says, because she's always doing just so."

"I'm going up stairs, mother, "said Dorr. Mrs. Hodges took up a volume of 'Discourses," as if she had not had enough that day, and it is to be supposed she read them, though who shall answer for the editication?

Dorr retreated to her own room and flups herself into her chair that her own flugers had cush-self into her chair that her own flugers had cush-self into her chair that her own flugers had cush-self into her chair that her own flugers had cush-self into her chair that her own flugers had cushself into her chair that her own fingers had cush-iened, but somehow the room didn't look pleasant. ioned, but somehow the room didn't look pleasant. Every thing was in place just as she left to go to meeting—the "things" were not tossed about in disorderly evidence that there had been a toilet made there—yet it didn't seem quite right. Why the string of shells that hung over her little mirror had a different look, and swung back and forth in the wind as if they were alive. They were bekoning her attention. She caught hold of them and held them still, but they went to swinging again as she let them go, as if they knew some-body had got back, and suddenly remembered the swaying bosom of the sea; she set the chairs in order, pulled the curtains a little, shut the blinds a little more, but it wouldn't do. It seemed as if she had gone into somebody else's roun; so she glided down stairs to the keeping-room and got a spy-glass that was kept there—a rare treasure in those days—and ran back with it to the garret.

The garret window was an old look-out of hers, where she used to knit in the afternoons, and where she did all her day-dreaming. A bill shut off the wharf from sight, but there was the top of a mast on it, looking as if it had sprouted out of the hill; and by leaning well out of the window Dorr could see just the stern of a little black hall. That was the Esmeralda, then; the sails were furled, and of course they had all gone ashore before this time. How queer that that old ship had really been off so far, way out in the South Pacific, out on the edge of her map, where the islands were sprinkled about so thick that it must be hard to sail without running against some of them; it must spell spicy as well as greasy, and Dorr wondered. Did it go to Italy? Her name was Italian, Eudora, grandmother's fancy—no, that couldn't be. But the Esmeralda had been gone two years, while she had been staying quietly at home helping mother do the work and keeping sunshine in the house all the time, father said, and Frank had been shut up in that black box, sailing along day after day in the hot sun, never getting any word from home all the time, father said, and Frank had been shut up in that black box, sailing along day after day in the hot sun, never getting any word from home all the time, father said, and Frank had been shut up in that black box, sailing along day after day in the hot sun, never getting any word from home all the time, father said, and Frank had been shut up in that black box, sailing along day after day in the hot sun, never getting any word from home all the time, fat

And he did. Yes, he did. He came the very next afternoon, swinging himself up the hill with long strides, as if a kind of half-reluctance held him back. The clover-heads nodded a welcome to him, and the butter-cups turned a richer yellow; at least he would have the next he had not be head. to min, and the outer-days turned a richer visi-low; at least he would have thought so had not his handsome face been shaded with a wonder how he would be received. Clover and daisy would come again next summer, but if the flower he had loved to think of did not bloom for him, what was all other fragrance? He could not quite say—is it ever an easy thing?-

"If she be not fair to me, What care I how fair she be?"

all other fragrance? He could not quite say—is it ever an easy thing?—

"If she be not fair to me, What care I how fair she be?"

What might not have happened in two years? They had seemed so long while they were going, and now they were gone they seemed only a little while; why he only went away yestorday, every thing looked so natural. He remembered his long acquaintance with Dorr, and how they had quarreled time and again until he generally took the blame and went down into the vailey of humiliation, and then they were better friends than ever. She had risen from the horizon of his life till now she filled him with light like the sun, but possibly he had sunk out of sight with her. He had thought of her all the while and of this very day, and now the time he had waited for was come—the time was there, right present before him, and it made him tremulous and half shrinking to face it. How would she meet him? Two years, without either of them knowing meanwhile that the other was alive! She must have changed a good deal in that time; what kind of a change? It might be only in herself, or it might be toward him, though there nover was any thing between them. Two years ago she was young, only sixteen, and if— Here he brought this current of his thoughts to an abrupt stop. But it seemed to him that the whrm sunlight of the afternoon, the locusts with their simmerring notes in the air, the clouds that begun to sink upon the west and loss their golden glow in the sea, and of expectation, and all eagerly watching him.—Heart in his month? More than that—all over him—from crown to sole, through every nerve and fibre his heart throbbed and tingled as he moved. But while seem to formal—one forgets customs on shipboard: but he chose the former, and so walked in. It is such an ay gates for two years. He followed the path round to the door, and stopped to consider whether to knock. If he should go right in it might seem too formal—one forgets customs on shipboard: but he chose the former, and so walked in. It is seem to form who started in spite of herself; then gave him her hand, which, albeit it was hot and red from the hand, which, albeit it was hot and red from the merciless flat-irons, he pressed as meaningly as he dared, and thought he had a little echo of a touch in return. "She didn't expect me, but her mother did," thought he, in which he had the thing exactly reversed, but no wonder; for since Eve was fooled by a he I think les frammes have been very inscrutable, and have had their revenge all along by fooling les hommes.

"When did you get back?"
"Now pretend you don't know. Yesterday."
"Well, I did see a ship come in after meeting was out. Did you have a pleasant voyage?"
"Very pleasant after I got into the home waers, so that I thought I could smell home in every was the target from this way."

breeze that came from this way, Dorr raised her eyebrows and was going to whistle—an old trick she had. "How does home smell?

"I can't tell you exactly till you go away from it; but it's good to think of after a hard day's Whaling is hard work, I do suppose," said

Mrs. Hodges,
"It'll do for exercise. I see there is work to be

"It'll do for exercise. I see there is work to be done on shore too."

"Oh yes indeed," answered Dorr, enthusiastically; "here's my ironing, you see," taking a fresh iron from the fire. "I wish we didn't have ironing to do in the hot weather."
Mrs. Hodges had finished her sponge, and had set it away to rise, and found she had work to do in another part of the house; so she went out, without heeding a look from Dorr, whose back was just then turned toward "him."

"I think you didn't expect to see me," he said, by way of experiment.

"I think you didn't expect to see me," he said, by way of experiment.
"Why, did Mahaly tell you I said I didn't want to see you?" cried Dorr, without thinking that she had made a slip.
"No, Mahaly didn't tell me; Miss Eudora Hodges told me; but I don't want to believe her, and I don't think I do."
Dorr made no answer, but her cheeks burned as she glanced sideways at him; and they were silent a little while.
"What am I now?"

as she glanced sideways at him; and they were silent a little while.

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"Just before I went away you called me Mr. Handy. What am I now?"

"Well, you haven't had your name changed, I suppose. See there, how you are raveling my nice ironing-cloth, Mr. Handy!"

"So I am. I beg pardon. I was thinking of some other things that are raveling to waste."

"I see you're just as sober as you used to be, and you talk just in the same way."

"And I am just as dull too, you would say."

"No, I didn't mean that at all."

"But you though! If? I am sober, Dorr, because I don't see any thing to laugh at just now. And then I've been away two years, and haven't

And then I've been away two years, and haven't talked much in that time; and perhaps I've been a little restive withal to get back; and now I am back we two are just as stiff as if we never met before."

oetore."
"But—but you're grown so, and look so different, I'm most afraid of you."
"Yes, but that isn't the way to get over it, to be afraid."
"You're the state of the way to get over it, to be afraid."

be afraid."

"You're the one that's stiff, I'm sure, with your long words and long face too," said Dorr, feeling quite vexed.

"But I hoped you would be ! little glad to see me after all this time."

"Well, I haven't said I wasn't glad."

"What was it you told me just now without meaning it?"

"Oh! but you said a minute ago you didn't believe that."

lieve that. "I don't; but still you don't seem quite as I

'I see you are bound to quarrel. I didn't know

"I see you are bound to quarrel. I didn't know before that going to sea made people so rough."

"I am seodiding—forgive me; but we won't quarrel, Dorr. What do you suppose I have been thinking of all these two years, while I have been counting the days and wondering if I should find—"

Here an interruption. Dorr had been casting about for an expedient, and she caught at the first and the worst one. "Ab-II" she cried, duncing back from the table and flirting her fingers in the air; then, catching her holder, she selzed the fiaction in a new place; but this time she really did what she pretended before—burnt her—and so let go her hold when she had lifted it fairly up. Down went the heavy iron thud upon the table, then pitched to the floor, striking her ankle violently a: it fell. No scream; but she gave a finsh and a catch of her breath with the acute pain, and would have fallen had he not caught her from the floor with equal strength and gentleness; and before she with equal strength and gentleness; and before she have fallen had he not caught her from the floor with equal strength and gentleness; and hefore she could utter a syllable he had started for the stairs with her, with such a firm look on his month that she did not remonstrate. He had not forgotten the way, and he carried her directly to her room, and put her down gently without a word; but he could not help touching her lips with his, in their happy nearness, and was rewarded by a look and the whispered word he had been longing to hear—"Frank!" Then he left her and went away.

The ankle was slow at healing-far too slow for Dorr's patience; but she said to herself, "It's just good enough for me. I'd no business to be trying such a trick at all; and I should have known bet-such a trick at all; and I should have known bef-ter than to try such a stupid one as that. Acho away; I deserve the whipping." And so the an-kle kept giving repentant and monitory tringes. Frank I landy walked away in a sort of glow. His call had ended rather abruptly, to be sure; but had he not held her a moment in his arms, that had been yearning for her over all the track-less miles of soa? And had she not called him by his name? He almost wished the ankle never would get well, and that he might carry her in his arms forever; and then he was inclined to bless the knowing flat-iron, that had come in to take his part. Surely a fairy—one of the New England the knowing flat-iron, that had come in to take his part. Surely a fairy—one of the New England sort, that never can work with any thing less real than flat-irons and broomsticks—must have taken hold of it just that minute. Why, so indeed she did; and she was lying up stairs now with a bruised ankle! And then he accused himself of having caused it all, and was miserable again.

He was permitted to sit with Dorr much of the time, though it is questionable whether it gave him more pleasure than pain. She was very gracious now. She smiled on him, and said the hurt was not much matter, for it gave her a chance to be idle, and kept the neighbors from interrupting her; she heard him read to her by the hour, made him tell sea-yarns, and let him feed her with the jellies and other niceties which considerate friends sent in. It was impossible for him to understand it all. Strong, earnest, direct character that he was, he could not understand how any hody could act any thing or hide any thing; and whether she really cared for him and enjoyed being with him, or was only doing it to please him, was the question he could not answer and only sike could. But it was somehow not easy to ask it just then; whenever he began to skirt enjoyed being with him, or was only doing it to please him, was the question he could not answer and only she could. But it was somehow not easy to ask it just then; whenever he began to skirt about the tender edges of his secret Dorr took alarm, real or pretended. She would give him an appealing look as much as to say, "You can't take advantage of my helpless position here;" and then another look would threaten, "If you do I shall go to sleep;" and so the words got no further than his throat.

Several weeks slipped away. The wind had blown the spicy scents out of the Esmeralda, and the cables creaked her impatience at being tied to shore. The moderate cargo had been discharged, and supplies and ballast taken in; and the craw were getting ready to say another good-by to the lasses they left on shore. One day Frank Handy went to the house from a direction that took him through a piece of woods, and while in this he suddenly started to find that, while he was going to the house, the house had come out to him. He met Dorr picking her way along with a polished, cushioned, brass-ornamented crutch. On seeing him she started too; but did not resist when he gently took the crutch away and somehow substituted his own arm for it.

"How could I have thought you were coming this way?" said she. "Do you generally come so?"
"Sometimes. But if I had been a little later I so?"

"Sometimes. But if I had been a little later I should have found my patient gone."
"And then the doctor would have caught it. I suppose mother! I sooid now; but the afterneon was too lovely and I feel so strong."
"I am very glad to see you out; but I could almost find it in my heart to be sorry too, for I have seen more of you, and now I must go away again in a day or two. How shall I think of you after I am gene?"

after I am gone?"
"I don't know I'm sure. Excuse me, there's a

after I am gone?"

"I don't know I'm sure. Excuse me, there's a hop-vine I want some of."

Ho bent the vine over steadily, broke off the bells, and, sitting down beside her, began to plait them with a sailor's dexterity and neatness. There was a sort of dreaminess in watching itse motions of his fingers, and neither of them spoke till the wreath was finished; then with a sudden toes he threw it over her head, and with the same motion caught both her hands in his.

"There is no use in trying to conceal the truth," he said; "you have seen in my eyes long ago what I am going to tell you with my lips. You know as seen in my eyes long ago what I am going to tell you with my lips. You know have her her hands in the better part of me here. You do not know how you have been in my thoughts till I can hardly see or hear any thing that does not remind me of you, and I do not suppose you know how much I mean when I tell you now that I love you. See, Dorr! I could hold your hands here if I chose; but I can not hold them through life without your consent. I let them go, then! will you put them in mine again?"

Her hands lay in her lap.

"Will you not? Mine are waiting."

Her hands lay in her lap.

"Will you not? Mine are waiting."
Her hands did not stir, and there was no sound except the wind rustling through the leaves.

"I am very sorry, but I can not be to you what you wish," she said.
What sword is so keen as cruel words? Her eyes were averted from the earnest look of his, but she felt a shiver through the strong arm that leve tenching her wrist.

eyes were averted from the earnest look of his, but she felt a shiver through the strong arm that lay tonching her wrist.

"Listen, Dorr. I am going away—that is certain; and also that you are to say how I shall go. I am somewhat hard and stern now: shall I go without your love to soften and humanize me? There are temptations every where, and I have mine, which are not trifles: will you make them stronger, or will you arm me with this hope to resist them with? Will you make me doubt God, Dorr?—for I believe I am near that. I never can forget all the times we have been together, or even to-day: shall I think of them all as part of the happiness of my life, or will you arn them against me with the stings of furies?"

She turned her eyes to meet his, then looked away again, and did not speak.

"I am older than you," he resumed, "and I am a man, as strong as men generally are; but, Dorr, now I am dependent on your will. Why do you suppose your sex has this power given them over ment?"

"I hope you may find some one who will use it suppose your sex has this power given them over men?"

"I hope you may find some one who will use it as you wish. I must go back now."

"No, you shall not. You are not just to either of us. You injure me by only half believing what I say, and you injure yourself by doubting your own power. I have not deserved this, and I will not put up with it."

Dorr began to look black. "I don't know why you should say such things to me."

"I have a right to say them. You know better than I how much or how little you meant by all the encouragement you have given me; and you know—I do not—whether you have not known of my love this great while. One of us has changed, for I do not recognize the girl I used to know. Have I walted all this time in vain, Dorr? Will you send me away quite empty? Think a little, and remember what you are deciding."

llave I watted all into time in vain, Dorr; you send me away quite empty? Think a little, and remember what you are deciding."

He waited. The leaves rustled cheerily; the locusts hummed in their old way; all the sounds of the woods kept on as usual; and the careless equirrels skipped across the path and looked at them. Tick, tick, went the minutes on which he had hung his hopes, and when he looked at her there was no change in her fixed expression—part indifference, part vexation.

"I see it now," said he, bitterly: "this is my first knowledge of coquetry, and your sex are welcome to it as their special prerogative. You have worn me till you were tired of 1/10, and now you throw me away as you will that wreath when it has faded, and care as much for one as the other."

"You talk now as if you loved me, certainly."

"Would I talk so if I did not? I ask you honestly, and with all the love of my soul, to be my wife, and help me reach a better height of manhood than I can ever reach without you; and you throw wife, and nelp me reach a better height of manhood than I can ever reach without you; and you throw my love in my face as if I were made for your anusement. Now I see my duty before me. I will not be a slave if I can help it, and I am going to think it over, and put you out of my heart if I can."

will not be a stave it I can help it, and I am gong to think it over, and put you out of my heart if I can."

Dorr was really angry. "Will you help me up. Mr. Handy, or hand me my crutch?"

He obeyed, and went with her to her father's gate without another word, and left her there with a simple good-by, while she went to her room, from which she came to supper with such a face that Sam stared and kept staring.

On the next day Sam came roshing into the house like a tornado that had just slipped its halter, bringing with him three things—a pair of unusually large and round eyes, a bitten finger, and a lamentable face, and called on Dorr to go out and see what there was in the yard. Remonstrance on her part—she was busy, but Sam insisted. "Such an ugly little beauty!" he said, and so she went. In the grass close to the yard fence there was a cage in which was one of the gaudiest of parrots. Dorr went back to the house indiguant. "Of all the screeching, hateful things in the world, a parrof'sthe worst!" And she would not let Sam move the cage or go near it; so there the unlucky bird staid all day, and bit and screamed to his heart's content.

But at nightfall I suppose she relented, for one who was on the watch might have seen that the cage was brought into the house. A folded piece of paper was attached to it, and Dorr read:

"Since yesterday I think I was harsh to you. Forgive me: but he year was even.

of paper was attached to it, and Dorr read:

"Since yesterday I think I was harsh to you. Forgive me; but my heart was sore.

"You once said to me that you should like a parrot. I came upon this one a number of months age, and so I brought him home with me, and now I leave him for you.
His education has been saidy neglected, and he can not talk much as yet; perhaps you can teach him. I might have slit his longe with the haif of a sixpence you gave me so long age, but for some reason I did not. I will not ay, Keep him for my sake, but if you are ever thred of him
I have never heard that the bird is peculiarly tenseions of life.

I have never heard that the bird is pseudiarly tenacions of life.

"I fear I shall not be able to put you out of my heart, orr. It is sad and pitful that you should forget, who have no need to, and I, who shall be tortured till I do, can out. If I have written in something like grim pleasantry forgive me, for bitterness will come semestimes, though not sgaints you if I can help it. Good-by, and let me be your friend. FRANK."

against you if I can help it. Good-by, and let me be your friend.

At the same time that Dorr read this and dropped a tear on it, the impatient Essenvalda glided out of the harbor and stood to some sets and up of the harbor and stood to some sets and up of the harbor and stood to some sets and up of the harbor and stood to some sets and up of the harbor and stood to some sets and up of the harbor and stood to some sets and up of the harbor and stood to some sets and all his efforts at speech ended in an odd mixture of two or three consonants which sounded more like "whith" than any thing else; so that was given as his name.

Time went on month by month, the Esmeralda creeping on her venturesome course somewhere on the lower edge of the world, and Dorr going quietly on with her old life. New England is even now very uniform in its domestic life from day to day, and was much more so in the old times. Dorr probably was content, or if she was not, she never hinted it or showed it, but went on with her duffes, taking care also of her strange pet, native of regions where Nature has made life appeal to the eyer ather than the ear; but sometimes when she looked at him she thought of his distant owner, and possibly felt a touch of some kind of regret.

One day there was an unusual screaming heard.

possibly felt a touch of some kind of regret. One day there was an unusual screaming heard. The cat had made a demonstration against the cage, and when Dorr picked it up and replaced it on the hook there was a piece of white paper lying on the floor. She was puzzled at first, as she required the writing; then she concluded it must have been hidden, accidentally or purposely, between the two boards of the bottom of the cage, and the fall had jolted it out. It read:

and the min man parised it out. It read:
"It forgot to tell you that there is a sort of magic about this parrot. Some one bestowed it on him—a Malay wizard, I bellews. He can speak if he has any thing important enough to say; and if you ever wish really to know about me, where I am, and what I am doing and thinking, if you will sak him seriously be will tell you. Never that he will tell you telly desire to know, and then believe that he will tell you the truth. Again, and for the last time.

that he will tell you the truth. Again, and for the last time,

"Nonsense!" was Dorr's thought; and she put the note away. During the afternoon she was thinking of it occasionally, however. She had an irresistible inclination to think over all she had known of her rejected lover in past years. How could he write her such a story as that and think she would believe it? Did going to sea make a man superstitious? Pshaw! Yet, indeed, she would be to know where he was, and it would be nice if the parrot could tell.

When it was coming dusk she found herself alone in the house: for her father and Sam had not come in from work, and her mother had stepped out for an hour. Perhaps the soft twilight influenced her, and she went up to the eage, which hung at the window. The bird had dozed, but she woke him up and looked at him, thinking it over. She sat down in the window and let him out, and he flew around her as he was accustomed to do, crawflew around her as he was accustomed to do, crawing his single odd word.

"Where is be?" cried she. "Does he think fabout me yet? Does he know how sorry I am I yo used him so, because I love him?"

The parrot did not answer a word. Of course he couldn't; how foolish! He only flew round and round her. Finally he settled on her head; but he was rubbing her hair with his beak and claws in a very unusual way. The touch was strange, very strange; the bird was surely possessed. The pressure on her head grew stronger and changed, and the claws were transformed into a pair of hands that suddenly slid down over her ears to her waist, where they held her in a firm clasp, and—clasp, and—

"Yes!" said Frank Handy. "I did not go in

"1est same rains famo,"

"Yes?" cried Dorr, with a blush and a start,
Then sinking her head lower and lower, till it rested naturally on his shoulder and hid itself there, she murmured:

"Ob, Frank! I was only talking to Whiff!"

CHIAPA CHOCOLATE.

CHIAPA CHOCOLATE,

Dom Bernard de Salazar, Bishop of Chiapa, Moxico, had the misfortune to live in a perpetual state of contest with the ladies of his flock, and the subject of dispute was chocolate. It was a brave struggle—bravely fought on both sides.

The prelate fulminated all the censures at his disposal in his ecclesiastical armory; the ladies, on their side, made use of all the devices and intrigues stored in their little heads.

Now the great subject of altereation was as follows: The ladies of Chiapa were so addicted to the use of checolate that they would neither hear low mass, nuch sess high mass, nor a serron, without drinking cups of steaming diocolate, and eating preserves, brought in on trays by servants during the performance of divine service, via drowned in the continual clatter of cups and clink of spoons; besides, the floor, after service, was drowned in the continual clatter of cups and clink of spoons; besides, the floor, after service, was stream with hose-don papers, and stained with splashes of the spilled beverage.

How could that be devotion which was broken in upon by the tray of delicacies! How could a preacher warm with his subject while his andience were passing to each other sponge-cake and crack-nels!

vere passing to each other sponge-cake and crack-

Bishop Salazar's predecessor had seen this abuse grow to a head without attempting to correct it, believing such a task to be hopeless. The new prelate was of better metal. He commenced by perlate was of better metal. He commenced by recommending his dengy, in their private ministrations, to urge its abandonment. The priests entreated in vain. "Yery well," said the Bishop, then I shall preach about it." And so he did. At first his discourse was tender and persuasive, but his voice was drowned in the clicker of cups and saucers. Then he waxed indignant. "What. have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? or despise ye the clurch of God, and shame them that have not? What shall I say to you?" The ladies looked up at the pulpit with unimpassioned eyes while slipping their chocolate, then wiped their lips and put out their hands for some comfits.

s. The bishop's voice thrilled shriller and louder--he looked like an Apostle in his godly indignation.

Crash! down went a tray at the cathedral door, and every one looked round to see whose cups were broken.

oken. "What was the subject of the sermon?" asked "What was the subject of the sermon?" asked masters of their apprentices every Sunday for the next month, and the ready answer came, "Oh! chocolate again!" After a course on the guilt of church desecration, the Bishop found that the ladies were only confirmed in their evil habits.

Reluctantly, the Bishop had recourse to the only method open to bim, an excommunication, which was accordingly affixed to the catherial gates. By this he decreed that all persons showing willful disobedience to his injunctions, by drinking or disobedience to his injunctions, by drinking of eating during the celebration of divine service eating during the celebration of divine service, whether of mass (high or low), litanies, benediction, or vespers, should be ipso facto excommunicate; be deprived of participation in the sacraments of the Church, and should be denied the rite of burial, if dying in a state of impenitence. This was felt to be a severe stroke; and the ladies sent a deputation to Gage and the Prior of the Dominien monastery of St. James, entreating them to use their utmost endeavors to bring about a reconciustion and effect a compromise; a compromise which was to consist in Monseignor's revoking his interdict and in their—continuing to drink chocolate.

which was to consist in Monseignor's revoking his interdict and in their—continuing to drink chocolate.

Gage and the Prior undertook the delicate office, and sought the Bishop.

Salazar received them with dignity, and listened calmly to their entreaties. They urged that this was an established custom; that ladies required humoring; that they were obstinate—the prelate nodded his head; that their digestions were delicate, and required that they should continually be imbibing nourishment; that they had taken a violent prejudice against him, which could only be overcome by his yielding to their whims; that if he persisted, seditions would arise which would endanger the cause of true religion; and, finally, the prelate's life was menaced in a way rather hinted at than expressed.

"Enough, my sons!" said the Bishop, with composure: "the souls under my jurisdiction must be in a perilous condition when they have forgotten that there must be obselience in little matters as well as in great: whether I am assaulting an established custom or a new abuse matters little. It is a bad habit; it is sapping the foundations of reverence and morality. God's house was built for worship, and for that alone. My children must come to His temple either to learn or to pray. Learn they will not, for they have forgotten how to pray: prayer they are nunsed to, for the highest act of adoration the Church can offer is only regarded by them as an opportunity for the gradication of their appetites. You recommend me to yield to their vagaries. A strange shepherd would be be who let his sheep lead him; a wondr-us captain who was dictated to by his soldiers. As for the cause of true religion being endangered, I judge differently. Religion is endangered, but it is by children's disoledience to their spiritual legislators, and by their own perversity. I am sorry for you, my sons, that you should have undertaken a fruitless office; but you may believe me that nothing shall induce me to swerve from the course which I deem advisable. My personal safety, you hink, is endargered; my life, I answer, is in my Master's hands, and I value it but as it may advance His glory." vance His glory

When the ladies heard that their request had been refused, they treated the excommunication with the greatest contempt, scotling at it publicly, and imbibing chocolate in church, "on principle," more than ever; "Just," says Gage, "drinking in church as a fish drinks in water."

church as a fiel drinks in water."

Some of the canous and priests were then stationed at the cathedral doors to stop the ingress of the servants with cups and chocolate-poix. They had received injunctions to remove the drinking and eating vessels, and suffer the servants to come empty-handed to church. A violent struggle entended in the porch, and all the ladies within rushed in a body to the doors, to assist their domestics. The poor clerks were utterly routed and thrown in confusion down the steps, while, with that edious well-known clink, clink, the trays came in as before.

Another move was requisite, and on the follow-Another move was requisite, and on the rollow-ing Sunday, when the ladies came to church, they found a band of soldiers drawn up outside, ready to barricade the way against any inroad of choco-late; a stern determination was depicted on the faces of the military—that if cups and saucers did enter the sacred edifice it should be over their corpses.

The foremost damsels halted, the matrons stood The foremost damsels halted, the matrons stood still, the crowd thickened, but not one of the pretty angels would set foot within the cathedral precincts: a busy whisper circulated, then a huse nesued, and with one accord the ladies trooped off to the monastery churches, and there was no congregation that day at the Minster.

The brethren of S. Dominic and of S. Francis were nothing loth to see their chaples crowded with all the rank and fashion of Chiapa; for with beloids a new monarcofficient and the published with the lotter and man and the second sections of the second sec the ladies came money-offerings, and they blinked at the chocolate cups for—a consideration. This was allowed to continue a few Sundays only. our was allowed to continue a few Sundays only our friend the bishop was not going to be shelved thus, and a new manifesto appeared, inhibiting the friears from admitting parishioners to their chapels, and ordering the latter to frequent their cathedral. The regulars were forced to obey; not so the ladies—they would go when they pleased, quothal; and for a month and more not one of them went to church at all. The prelate was in sore trouble: he boped that his froward charge would eventually return to the path of duty, but he hoped on from Sunday to Sunday in vain.

On Saturday evening the old bishop was more

Sunday to Sunday in vain.

On Saturday evening the old bishop was more than usually anxious; he paced up and down his library, meditating on the sermon he purposed preaching on the following morning—a fruitless task, for he knew that no one would be there but a few poor Mexicans. Sick at heart, he all but wished that he had yielded for peace' sake, but conscience told him that such a course would have been wrong; and the great feature in Salazar's character was his rigid sense of duty. He leaned on his elbows and looked out of a window which opened on a lane between the palace and the cathedral.

"Silly boy!" muttered the prelate. "Lnis is arai. "Silly boy!" muttered the prelate. "Luis is "Suly boy!" mutered une prelate. "Luns as always prattling with that girl. I thought better of the fair sex till of late." He spoke these words as his eyes caught his page, chattering at the door, with a dark-eyed Croole servant-maid of the De Solis family. Presently the hishop clapped his hands, and a domestic entered. "Send Luis to hands, and a domestic entered. "Send Lus to me."

When the page came up, the old man greeted him with a half-smile.

"Well, my son, I wish my chocolate to be brought me; I could not think of breaking off that long 'éte-à-tête with Dolores, but this is past the proper time."

"Your Holiness will pardon me," said the Ind; "Dolores brought you a present from the Donna de Solis; the lady sends her humble respects to your Iloliness, and requests your acceptance of a large packet of very beautiful chocolate."

"I am much obliged to her," said the bishop; "did you express to the maiden my thanks?" Luis bowed.

Luis bowed.
"Then, child, you may prepare me a cup of this chocolate, and bring it me at once."
"The Donna de Solis's chocolate?"

"Yes, my son, yes."
When the boy had left the room, the old man clasped his hands with an expression of thankfulness.

"They are going to yield! This is a sign that they are desiring reconciliation."

Next day the cathedral was thronged with ladies.
The service proceeded as usual, but the bishop was the recent.

not present.
"How is the Bishop?" was whispered from one lady to another, with conscious glances; till the query reached the ears of one of the canons who as at the door.

"His Holiness is very ill," he answered. "He has retired to the monastery of S. James."
"What is the matter with him?"
"He is suffering from severe pains, internally."
"Has he seen a doctor?"

"Physicians have been sent for."

For eight days the good old prelate lingered in

For eight days the good out preface ingered in great suffering.

"Tell me," he asked, very feebly; "tell me truly, what is my complaint?"

"Your Holiness has been poisoned," replied the

"1 our Holmess has been poisoned," replied the physician.

The Bishop turned his face to the wall. Some one whispered that he was dead, when he had been thus for some while. The dying man turned his face round, and said:

"Hush! I am praying for my poor sheep! May God pardon them." Then, after a pause: "I for-give them for having caused my death, most hearti-ly. Poor sheep!" And he died.

And he died.

Since then there has been a proverb prevalent in Mexico: "Beware of tasting Chiapa chocolate." The cathedral presented the same scene as before; the prelate had labored in vain, and chocolate was copiously drank at his funeral.

THE SIOUX WAR.

This illustration which we give on page 693 shows us what, we trust, will prove the close of the Sioux War, viz., the surprise of the Indians by Sully's Brigade on 8d September. The author of the sketch, an officer in the 6th Iowa Cavalry, one of the most gallant regiments in the service, writes we. writes us:

"Fort Plene, Dacotal Territory, September 26, 1863.
"While public attention has been completely absorbed with the Rebellion and the splendid record made by the Foderal troops in July, an expedition which started from Sioux City in June has been absorbed with the Rebellion and the sphendid record made by the Federal troops in July, an expedition which started from Sioux City in June has been working its way against every adverse circumstance up to Dacotah to punish the savages for the unassacres in Minnesota last year. The troops were General A. Sully's Brigade, and consisted of the Sixth Iowa Cavalry, Colonel D. S. Wilson; eight companies of the Second Nobraska Cavalry, Colonel R. W. Furnass; one company of the Seventh Iowa Cavalry, Captain Millard, and one battery of six small brass pieces. General Sully's aids are his old Potomac officers, belonging to the immortal First Minnesota, viz.: Adjutant-General Captain J. H. Pell, Captain King, and Lioutenant Levering. They encountered the Indians near White Stone Hill, about the centre of Dacotah Territory, on the 3d of September, and in a most bloody fight of about thirty mirutes, before night, set in, killed nearly two hundred savages, wounding nearly one hundred more, capturing one hundred and fifty-eight prisoners, besides scizing inmense supplies of buffulo meat which they had dried for the winter, destroying five hundred of their lodges, capturing a large lot of ponies, and an immense stock of robes, firs, etc. The result of this fight will most certainly lead the savages to sue for peace. They never have suffered such a terrilob blow. The left represents the Sixth Iowa Cavalry led by Colonel Wilson, who narrowly except the sum of the proposed of the savages to the colonel R. W. Furnass, whose horse was wounded under him in the engagement. The right represents the Second Nebraska under their popular Colonel R. W. Furnass, whose horse was wounded under him in the engagement. The hone from Bull Run to Chancellorsville. He is a nod regular, and was selected because he was experienced in savage warfare. In this battle the number engaged was about twelve hundred against the same number of Indian warriors. He lost twelve me killed and twenty-three wounded. Few officers would have over-rowell the obstacles have over ome all the obstacles that General Sully have over-me all the constactes that conterns sunly did in this trip. He deserves well at the hands of his countrymen. In every grade he has done his duty nobly. I refer you for more particulars of the battle to the Iowa papers."

CHARLESTON.

CHARLESTON.

WE devote pages 700 and 70t to illustrations of the progress of events at Charleston.

The attempt to blow up the iron-clad steamer. New Ironsides, on the evening of the 5th of October, is one of the most daring and brilliant exploits of the present war—a war full of brave deeds. Our artist has drawn the scene just at the moment of explosion, when the crew of the vessel were firing volleys of musketry at the unseen foe. The explosion was witnessed by him: from the beach near Fort Wagner, and the scene from there obtained inimitably grand, notwithstanding the darkness of the night.

Our artist also sends us a sketch of the "cigar

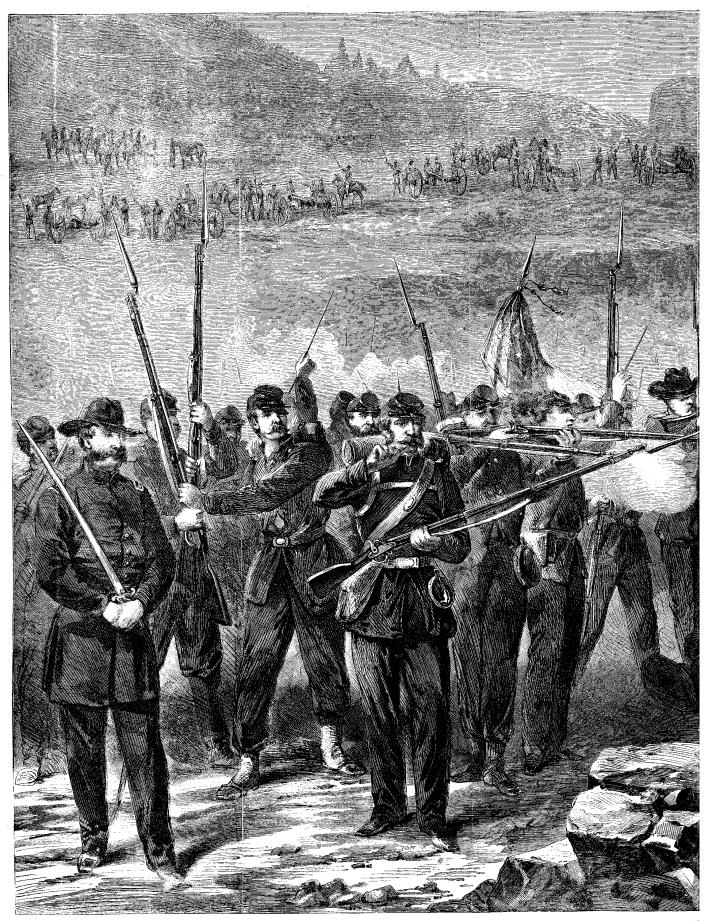

Our artist also sends us a sketch of the "cigar steamer" used in the attempt. It is drawn from the descriptions of the prisoners Glassell and Toombs the descriptions of the prisoners triassel and 1 domins — the former, at the commencement of the war, a lieutenant in the United States navy. The steamer, if such a contrivance can't be called a steamer, was only large enough to contain four or five men. The torpedo was attached to the forward end, and far enough under water to come in contact with the vessel's bottom to which it was directed. The property of the contact with the triangle of the contact with the vessel's bottom to which it was directed. The far enough under water to come in contact with the vessel's bottom to which it was directed. The man who steered was entirely exposed, sitting on top with his feet in the water. It was this man who fired the shot which is supposed to have mortally wounded the officer of the deck on the Ironstides. This nondescript was towed abreast of Fort Sumter by a small steamer, and from there started upon its supposed errand of destruction, accompanied by the small boat which our artist has thrown in the fore-ground of the picture on page 700.

The subject of our sketch now lies at the hottom of the harbor on the very spot chosen as the resting-place of the Ironsides. It carried down with it the hodies of two of its crew of four.

Our other illustrations, from sketches by Mr. Otto Enz, show us the enemy's works on Sullivan's Island. Mr. Enz writes:

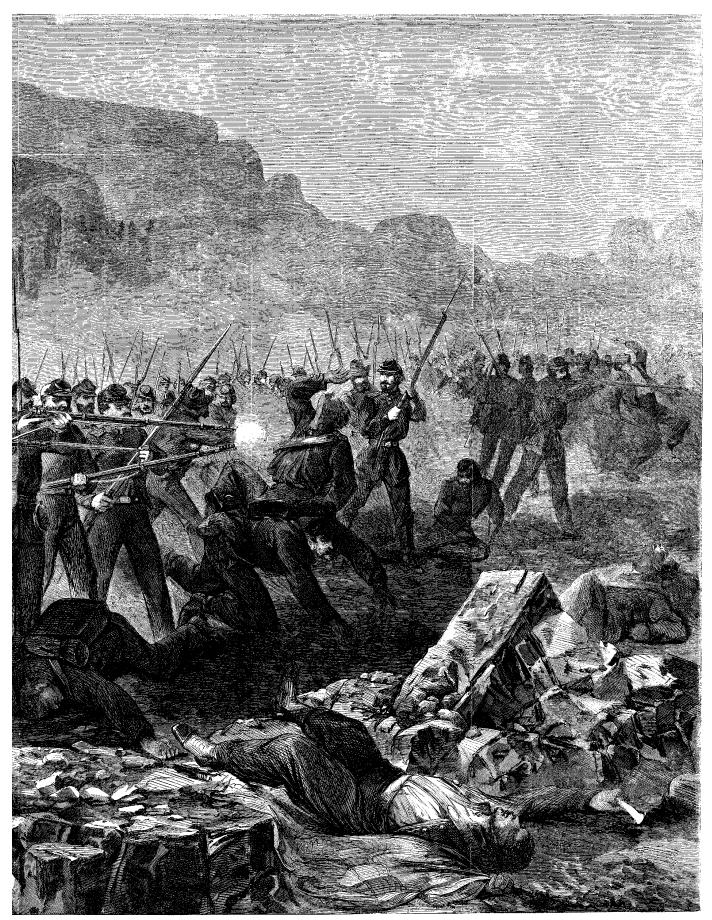

"The representation of Fort Moultrie shows the effects of the last bombardment by the Ironsides and Monitors. The effect of the shots is visible on the house standing in the centre of the fort, also and Monitors. The effect of the shots is visible on the house standing in the centre of the fort, also on the outside of the ramparts or banks where you see men at work to mend the damages. These square white patches resting on the embankment are piles of sand-bags to protect the gunners, and have been erected since the last fight, giving to the fort a different appearance from what it had three weeks ago. The other butteries, Bee and Beauregard, are all on Sullivan's Island, and will in the next few days be the scene of a desperate fight."

THE BATTLE OF CHICAMAUGA—THOMAS'S MEN REPU

S WEEKLY.

'ULSING THE CHARGES OF THE REBELS.-[SEE PAGE 690.]

VERY HARD CASH.

By CHARLES READE, Eso. AUTHOR OF "IT IS NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND." ETC.

CHAPTER XLIL

CHAPTER XLII.

The tenacity of a private lunatic asylum is unique. A little push behind your back and you slide into one; but to got out again is to scale a precipice with crumbling sides. Alfred, luckier than many, had twice nearly escaped; yet now he was tighter in than ever. His father at first meant to give him but a year or two of it, and let him out on terms, his spirit broken, and Julia married. But his sister's death was fatal to him. By Mrs. Hardie's settlement the portion of any child of hers dying a minor, or intestate and childless, was to go to the other children: so now the prisoner had inherited his sister's ten thousand pounds, and a good slice of his bechild of hers dying a minor, or intestate and childlens, was to go to the other children: so now the prisoner had inherited his sister's tenthous and pounds, and a good slice of his betreaved enemy's and father's income. But this doubted his father's hitterness—that he, the unloved one, should be enriched by the death of the adored one!—and also tempted his enpidity: and unfortunately shallow legislation conspired with that temptation. For, when an Englishman, sane or insane, is once pushed behind his back into a mad-house, those relatives who have hidden him from the public eye, i.e., from the eye of justice, can grab hold of his money behind his back, as they certified away his wits behind his back, and can administer it in the dark, and embezzle ic, heating "iBut for us the 'dear deranged' would waste it." Nor do the monstrous enactments, which confer this unconstitutional power on subjects, and shield its exercise from the light and safeguard of Publicity, affix any penalty to the abuse of that power, if by one chance in a thousand detected. In Lunacy Law extremes of intellect meet: the British senator plays at Satan; and tempts human fraity and cupidity beyond what they are able to bear. So behold a son at twenty-one years of age devoted by a father to imprisonment for life. But stop a minute; the mad statutes, which by the threefold temptation of Facility, Obscurity, and Impunity, insure the occasional incarceration, do provide, though feebly, for their bare liberation, provided they don't yield to the genius loci, and the natural effect of confinement plus anguish, by going mad, or dying. The Commissioners of Lunacy had power to liberate Alfredi a spite of his relations. And that power, you know, he had soberly but earnestly implored them to exercise.

as postponing a hand to a drowning man, he re-ceived an official letter from Whitehall. With bounding heart he broke the seal, and devoured the contents. They ran thus:

"Sin,—By order of the Commissioners of Lunacy I am directed to inform you that they are in the receipt of your letter of the 29th ulti-mo, which will be laid before the board at their next meeting. I am, etc."

Alfred was bitterly disappointed at the small advance he had made. However, it was a great point to learn that his letters were allowed to go to the Commissioners at all, and would be attended to by degrees.

He waited and waited, and struggled hard to

He waited and waited, and struggled hard to possess his soul in patience; at times his brain throbbed and his blood boiled, and he longed to kill the remorseless, kindless mousters who robbed him of his liberty, his rights as a man, and his Julia: but he knew this would not do; that what they wanted was to gnaw his reason away, and then who could disprove that he had slways been mad? Now he felt that brooding on his wrong would infuriate him; so he clenched his teeth, and rowed a solemn vow that nothing should drive him mad. By advice of a patient he wrote again to the Commissioners begging for a Special Commission to inquire into his case; and, this done, with rare stoicism, self-defense, and wisdom in one so young, he actually sat down to read hard for his first class. Now, to do this, he wanted the Ethics, Politics, self-defense, and wisdom in one so young, he actually sat down to read hard for his first class. Now, to do this, he wanted the Ethics, Politics, and Rhetorie of Aristotle, certain Dialogues of Plato, the Comedies of Aristophanes, the first-class Historians, Demosthenes, Lucretius, a Greek Testament, Wheeler's Analysis, Prideaux, Horne, and several books of reference, sacred and profane. But he could not get these books without Dr. Wycherley, and unfortunately he had cut that worthy dead in his own asylum. "The Scornful Dog" had to eat wormwood pudding and humble pie. He gulped these delicacies as he might; and Dr. Wycherley showed excellent qualities; he entered into his maniac's studies with singular laterity, supplied him with several classics from his own shelves, and borrowed the rest at the London Library. Nor did his zeal stop there: he offered to read an hour a day with him, and owned it would afford him the keenest gratification to turn out an Oxford first classman from his asylum. This remark puzzled Alfred, and set him thinking; it bore a first classman from his asylum. This remark puzzled Alfred, and set him thinking; it bore a subtle family resemblance to the observations he heard every day from the patients; it was so one-oped.

Soon Alfred became the Doctor's pet maniae. They were often closeted together in high discourse, and indeed discussed Psychology, Metaphysics, and Moral Philosophy with indefatigable zest, long after common sense would have packed them both off to bed, the donkeys. In fact, they got so thick that Alfred thought it only fair to aav one day, "Mind, Doctor, all these pleasant fruirful hours we spend together so sweetly will not prevent my indicting you for a conspiracy as soon as I get out: it will rob the retribution of half its relish though."

"Ah, my dear young friend and fellow-stu-

"Ah, my dear young friend and fellow-student," said the Doctor, blandly, "let us not sacrifice the delights of our profitable occupation of imbibing the sweets of intellectual int-recorse to vague speculations as to our future destiny. During the course of a long and not, I trust, altogether unprofitable, career, it has not unfrequently been my lot to find myself on the verge of being indicted, sued, assassinated, hung. Yet here I sit, as yet unimmolated on the altar of phremetic vengeance. This is ascribable to the fact that my friends and pupils always adopt a more favorable opinion of me long before I part with them; and ere many days (and this I divine by infallible indicia) yaper cure will commence in earnest; and, in proportion as yon progress to perfect restoration of the powers of judgment, you will grow in suspicion of the fact of being under a delusion—or rather I should say a very slight perversion and perturbation of the forces of year admirable intellect—and a proper subject for temporary seclusion. Indeed this consciousness of insanity is the one diagnostic of sanity that never deceives me; and, on the other hand, an obstinate persistence in the hypothesis of perfect rationality demonstrates the fact that insanity yet lingers in the convolutions and recesses of the brain, and that it would not be hurinsanity yet lingers in the convolutions and re-cesses of the brain, and that it would not be bucesses of the brain, and that it would not be humane as yet to east the patient on a world in which he would inevitably be taken some ungenerous advantage of."

Alfred ventured to inquire whether this was not rather paradoxical.

"Certainly," said the ready Doctor; "and paradoxicality is an indicial characteristic of truth in all matters beyond the comprehension of the vulgar."

of the vulgar."
"That sounds rational," said the maniae, very dryly.

One afternoon, grinding hard for his degree,

dryly.

One afternoon, grinding hard for his degree, he was invited down stairs to see two visitors.

At that word he found out how prison tries the nerves. He trembled with hope, and fear. It was but for a moment: he bathed his face and hands to compose himself; made his toilet carefully, and went into the drawing-room, all on his guard. There he found Dr. Wycherley and two gentlemen; one was an ex-physician, the other an ex-barrister, who had consented to resign fee-lessness and brieflessness for a snug £1500 a year at Whitchall. After a momentary greeting they continued the conversation with Dr. Wycherley, and scarcely noticed Alfred. They were there pro forma; a plausible lunatic had pestered the Board, and extorted a visit of ceremony. Alfred's blood boiled, but he knew it must not boil over. He contrived to throw a short, pertinent remark in every now and then. This, being done polite-ly, told, and at last Dr. Eskell, Commissioner of Lunacy, smiled and turned to him. "Allow me to put a few questions to you." Lunacy, smiled and turned to him. "Allor to put a few questions to you."
"The more the better, Sir," said Alfred.

"The more the bester, Sir," said Afred.
Dr. Eskell then asked him to describe minutely, and in order, all he had done since seven o'clock that day. And he did it. Examined him in the multiplication table. And he did it. And, while he was applying these old-fashioned tests, Wycherley's face wore an expression of pity, that was truly comical. Now this Dr. Eskell had an itch for the classies: so he went on to say, "You have been a scholar, I hear."
"I am not old enough to be a scholar, Sir," said Alfred; "but I am a student."
"Well, well; now can you tell me what follows this line?

lows this line?

Jusque datum sceleri canimus populumque potentem."

Why, not at the moment."

Oh, surely you can," said Dr. Eskell, ironly. "It is in a tolerably well-known pasically. sage. Come, try."
"Well, I'll try," said Alfred, sneering secretly.

t me see : Mum—num—mum—populumque potentem, In sua victrici conversum viscera dextră."

In ma victicli conversion viscen dextra."

"Quite right; now go on, if you can."

Alfred, who was playing with his examiner all this time, pretended to endgel his brains a bit, then went on, and warmed involuntarily with the lines:

inics.

"Cognatasque acies et rupto foedere regui
Certatum totis concussi viribus orbis
In commune nefas; infestis que obvia signis
Signa, pares aquilas, et pila minantia pilis."

"He seems to have a good memory," said the examiner, rather taken aback.
"Oh, that is nothing for him," observed

"Oh, that "O', Wycherley.

"He has Horace all by heart; you'd wonder:
And mouths out Homer's Greek like thunder."

"Mamory thus tes

And mouths out Homer's Greek like thunder."
The great faculty of Memory thus tested,
Dr. Eskell proceeded to a greater; Judgment.
"Spirited lines those, Sir."
"Yes, Sir; but surely rather tumid. 'The whole forces of the shaken globe?' But little poets love big words."
"I see; you agree with Horace, that so great a work as an epic poem should open modestly, with an invocation."

a work as an epic poem should open modestly, with an invocation." No, Sir, said Alfred. "I think that rather an arbitrary and peevish canon of friend Horace. The Æneid, you know, begins just as he says an Epic ought not to begin; and the Æneid is the greatest Latin Epic. In the next place, the use of Modesty is to keep a man from writing an Epic Poem at all; but, if he will have that impudence, why then he had better have the congate of plunge into the Castalian stream, like Virgil and Lucan, not crawl in funking and holding on by the Muse's apron-string. But—excuse me—quorsum hæc tam putida tendunt? what have the Latin poets to do with this modern's Sanity or Insanity?

ern's Sanity or Insanity?"

Mr. Abbott snorted contemptuously in support of the query. But Dr. Eskell smiled, and said:

or the query. But Dr. Eskelt smiled, and said: "Continue to answer me as intelligently, and you may find it has a great deal to do with it." Alfred took this bint, and said, artfully, "Mine was a thoughtless remark; of course a gentle-man of your experience can test the mind on any subject however trivial." He added, pit-cously, "Still, if you would but leave the poets, who are all half crazy themselves, and examine | who are an out reary themserves, and examine in the philosophers, of Antiquity, surely it would be a higher criterion."

Dr. Wycherley explained in a patronizing whisper, "He labors under an abnormal contempt for poetry, dating from his attack. Previously to that he actually obtained a prize poem himself."

"Well, Doctor: and after that am I wrong to

"Well, Doctor; and after that am I wrong to despise poetry?"
They might have comprehended this on paper, but spoken it was too keen for them all three. The visitors stared, Dr. Wychrelye came to their aid: "You might examine my young friend for hours, and not detect the one crevice in the brilliancy of his intellectual armor."
The maniac made a face as of one that drink-eth verjuice suddenly. "For pity's sake, Doctor, don't be so inaccurate: say a spot on the brilliancy, or a crevice in the armor; but not a crevice in the brilliancy, My good friend here, gentlemen, deals in conjectural certificates and broken metaphors. He dislocates more tropes, to my sorrow, than even his friend Shakspeare, to my sorrow, than even his friend Shakso to my sorrow, than even his friend Shakspeare, whom he thinks a greater philosopher than Aristotle, and who calls the murder of an individual sleeper the murder of sleep, confounding the concrete with the abstract, and then talks of taking arms against a sea of troubles; query, a cork jacket and a flask of brandy."
"Well, Mr. Hardie," said Dr. Eskell, rather feebly, "let m tell you those passages which so shock your peculiar notions are among the most amplanded."

applauded."
"Very likely, Sir," retorted the maniac, whose applauded."

"Very likely, Sir," retorted the maniac, whose logic was up; "but applauded only in a nation where the floods elap thoir hands every Sonday morning, and we all pray for peace, giving as our exquisite reason that we have got the God of hosts on our side in war."

Mr. Abbott, the other commissioner, had endured all this chat with an air of weary indifference. He now said to Dr. Wycherley, "I wish to put you a question or two in private."

Alfred was horribly frightened: this was the very dodge that had ruined him at Silverton House. "Oh no, gentlomen," he cried, imploringly. "Let me have fair play. You have given me no secret audience; then why give my accuser one? I am charged with a single delusion; for mercy's sake go to the point at once, and examine me on that head."

"Now you talk sense," said Mr. Abbott; as if the previous topics had been chosen by Alfred.
"But that will excite him," objected Dr. Eskell: "it always does excite them."

"It excites the insane, but not the sane," said Alfred. "So there is another test. you kell: "it always does excite them."

"It excites the insane, but not the sane," said Alfred. "So there is another test; you will observe whether it excites me." Then, before they could interrupt him, he glided on: "The supposed hallucination is this: I strongly suspect my father, a bankrupt—and therefore dishonest—banker, of having somehow misap-propriated a sum of fourteen thousand pounds, which sum is known to have been brought from India by one Captain Dodd, and has disappeared."

India by one Captain 1999, and has confirmed."

"Stop a minute," said Mr. Abbott. "Who knows it, besides you?"

"The whole family of the Dodds. They will show you his letter from India, announcing his return with the money."

"Where do they live?"

"Albion Villa, Barkington."

Mr. Abbott noted the address in his book,

"Albion Villa, Barkington."

Mr. Abbott noted the address in his book, and Alfred, mightily cheered and encouraged by this sensible act, went on to describe the various indications, which, insufficient singly, had by their united force driven him to his conclusion. When he described David's appearance and words on his father's lawn at night, Wycherley interrupted him, quietly: "Are you quiet sure this was not a vision, a phantom of the mind heated by your agitation, and your suspicions?"

picions?"
Dr. Eskell nodded assent, knowing nothing about the matter.

"Pray, Doctor, was I the only person who saw this vision?" inquired Alfred, slyly.

"I conclude so," said Wycherley, with an admirable smile

mirable smile.

"But why do you conclude so? because you are one of those who reason in a circle of assumptions. Now it happens that Captain Dodd was seen and felt on that occasion by three persons besides myself."

"Name them," said Mr. Abbott, sharply.

"A policeman called Reynolds, another policeman, whose name I don't know, and Miss Julia Dodd. The policemen helped me lift Captain Dodd off the grass, Sir; Julia met us close by, and we four carried Dr. Wycherley's phantom home together to Albion Villa."

Mr. Abbott noted down all the names, and Mr. Abbott noted down all the names, and then turned to Dr. Wycherley. "What do you then turned to Dr. Wycherley. "What do you say to that?"

"I say it is a very important statement," said the Doctor, blandly; "and that I am sure my young friend would not advance it unless he was firmly persuaded of its reality."

"Much obliged, Doctor; and you would not contradict me so rashly in a matter I know all about and you know nothing about, if it was not your fixed habit to found facts on theories instead of theories on facts."

"There, that is enough," said Mr. Abbott.
"I have brought you both to an issue at last. I shall send to Barkington and examine the policemen and the Dodds."

"Oh, thank you, Sir," 'cried Alfred, with emotion. "If you once apply genuine tests like that to my case, I shall not be long in prison."

"Prison?" said Wycherley, reproachfully.
"Have you any complaint, then, to make of your treatment here?" inquired Dr. Eskell.

"No, no, Sir," said Alfred, warmly. "Dr. Wycherley is the very soul of humanity. Here are no tortures, no handcuffs or leg-locks, no brutality, no insects that murder Sleep—without offense to Logic. In my last asylum the attendants inflicted violence; here they are only allowed to endure it. And, gentlemen, I must tell you a noble trait in my enemy there. Nothing can make him angry with madmen; their lies, their groundless and narrow suspicions of him, their deplorable ingrantitude to him, of which I see examples every day that rile me on his account; all these things seem to glide off him, baffled by the infinite kindness of his heart, and the incomparable sweetness of his temper; and he returns the duffers good for evil with scarcely an effort."

At this unexpected tribute the water stood in the Dector's eyes. It was no more than the offense to Logic. In my last asylum the attend-scarcely an effort."

At this unexpected tribute the water stood in the Dector's eyes. It was no more than the truth; but this was the first man he had met intelligent enough to ser bis good qualities clearly and express them eloquently.

"In short," continued Alfred, "to be happy in his house all a man wants is to be insanc. But, as I am not insane, I am miserable: no convict, no galley-slave is so wretched as I am, gentlemen. And what is my crime?"

"Well, well," said Dr. Eskell, kindly, "I think it likely you will not be very long in confinement." They then civilly dismissed him; and on his departure asked Dr. Wycherley his candid opinion. Dr. Wycherley said he was now nearly cared; his ability to discuss his delusion without excitement was of itself a proof of that. But in another month he would be better still. The Dector concluded his remarks thus:

"However, gentlemen, you have heard him: was indeed for vourselves whether any holy can

"However, gentlemen, you have heard him: now judge for yourselves whether any body can be as elever as he is, without the presence of more or less abnormal excitement of the organs now judge for yourselves whether any body can be as clever as he is, without the presence of more or less abnormal excitement of the organs of intelligence."

It was a bright day for Alfred: he saw he had made an excellent impression on the Commissioners, and, as luck does not always come single, after many vain attempts to get a letter posted to Julia, he found this very afternoon a nurse was going away next day. He offered her a guinea, and she agreed to post a letter. On the happiness it was to the poor prisoner to write it, and unburden his heart and tell his wrongs. He kept his manhood for his enemies; his tears fell on the paper he sent to his forlorn bride. He had no misgivings of her truth: he judged her by himself; gave her credit for anxiety, but not for doubt. He concluded a long, ardent, tender letter by begging her to come and see him, and, if refused admission, to publish his case in the newspapers, and employ a lawyer to proceed against all the parties concerned in his detention. Day after day he waited for an answer to his letter; none came. Then he began to be sore perplexed, and torn with agouizing doubts. What if her mind was poisoned too! What if she thought him mad! What if some misfortune had befallen her! What if she had believed him dead, and her heart had broken! Hitherto he had seen his own trouble chiefly: but now he began to think day and night on hers; and though he ground on for his degree not to waste time, and not to be driven mad, yet it was almost superhuman lahor; sighs issued from his laboring breast while his hard, indomitable brain labored away, all uphill, at Aristotle's Divisions and Definitions.

On the seventh day, the earliest the mad statute allowed, the two Commissioners returned, and this time Mr. Abbott took the lead, and told him that the policeman Reynolds had left the force, and the Dodds had left the town, and were in London, but their address not known.

At this Alfred was much agitated. She was allow, and perhaps near him.

At this Altred was much agained. Some we alive, and perhaps near him.

"I have heard a good deal of your story," said Mr. Abbott, "and, coupling it with what we have seen of you, we think your relatives have treated you, and a young lady of whom every body speaks with respect—"

"God bless you for saying that! God bless you!"

-treated you both, I say, with needless se-

""—treated you both, I say, with needless severity."
Dr. Eskell then told him the result of the Special Commission, now closed. "I believe you to be cured," said he; "and Mr. Abbott has some doubts whether you were ever positively insane. We shall lay your case before the Board at once, and the Board will write to the party who signed the order, and propose to him to discharge you at once."
At this magnificent project Alfred's countenance fell, and he stared with astonishment.

At this magnificent project Alfred's countenance fell, and he stared with astonishment. "What! have you not the power to do me justice, without soliciting Injustice to help you?" "The Board has the power," said Dr. Eskell; "but for many reasons they exercise it with prudence and reserve. Besides, it is only fair to those who have signed the order to give them the graceful office of liberating the patient: it paves the way to reconciliation."

Alfred sighed. The Commissioners, to keep up his heart, promised to send him copies of their correspondence with the person who had signed the order. "Then," said Mr. Abbort, kindly, "you will see your case is not being neglected."

lected."

The following precis, though imperfect, will give some idea of the correspondence:

1. The Board wrote to Thomas Hardie, letting

1. The Board wrote to Thomas Hardic, letting him know the result of the Special Commission, and requesting him to discharge his nephew. Thomas quaked. Richard smiled, and advised Thomas to take no notice. By this a week was gained to Injustice, and lost to Justice.

2. The Board pointed out Thomas Hardie's inadvertence in not answering No. 1; inclosed copy of it, and pressed for a reply. Thomas quaked, Richard smiled.

3. Thomas Hardie to the Board. From what he had heard, it would be premature to discharge Alfred. Should prefer to wait a month or two.

4. Alfred to Board warning them against this proposal. To postpone justice was to refuse justproposal. proposal. To postpone justice was to refuse justice, certainly for a time, probably forever.

- 5. The Board to Thomas Hardie, suggesting that if not released immediately he ought to have a trial—i. e., be allowed to go into the world with
- a trial—i. c., be allowed to go into the worm with a keeper.

 6. Affred to the Board begging that Dr. Sampson, an honest independent physician, might be allowed to visit him and report to them.

 7. The Board to Alfred declining this for the present as unadvisable, they being in correspondence with the person who had signed the order—with a view to his liberation.

 8. T. Hardie to the Board shuffling, and requesting time to make further inquiries.

 9. The Board suggesting there should be some reasonable limit to delay.

 10. T. Hardie asking for a month to see about it.

- 11. The Board suggesting a week.
 12. Alfred Hardie asking permission to be visited by a solicitor with a view to protection of
- his liberty and property.

 13. The Board declining this, pending their correspondence with other parties; but asking bim for the names and addresses of all his
- trustees.

 14. Thomas Hardie informing the Board h
- 14. Thomas Hardie informing the Board he had now learned Alfred had threatened to kill his father as soon as ever he should get out, and leaving the Board to discharge him on their own responsibility if they chose after this warning; but declining peremptorily to do so himself.

 15, 16, 17. The Board, by advice of Mr. Abbott, to Alfred's trustees, warning them against any alienation of Alfred's money, under the notion that he was legally a lunatic; and saying that a public Inquiry appeared inevitable, owing to Mr. T. Hardie's multilingness to enter into their views.

 18, To Alfred inanisms whether had a support of the support of
- their views.

 18. To Alfred, inquiring whether he wished to encounter the expense of Chancery proceedings to establish his sanity?

 19. Alfred to the Board, imploring them to - use their powers and discharge him without fur
- 19. Alired to the Board, imploring tient to use their powers and discharge him without further delay, and assuring them he meditated no violence on his liberation, but should proceed against all parties under legal advice.

 20. The Board to T. Hardie, warning him that he must in future pay Alfred's maintenance in Asylum out of his own pocket, and pressing him either to discharge the young man, or else to apply to the Lord Chancellor for a Commission de Lunatico Inquirendo, and inclosing copy of a letter from Wycherley saying the patient was harmless.

 21. T. Hardie respectfully declining to do either, but reminding the Commissioners that the matter could be thrown into Chancery without his consent, only the expense, which would be tremendous, would fall on the lunatic's estate; which might hereafter be regretted by the party himself. He concluded by promising to come to town and visit Alfred with his family physician, and write further in a week.

which might hereafter be regretted by the parry himself. He concluded by promising to come to town and visit Alfred with his family physician, and write further in a week.

Having thus thrown dust in the eyes of the Board, Thomas Hardie and Richard consulted with a notoriously unscrupulous mad-house keeper in the suburbs of London, and effected a master-stroke; whereof anon.

The correspondence had already occupied three months, and kept Alfred in a fever of the mind; of all the maddening things with which he had been harassed by the pretended currers of Insanity, this had tried him hardest. To see a dozen honest gentlemen wishing to do justice, able to do justice by one manly stroke of the pen, yet forego their vantage-ground, and descend to coax an able rogue to do their duty, and undo his own interest and rascality! To see a strong cause turned into a weak one by the timidity of clampions clad by law in complete steel; and a rotten cause, against which Law and Power, as well as Truth, Justice, and Common Sense, had now declared, turned into a strong one by the pluck and cunning of his one unarmed enemy! The ancients feigmed that the ingenious goods tortured Tantalus in hell by over-present thirst, and water flowing to just the outside of his lips. A Britton can thirst for iliberty as hard as Tantalus or hunden deer can thirst for cooling springs: and this soul-gnawing correspondence brought liberty, and citizenhood, and love, and happiness, to the lips of Alfred's burning, pining, aching heart, again, and again; then carried them away from him in mockery. On the sickening angulish of Hope deferred, and deferred:

The Hell it is in suing long to bide.

But indeed his hopes began to sicken for good when he found that the Board would not allow any honest independent physician to visit-him, or any solicitor to see him. At first, indeed, they refused it, giving as their reason that they had already refused it. Fet in so keen a battle he would not throw away a chance: so he determined to win Dr. Wycherley altogeth Hamlet was mad. And "Hamlet was mad" is casily said.

Dr. Wycherley, you see, was a collector of mad people, and collectors are always amateurs, and very seldom connoisseurs. His turn of mind co-operating with his interests, led him to put down any man a lunatie whose intellect was munifestly superior to his own. Alfred Hardie, and one or two more contemporaries, had suffered by this humor of the good Dector's. Nor did the dead escape him entirely. Pascal, according to Wycherley, was a madman with an illusion about a precipice; John Howard a moral lunatie in whom the affections were reversed; Saul a moping maniac with homicidal paroxysms and necturnal visions; Paul an incoherent lunatic, who in his writings flies off at a tangent, and who admits having once been the victim of a photopsic illusion in broad daylight; Nebuchadphotopsic illusion in broad daylight; Nebuchad-nezzar was a lycanthropical lunatic; Joan of Are a theomaniae; Bobby Burton and Oliver Cromwell were melancholy maniacs; Napoleon was an ambitious maniae, in whom the sense of impossibility became gradually extinguished by visceral and cerebral derangement; Luther a phrenetic patient of the old demoniae breed, al-luded to by Shakspeare;

One sees more devils than vast Heil can hold. That is the madman.

That is the madman.

But without any disrespect to any of these gentlemen, he assigned the golden crown of Insanity to Hamlet. To be sure this character tells his friends in the play he shall feign insanity, and swears them not to reveal the reason. And after this hint to his friends and the audi-And after his limit of the was not written for read-ers) he keeps his word, and does it as cleverly as if his name was David or Brutus instead of Hamit is in seen in sword, and seen it is control as it is can me was David or Brutus instead of Hamlet; indeed, like Edgar, he rather overdoes it, and so puzzles his enemies in the play, any certain German criticasters and English mad doctors in the closet, and does not puzzle his bosom friend in the play one bit, nor the pit for whom he was created. Add to this his sensibility, and his kindness to others, and his eloquent grief at the heart-rending situation, which his father's and mother's son was placed in, and had brains to realize, though his psychological critics, it seems, have not; and, add to all that, the prodigious extent of his mind, his keen observation, his deep reflection, his brilliant fancy united for once in a way with the great Academic, or judicial, intellect, that looks down and sees all the sides of every thing—and what can this rare in-cial, intellect, that looks down and sees all the sides of every thing—and what can this rare intellectual compound be? Wycherley decided the question. Hamlet was too much greater in the world of mind than S. T. Coleridge and his German criticasters, too muca higher, deeper, and broader than Esquirol, Jinel, Sauze, Hasham, Munro, Pagan, Wigan, Prichard, Romberg, Wycherley, and such small deer, to be any thing but a madman.

Now, in their midnight discussions, Dr. Wycherley more than once alluded to the insanity of Humlet; and offered proofs. But Alfred declined the subject as too puerile. "A man must exist before he can be insane," said the Oxonian philosopher, server in youthful gravity. But when he found that Dr. Wycherley, had he lived in Denmark at the time, would have conferred cannily with Hamlet's uncle, removed that worthly relative's disbelief in Hamlet's insanity, and signed the young gentleman away behind his back into a lunatic asylum, Alfred began to sympathize with this posthumous victim of Psychological Science. "I believe the bloke was no madder than I am," said he. He got the play, studied it afresh, compared Hamlet humbugging his enemies and their tool, Ophelia, with Hamlet opening his real mind to himself or his Horatio the very next moment; contrasted the real madness the author has portrayed in the plays of Hamlet and Lear by the side of these extravagant initations, to save, if possible, even dunces, and dreamers, and criticasters from being taken in by the latter; and at their next scance pitched into the Doctor's pet Chimera, and what with logic, fact, ridicule, and the author's lines, knocked it to atoms double quick.

Now, in their midnight discussions, Dr. Wycherley had always handled the question of Alfred Hardie's Sanity or Insanity with a philosophical and presently he got furious, and burst in aft of an Epileptic character, grinding his tech and foaming at the mouth.

Alfred was filled with regret, and, though alarmed, had the presence of mind not to call for assistance. The fit a power can convince him.

some now me resolved to play on the Doctor's foible. It went against his conscience; but the temptation was so strong. He came to him with a hang-dor air:

temptation was so strong. He came to him with a hang-dog air:
"Doctor," said he, "I have been thinking over your arguments, and I capitulate. If Hamlet ever existed, he was as mad as a March hare." And he blushed at this his first quibble.
Dr. Wycherley beamed with satisfaction.
"My young friend, this gives me sincere pleasure—not on my account, but on your own. There goes one of your illusions then. Now tell me—the £14,000! Have you calmly reconsidered that too?"

considered that too?"

Alfred hung his head, and looked guiltier and guiltier. "Why," said he, "that never amounted to any thing more than a strong suspicion. It has long ceased to occupy my mind in excess. However, should I ever be so fortunate as to recover my liberty, I have no objection to collect the evidence about it, pro and con, and then make you the judge instead of myself." This he delivered with an admirable appearance of indifference.

"Very well, Sir," said the Doctor, dryly.
"Then, now, I have a piece of good news for

"Oh, Doctor, what is that?"

"On, Doctor, what is that?"
"Your cure is complete; that is all! You are now a sane man, as sane as I am."
Alfred was a little disappointed at this piece of news; but, recovering himself, asked him to certify that, and let him send the certificate to the Board. Dr. Wycherley said he would, with pleasure.

pleasure.
"I'll bring it to you when I make my round,"

"I'll bring it to you when I make my round, said he.
Alfred retired triumphant, and went in at Plato with a good heart.
In about an hour Dr. Wycherley paid him the promised visit. But what may not an hour bring forth? He came with mortification and regret in his face to tell Alfred that an order of transfer had been signed by the proper parties, and in his face to tell Alfred that an order of transfer had been signed by the proper parties, and countersigned by two Commissioners, and he was to go to Dr. Wolf's asylum that day.

Alfred groaned.

"I knew my father would outwit my feeble friends somehow or other," said he. "What is his game? Do you know?"

"I suppose to obtain a delay, and meantime get you into an asylum where they will tell the Commissioners you are worse again, and perhaps do something to make their words good. Dr. Wolf, between ourselves, will say or do almost any thing for money. And his asylum is conducted on the old system, though he pretends not."

not."
"My dear friend," said Alfred, "will you do me a favor?"

"How could I deny you any thing at this sor-

"How could I deny you any thing at this sor-rowful moment?"
"Here is an advertisement I want inserted in the Morning Advertiser."
"Oh, I can't do that, I fear."
"Look at it before you break my heart by re-fraince me."

fusing me."

Dr. Wycherley looked at it, and said it was innocent, being mintelligible, and he would insert it himself.

("Three insertions, dear Doctor," said Alfred.

sert it himself.
"Three insertions, dear Doctor," said Alfred.

"Here is the money."
The Doctor then told him sorrowfully he must pack up his things. Dr. Wolf's keepers were

The Doctor then told him sorrowfully he must pack up his things. Dr. Wolf's keepers were waiting for him.

The momen's of parting came. Then Alfred solemuly forgave him, Dr. Wycherley, for signing away his wits, and thanked him for all his kindness and humanity. "We shall never meet again, I feat," said he; "I feel a weight of foreboding here about my heart I never flet before; yet my trials have been many and great. I think the end is at hand." Dr. Wolf's keepers received him, and their first act was to handcuff him. The cold steel struck into him deeper than his wrist, and reminded him of Silverton Grove. He could not suppress a shudder. The carriage rolled all through London with him. He saw the Parks with autumn's brown and golden tints: he saw the people, some rich, some poor, but none of them prisoners. He saw a little girl all rags. "Oh, if I could be as ragged as you are," he said, "and free."

At last they reached Milverton House: a huge old mansion, fortified into a jail. His handcuffs were whipped off in the yard. He was usbreed into a large, gloomy drawing-room. Dr. Wolf soon came to him, and they measured each other by the eye like two prize-fighters. Dr. Wolf's eye fell under Alfred's, and the latter felt he was capable of much foul play. He was one of the old bull-necked breed, and contained the bull-dog and the spaniel in his single nature. "I hope you will be comfortable here, Sir," said he, degredly.

hope you will be comfortable here, Sir," said he, doggedly.
"I will try, Sir."
"The first-class patients dine in half an hour."
"I will be ready, Sir."
"Full-dress in the evening; there are several ladies." Alfred assented by a bow. Dr. Wolf rang a bell and told a servant to show Mr. Hardie his room.

He had just time to make his toilet when the ball rang for diner.

He had just time to make his toilet when the bell rang for dinner.

As he went down a nurse met him, held up something white to him as she came, lowered it quickly, and dropped it at his feet in passing.

It was a billet-doux.

It was twisted into a pretty shape, scented, and addressed to Mr. Hardie, in a delicate Italian hand and in that pale link which seems to reflect the charming timidity of the fair who nso it.

He wondered, carried it into a recess, then opened it and read it.

It contained but this one line:
"Drink nothing but water at dinner."

These words, in that delicate Italian hand, sent a chill through Alfred. What on earth was all this? Was he to be poisoned? Was his life aimed at now instead of his reason? What was this mysterious drama prepared for him the very moment he set his foot in the place, perhaps before? A poisoner, and a friend! Both strangers. He went down to dinner, and contrived to examine every lady and gentleman at the table. But they were all strangers. Presently a servant filled his glass with beer; he looked and saw it was poured from a small jug holding only his portion. Alfred took his ring off his finger, and holding the glass up dropped his ring in.

"What is that for?" inquired one or two.

"Oh, my ring has a peculiar virtue: it tells me what is good for me. Ah! what do I see?

my ruby changes color. Fetch me a clean glass." And he filled it with water from a caraffe. "No, Sir, leave the beer. I'll analyse in my room after dinner; I'm a chemist."

Dr. Wolf changed color, and was ill at ease.

Here was a bold and ugly enstomer. However, he said nothing, and felt sure his morphia could not be detected in heer by any decomposer but the stomach. Still he was thoroughly mystified. In the evening Alfred came dressed into the drawing-room, and found several gentlemen and ladies there. One of the ladies seemed to attract the lion's share of male homage. Her back was turned to Alfred; but it was a beautiful back, with great magnificent neck and shoulders, and a skin like satin; she was tall, but rounded and symmetrical; had a massive but long and shapely white arm, and perfect hand; and masses of symmetricat; and a massive but long and snapely white arm, and perfect hand; and masses of thick black hair sat on her grand white poll like a raven on a marble pillar.

a raven on a marble pillar.

It was not easy to get near her; for the mad gentlemen were fawning on her all round, like Queen Elizabeth's courtiers.

However, Dr. Wolf, seeing Alfred standing alone, said, "Let me introduce you," and took him round to her. The courtiers fell back a little. The lady turned her stately head, and her dark eyes ran lightly all over Alfred in a moment.

ment.

He bowed, and blushed like a girl. She courtesied composedly and without a symptom of recognition—deep water runs still—and Dr. Wolf introduced them ceremonicusly "Mr. Hardie—Mrs. Archbold."

HUMORS OF THE DAY.

The Duke of H. had a son, a student at the Bonaparte Lyceum. At the distribution of the prizes, this son re-turned home without a single one, at which the duke was very angry. "Go, Sir," said he to him, 'ego to bed—go lock yourself up in your room, and bring me the key,"

An outside passenger by a couch had his hat blow ever a bridge and carried away by the stream. "Is it not very singular," said he to a gentleman who was reasted beside him, "that my hat took that direction?" "Not at all," repide the latter; "It is natural that a beaver should take to the water."

MODEST.

Miss Blank, it is known, is accustomed to say Many very queer things in a very queer way; But of all her mistakes the absurdest and oddest Occurred when she called a French modiste modest.

An old lady, who had a great aversion to rye in any form, says, "That now they have got to making it into whisky she can take a little now and then."

SCHOOLMISTRESS (pointing to the first letter of the al-habet). "Come, now, what letter is that?" CHILD. "I sha'n't tell you." But you must! Come, SCHOOLMISTRESS. "You won't? But you must! Come, CHILD. "I sha'n't tell you."
SCHOOLMISTERSS. "You won't? But you must! Come, now, what is it?"
CHILD. "I sha'n't tell you: I didn't come here to teach you, but for you to teach me."

"No pains will be spared," as the quack said when sawing off a poor fellow's leg to cure him of the rheumatism.

What pupil is the most to be pitied?—The pupil of the eye, because it is always under the lash.

A passenger, having hired a boat to take him across a rather rough stream, asked the Irish bostman if any body was ever leat there. "Nivir," replied Fat; "me hrother was drowned here last week, but we found him again the next day."

The editor of a paper says he can generally manage, by hook or by crook, to get up a pretty good paper. Prentice says he does it principally by hook.

Is there an English word that contains all the vowels?

—Unquestionably. A testotaller thinks that all "sensible people" would prefer them in their regular order—Abstembreally.

"I speak within bounds," as the prisoner said to the

A gentleman, nor doed, being vary poor, offered his hand and heart to a fair widow who had a large fortune entirely at her disposal. "Make me a lady; and I will marry you," said the richly-endowed widow. He went straightiway to a noble lord, then in the government, who owed the gentleman a turn for certain labors undertaken and expense incurred in a contested election in which the noble lord had won a seat in Partiament, and told him the case. "Make me a tord," said the asphariatio of kine the case, "Make me a tord," said the asphariatio of kine the case. "Aske me a tord," said the asphariatio of kine case, "Make me a tord," said the asphariation of an advitable. "A barone, then," "Nor that; I can get you a kinghthood," Whereupen the gentleman consulted his fair widow. "Will it make me a lady?" "Yes." "Wey, that will do." He returned to his patron and got his knighthood, and ultimately the lady's hand and fortune.

A man possing along the street with a looking-glass under his arm may a little boy, and thought to be write at his pages with the boy and thought to be write at his pages. What he yellow come and look in this glass, and you'll see a monkey." "Ah! indeed!" said the boy. "How did you discover it?" The answer is not recorded.

If you would have your pig weigh heavy, lead him to the scales. Then he will be pig led.

A Western hunter, who halvays been victor in his grisly fights, thinks there is nothing like an over-hearing disposition.

gisposition.

Old John R. was a hypochondriac, and one of his chimeras was that he was a glass ressel. One day, as he was about taking a seat, his wife, who was behind bin, saddenly jerked his chair away, and he fell heavily to the floor. 'There!' Cried she, triumphantly, "that goes to prove what I always said. You're no more made of glass than I am, else you would have been broken into a thousand pieces!"

As a public meeting in a country town an eloquent actionate and pieces?"

As a public meeting in a country town an eloquent action to the country town an eloquent action and the self-town distributions of the country town and the country town and the country town and the country town and the country town action in the country to the country town and the country town action in the country town and pieces action and pieces action in the country town action in dent."

Take Two of Them.—A bashful youth was paying marked attention to a beautiful young ledy, who rejoices in the possession of an interest of the possession of an interest of the possession of a fine was enjoying a social chat with the young lady, varinly trying to nerve himself to ask the terrible question, when the little nice entered the room. A new thought strok him. Taking her on his knee, he asked, in a quivering voice, "Fauny, dear, are you willing I should have been a for hor." "Oh yest" said that little thing, clapping her hands in glee. "But hadre you better give me a thousand guiness, and take two of them?"

Women can keep a secret, but it generally takes a good many of them to do it.

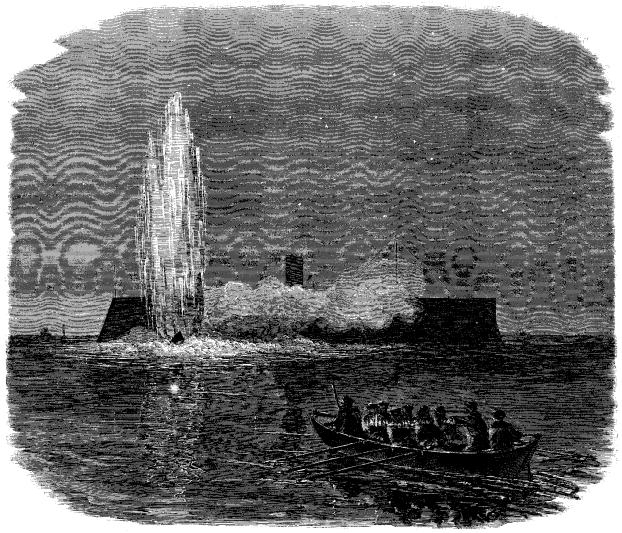

The paper containing many fine points -- a paper of pins.

Pitchy darkness has been so improved as to read "bitu-minous obscurity."

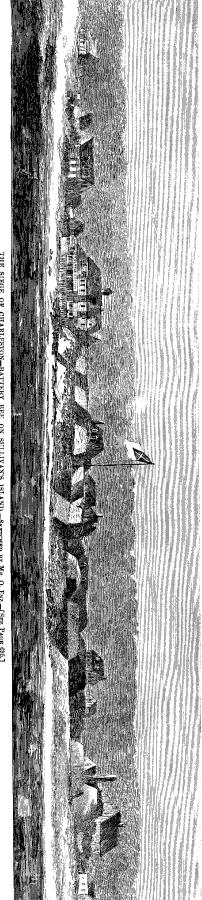

THE SIEGE OF CHARLESTON—THE "SEGAR STEAMER" WHICH PROPELLED THE REBEL TORPEDO.—Sketched by an Occasional Contributor.

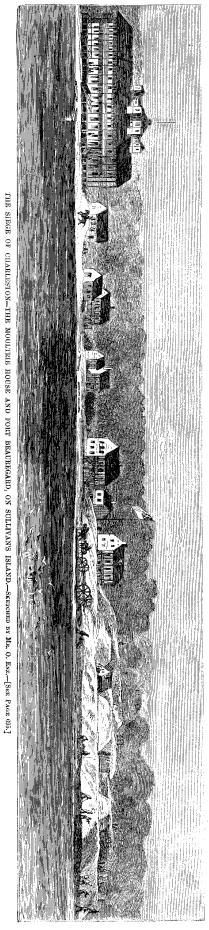

[See Page 695.]

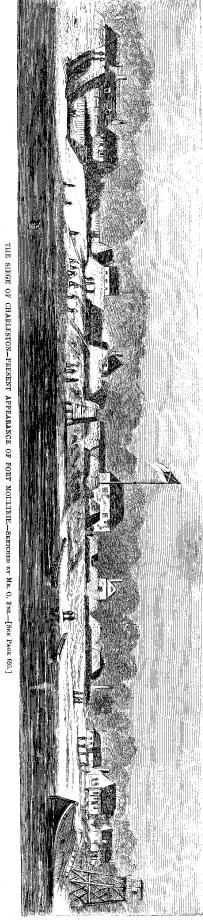

THE SIEGE OF CHARLESTON—ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP THE "IRONSIDES" BY A REBEL TORPEDO.—Sketched by an Occasional Contributor.

[See Page 695.]

THE SIEGE OF CHARLESTON-BATTERY BEE, ON SULLIVAN'S ISLAND,-Sketched by Mr. O. Ekz.-[See Page 695.]

THE ONLY SON.

TO MRS. ABRAM ROSSITER, RICHMOND, MASS.

In the still New England autumn The work of the year was done; But afar were fields unsickled Under the southern sun—
Fields to be reaped in battle—
Harvests by victory won.

The young men came from the hill-sides A thousand strong and more,
At the call of a sterner duty
Than their souls had heard before; And whose under-tone was deeper Than the far-off cannon's roar.

From each house a living echo Was given unto the call, One from the nestled cottage, One from ancestral hall;
In a home were three fair brothers,
And the mother gave them all.

They went, and the fields by the river With their harvesting grew red;
And they came with the sheaves of triumph Ere the leaves again were dead:
"Welcome, my son, mine only,"
Calmly the mother said.

On the lower Mississippi The work of the year was done;
The deathly fields were sickled
Under the burning sun;
And the harvest-home was joyful, Though the mother welcomed one.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

BURNETT'S

Standard Flavoring Extracts

For Cooking Purposes.

Lemon. Peach, Rose, Cloves. Celery, Orange, Vanilla, Ginger, Nutmeg, Cinnamon, Nectarine, Almend.

THE SUPERIORITY OF THESE EXTRACTS CON-SISTS IN THEIR Perfect Purity and Great Strength.

We select the following Testimonials:

POPULAR HOTELS.

"Pre-eminently superior to all others for culinary use." PARKER HOUSE, Boston. "Superior to any we have ever used."

REVERE HOUSE, Boston.

"Have used your Extracts for several years, and regard them the best in the world." FIFTH AVENUE HOTEL, New York.

"Our test has proved them very excellent."
St. Nicholas Hotel, New York.

"Have been found really superior by thorough and exclusive use in our Establishment for years."

Continental Hotel, Phila., Pa.

"Possess all the rare qualities claimed for them." EUTAW House, Baltimore, Md.

"Far superior to any in the market."

WILLARD'S HOTEL, Washington, D. C.

MANUFACTURERS AND PROPERTORS,

JOSEPH BURNETT & CO., BOSTON.

THE "RIDGEWOOD" PATENT

Mest ingenious in its combination of the Metallic Class, containing Phys and Stem. Matches and Topi Cleaner, which was also should be supported by a valve, without meet of the flat attends, filling the Physic is a valve, without meet of the flat attends, filling the Physic is a valve, without meet of the flat attends, filling the Physic is a valve, without meet of the flat attends, filling the Physical Case. It is made for service, of various styles, at 510, 8; 18, 8; 25, 8; 29, 9a, and 8; 75 to 8; 10 and 8; 50; the two latter richly plated and engraved. Nothing can secol its confort, sulfile, and economy for all smokers, at lease or abroad, in the Army or Navy. As a Present to every could be more acceptable. For the Solf-frends nothing, could be more acceptable. For the Solf-frends nothing could be more acceptable. For the Solf-frends nothing could be more of these Case in a constant campaign companion." Also campaign companion." Also

The Ridgewood Smoking Tohacco,
Of superior quality and placer, in packages to fill the Orach (about a week's smoking), or larger packages for the general trade. OPPICERS, SMOKINS, and DEAINESS are thing second second to the control of the property of the partial of the control of the control of the control of the current partial of them. Circulars sent on order. A internal discount to Dealers. Single Cases sent by mail or current, partial or proceed and price and 55 etc. All orders with a Challette of the Control of the Control of the Office 429 Broadowy, cor. Howard Street, New York.

Something to Do-"Pleasant AND PROFITABLE." Good Books, ready sales, and good profits. Agents wanted. Address, with stamp, Fowler and Wells, 308 Broadway, New York.

ARRANDALE & CO., | Cloaks and Mantillas. Importers of Watches,

212 Broadway, N. Y.

Doublies the great want of this age of progress is a really good time keeping scale at a moderate price. This decideratum has been at length supplied by ARRANDALE & CO., who spare no effort to combine in their watches the latest discoveries of science at the most moderate price, as will be seen from the following are will be seen from the following as will be seen from the following as will be seen from the following as well always Timekeeper, eiter composite lunning cases, with peter Time Interface in the centre to seen for the convenience of our brave soldiers. Handsome and reliable, often sold for Thirty Dollars . $13.50 Ladies' Gold Composite Watch, Engraved Hunting Cases, difficult to dictinguish from real gold, very element of the convenience of our brave soldiers. Handsome and soldier's Gold Composite Watch, Engraved Hunting Cases, and Cases, and Cases, and the convenience of the following the convenience of the following cases, and the convenience of the conven as a second some for the fundared and Twenty-five Bold.

Price List.

A great variety of Ladies and Gentlemen's Watches, Chains, &c. Send for circuits fruly describing these and others. All Warches are sent out in good working order, runted for Fig months. A relution on whether orders, Money may be sent at our risk if properly sealed. ARRANDALS & CO, 312 Breadway, Three Booss from Barnum's Museum, corner of Fulton Street, N. X.

$15 Per Day Easy $15 And a Watch Free.

And a Watch Free.

Employment for everyboly, male and female. 100,000 men, women, and children wanted to set as our Agents in every Town and Village throughout the U. S. to sell our immensity popular, unaccelled, and aduable extra large size Paus Stationsky, Reduced, and the size of the Cottage Keepsakes, Household Companions, Camp Companions (of Soldiers), Parlor Amusements, Letter Writer's Guide, Medical Preparations, Many Ways to Get Rich, Likemesses of Military Herees, thou Designs, to Garden, Condity Presents of Fashionaties Areleage, Rame Reduced, Ramy Advice, &c., &c., &c., &c., the whole worth, if bought separately, many dollars. Price each Package ostr 25 cents retail. Wellocale rates to Agents Our Packages rated same as ever, alone, and above all competitors, and have long been acknowledged as the leading and only real valuable and standard Articles of the kind now manufrictured. Packages of all descriptions put of the Control of th

STERLING'S AMBROS A

DR. STERLING'S

AMBROSIA

CERTIFICATE.

This is to certify that, about eightoon mentis ago, I commenced using STRLLOWS Assibled. My hair was commenced using STRLLOWS Assibled. My hair was Hair Toules, Invigorators, &c., without receiving any hencits. Soon after using the Ambrosia my hair ceased falling out, and commenced growing ser rapidly as to asternism. Now my bair is thick, soft, and glossy, and is five feet four inches in length—when let down reaching to the foor. This wonderful result is attribute coleiy to the nach that the momentum of the second of the second

For sale by all druggis s.

Elliot's New Repeaters

Are now ready. The most safe, compact, durable, effective, sure, and reliable Revolvers made. Carry large baile (No. 32 cartridge), are rapidly loaded and fired—conveniently carried in the vest—whole length five inches—four barrels—cach rified gain twist. The Trade supplied.

ELLIO * ARMS CO., 494 Broadway, N. Y.

ALL ARTICLES FOR SOLDIERS

At Baltimore, Washington, and all places occupied by Union troops, should be sent by HARNDEN'S EXPRESS, No. 74 Broadway. Sutlers charged low rates.

BRODIE.

The Leader of Fashions! Opened his Fall Stock on Thursday, 8th inst..

And as usual stands unrivaled for Style, Quality, AND VARIETY.

300 Canal Street, New York.

KEROSENEGRATER

Will warm food for the baby, heat water or steep herbs, &c., for the sick, make water hot for shaving or teddy, cook as few oysters, boil or fry eggs, make tea and coffee, tout bread, &c., &c., in less time and expense than by any other means known. Less do may hand without old, 59 cents. Also a Patent Lighten for lighting lamps without old, 59 cents. Also a Patent Lighten for lighting lamps without start of the start

IMMENSE PROFITS

To be made selling the INCIAL STAMP PACKET, Send for our New Greater, G. S. HASKINS & CO., 36 Beekman Street, N. Y.

American Watches

For Soldiers

AT REDUCED PRICES.

American Watches for Americans!

The American Watch Company give notice that they have lately issued a new style of Watch, expressly designed for Soldiers and others who desire a good watch at a moderate price. These watches are intended to displace the worthless, cheep watches of British and Swiss manufacture with which the country is folloid, and which were never expected to keep time when they were medy, being refuse manufactures sent to this country because unsalable at home, and used here only for jocksjing and awindting NULLOSES.

purposes.

We offer to sell our Watch, which is of the most sue STANTIAL MANUFACTURE, AN ACCURATE AND DURANCE TIME-EXPER, and in Sterling Silver Cases, Hunting pattern, at nearly as low a price as is asked for the funcy-named Ancres and Leptines of foreign make, already referred to.

We have named the new series of Watches, WM. ELERY, Boston, Mass., which name will be found on the plate of every watch of this manufacture, and is one of our ade-marks. Sold by all respectable watch dealers in the loyal states. Wholesale orders should be addressed to ROBBINS & APPLETON.

Agents of the American Watch Company,

182 Broadway, N. Y.

SALISBURY, BRO., & CO., THE CELEBRATED ALBERTINE

ALBERTINE

Extension Holders and Gold Pens, if the most handsome and dumble construction, put up new fancy uses of one dozen each, and not sold in any see quantities. They will retail for $8 each.
Price, per dozen. $10.55

" if gross. 55.00

Sent by mail or express, prepade. Address SALIBURK, BRO, & CO., Frostlency, R. I.

Diamond Pointed Gold Fons Retailing at Wholesale Prices.

Medium	Pen	$0.33,	in Silver	ext.	case,	$0.75
Large	66	0.50	4.6		* 4	1.00
Engrossing		0.75			44	1.50
Commercial		1 25	44	44	6.6	2.00
Mammoth	44	1 50	44	4.6	44	2.50
Leviathon	46	2 00	4.	44	44	8.00
Also, Fountain	Pens	_one	filling wil	l wr	ite els	ghs to f

Also, remnan reps—one mang win write eight to fit teen hours. Gendine Goods. Send stamp for Circular, GEO. F. HAWKES, Manufacturer, 64 Nassau Street, New York, H. A. HARVEY, St Maiden Lane, N. Y., TWINES, Ropes, CORDAGES, and Yarn, Steam Packing, Wick, CARPET WARF, Fish Lines, Blocking Ged. Loom Gord and Surgeons Tow, Writing and Wrapping PA-PER, Envelopes, and Paper Bags.

Sent free by mail for 60 cent

Dysrevsia Tablets, r INDIGESTICN, HEARTBURN, &c. — Manufac

For INDIGESTION, HEARTBURN, occ.—
tured only by
S. G. WELLING, No 207 Centre St., New York.
Price 50 cents per box. Sold by Druggists generally.

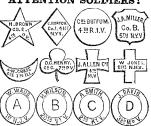

Insoles, Belts, and Armlets.

THEORES, DELIS, ABLU TATHLEUS.

SECURIO IN THE TRIES PARTING OF THE UNITE STATES AND GENEAR BRITAIN.

These articles are purely Voltaic, and by the union of two netals producing a voltaic current, which is excited by the moisture of the feet and body, diffusing a healthy and curative influence over the whole the states of the control of the control

ATTENTION SOLDIERS!

All our Badges are 12 inches in diameter.

				EACH
olid	Silver	Shield, with	Name, Rank, and Regiment,	$100
	44	Star		1.00
		Crescent	44	1 00
	44	Clover Leaf	44	1 00
	4	Diamond	"	1.00
		Circle	4	1 25
		Cross	44	1 25
		Maltese Cros	g "	1 25

Fither of the above styles enameled in red, white, or blue, for $1.25 cach, with Name, Rauk, and Regiment en-graved distinctly upon them. Solid Silver Co. Fins, with Name, Rank, and Regiment neatly sugraved on each, for $9 per dozen. Letters run from A to L. Silver Plated Corps ladges, enameled red, white, or Silver Plated Corps ladges, enameled red, white, or blue, $9 per doz. ; Star, Dlamond, and Chorer Leaf, $1.8, pold, $5 each; Crescent, in 18 k, pold, $5 each; Shield, 18 k, $3 50 each. Badges sent free on receipt of price mentioned.

18 k., § 3. 90 each. Badges sent free on receipt of price mentioned. Orders for 100 or 1000 at a liberal discount. We are constantly receiving new designs from our own Manufactury, and we are the Pioneer Army Bedge Manufacturers, and are prepared to treat our partons more liberally than any house in the trade. Terms, Cash in Advance. Advess DROWNE & MOORE, Manufacturing Jewelers, 208 Broadway, New York.

A Splendid New

Mexican War Story

Is just commenced in the

New York Weekly, Entitled.

The Light Dragoon;

OR. THE

Rancheros of the Poisoned Lance.

A TALE OF THE BATTLE-FIELDS OF MEXICO.

By Harry Hazel.

For sale everywhere. Price 5 cents per copy.

E NAMELED CHAMBER FURNITURE.—The best as-rortment of Enameled Furniture, in all colors and styles, Walnut and Che-trust, Plain and Ornamental, in Stites. Wholesale and Retall. Also, Mattresses and Pulliases. W ARREX WARD, No. 217 Canal St., N. Y.

WANTED...DISABLED AND DISCHARGED SOL-diers, and others, mained and crippled, can hear of a pleasant and profitable business by addressing P. O. Box No. 45, Philadelphia. (Sample free for 25 cents.)

Union Playing Cards.

Colonel for Kiug, Goddess of Liberty for Queen, and Major for Jack. 59 enamoled cards to the pack. Eagles, Shields. Stars, and Higas are the suits, and you can play all the usual games. Two packs, in cases, mailed free on receipt of $1.1 free sund discount to the trade. Send for a Circular. Address of the Colon of the Circular of the Circul

GLASS LETTERS & SIGNS

Glass and other Letters and Numbers for attaching Windows, Signs, Marble and other surfaces. Glass Sig and Show Cards, with frames, to order at low prices. C fice 107 Fulton Street, N. Y. GLASS LETTER CO.

AGENTS WANTED.—Call and examine, or 19 semples sent free by mail for 20 cents, that retail for $2, u gently needed by every person, by R. L. WOLCOTT, 170 Chatham Square, N. Y.

D. SAMUEL S. FITCH'S New and Improved the Control of the Control o

Cristadoro's Hair Dye.

The Best in the World.

Cristadoro's Hair Preservative.

Inequaled as a dressing. Both for sale everywhere, applied at No. 6 Astor House, N. Y.

Watches and Jewelry.

CHEAPEST AND BEST yet offered to the public For list of Articles and Prices, address PARKER COX & CO., N. Y.

Barnard and Barry's Re_k art

Of the Engineer and Artilley operations of the Army of the Potomac, from its organization to the desa of the Pen-nealize Campoing. By Brig -deen Baraxan Chil: ge-neer, and Brig. Gen. Baray Chief of Arther Chil: ge-lectly 19 feet and the Children Chil: ge-tely 19 feet and the Children Children Children Children

Copies sent free by mail on receipt of price. Vitalished by
D. VAN NOSTRAND, 192 Broadway, N. Y.

HARPER & BROTHERS, NEW YORK, Have Just Published:

ALCOCK'S JAPAN. The Capital of the Tyecon: a Narrative of a Three Year? Reddence in Japan. By Sir Ritherson Alcoch, K. C.B., Her Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentisty in Japan, With Maps and Engravings. 2 vols. Prov. Cloth, 83 00.

NAME STATES AND ASSESSED AS TO A STATES, CORE SO WE.

KNAPPS FRENCH READING-BOOK: CHRESTOMATHEE FRANCAIST: Containing I. Selections from the test French Writers, with Copions References to the Author's French Grammar. D. The Master-Picca of Molkler, Reche Bollean, and Voluting; with Explanatory Notes, a Glossary of Disonatic Paraess, and a VoLanguage and Literature in Madison University, N. Y.
12mo, Gloth, $1–25.

THE BIVOUAC AND THE BATTLE-FIELD; or, Campaign Sketches in Virginia and Maryland. By Captair Gronge F. Noves. 12mo, Cloth, $125.

J. H. Winslow & Co., 100,000

WATCHES, CHAINS, &c., &c.

Worth $500,000.

To be sold for One Dollar each, without regard to value, and not to be paid for till you know what you are to get.

SPLENDYD LIST!!

OF ARTICLES TO BE SOLD FOR ONE DOLLAR EACH.

100 Gold Hunting Cased Watches		$100	00	each.
100 Geld Watches		60	00	each.
200 Ladies' Gold Watches				each.
509 Ladies' and Gent's Silver Watch	88			each.
2000 Vest and Neck Chains	5 00			each.
3000 Gold Band Bracelets	5 00	to 10
8000 44 44 44	3 00			each.
2000 Cameo Brooches	4.00			each.
3000 Mosaic and Jet Brooches	4 00			each.
2000 Lava and Florentine Brooches	4 00	to 6	- 60	esch.
8000 Coral, Opal, and Em. Brooches.	4.00			each.
2000 Cameo Ear Drops	4 00			each.
3000 Mesaic and Jet Ear Drops	4.00	to 6	- 60	each.
3000 Lava and Florentine Ear Drops.	4 00			each.
3000 Coral, Em., and Opal Ear Drops	4 00			each.
5100 Gent's Breast Pins	2 50	to S	- 00	each.
3000 Watch Keys	2 00			each.
5000 Fob and Ribbon Slides	2 00			each.
5000 Sets of Bosom Studs	2 50			each.
5000 Sleeve Buttons	2 50			each.
6000 Plain Rings	2.50			each.
6000 Stone Set Rings	2.56			each.
6000 Lockets				ench.
5000 Sets Ladies' Jewelry				euch.
10000 Gold Pens, Silver M'ted Holders	4 00	to 5	00	each.
10000 Gold Pens, with Silver Extension
Cases and Pencils	4 00	to 6	. 00	each.

J. H. WINSLOW & CO.,

Printing Office for $12. Every Man his own Printer.

THE LOWE IMPROVED PERNTING PRESSIFS are the best and chespest portable Card and Job Presser over invented, and have been awarded Silver Medials of the pression of the pression of the pression of the pression of MAKING MONEY by using them. Cards, Bill-Heads, Glevalers, Labels, dec, one be printed at a trifling expense. Price of Freeset: St. 12, 13, and $55. Price of an Office, with Press, $P.2, 23, 28, and $43. Send triffing expense. Price of an Office, with Press, $12, ..., for a Circular to the LOWE PRESS CO. 13 Water Street, Boston.

$200! $150! $100! $50! PREMIUMS.

To Editors and Others!

I will pay the above-named amounts for the best four articles on either my Soar, Saleratus, or Concentrated Potash.

The article must state the writer's experience in using the goods, and must be not less than ten lines, and be published in the editorial columns of any good family

Any party wishing to compete for the above, and desir ing further information, may address the underisgued. Each person writing and publishing a notice as above, will mail a marked copy of the paper containing the notice to me, and also write me by mail, giving full address

The Premiums will be awarded on the fourth day of B. T. BABBITT.

64 to 74 Washington Street, New York.

National Union League Army Corps and Regimental Badges. When now proposed to furnish Lemma Plus; also, Army Corps and Regimental Budges of every description, in Solid Silver, Solid Gold, and Plated. Also a large essentment of deverley.

E. N. FOOTE & CO., Manufacturers of Jewerry, Amery Cris.

Sportsmen, Tourists, and Army and Navy Officers. Powerful and Brilliant Double Glasses.

Fowerful and Brilliant Double Glasses.

Portability countient with great power in Field, Murine, Tourists', Oppera, and general ent-door day and night double perspective glasses, will show distinctly a person to know speciates of the greatest transparent power to strengthen without the distressing result of frequent changes. Catalegues sent by curdaving steams.

sent by enclosing stamp.

SEIMMONS, Oculists—Optician,
669: Broadway, New York.

Meeks' Cabinet and Furniture Warehouse. No. 699 BROADWAY, and 333 and 335 Fourth Street.

The largest assurement of rich and plain furnitare in the city, made of the very best well-seasoned and selected material, by the best workmen in the country, under the immediate supervision of the firm, whose reputation for excellence of manufacture has been established seventy years. Atso, an assortment of superior COTTAGE FURNITURE ST Goods packed and shipped to all parts of the world.

Head-Quarters for Army Corps or Co. Pins.

Agents wanted in overy Regiment, Hospital, and on board every Naval Vessel. For $1, will send you as samp with a Circular giving full instructions to Agents, either a Fluc Gold Pen and Penell, or a beautiful New Style V. Chain, or Chatelaine Chain and Pin, of Guard Chain, or a Charparved Spring Locket, or a Son Stone, California Di mond, or Chased Ring, or a fine Gold California Dimond Pin, or a New Style Set of Jewelry, or a solid Silver Shid or either Army Corps, Division, or Company Pin, with your Nance, Co. and Reg., handsonely engraved upon it, or Kearney Cross in Gold Plate; and, for So cente, I will send a beautiful Union League Pin, in fine Gold Plate, and Company N. Y. Box 4876.

EXTRA AND BEST

Inducements yet offered to Agents to sell our New Card Insuramenters—Magic Tobacco Boxes—Venetian Barom-ters—Soldiers Smoking Pipes—Union Crystal Ceneutt— co Strainters—Pockeo Match Barks—Soff-regulating Shade Stationery and Yankee Notion "Prizs" Packages."

Send for New Circulars and be convineed. Address
RIGITARDS & CO., Inventors and Manufacturers, Self St. Liberty Street, P. O. Box 3131, N. Y.
P. S. Partles wiking to purchase Stationery, Yankoa Notions, Chenp Jewerry, &c., or to put up ""l'rize Packages" tiamselres, we will irrish with these Goods at the lowest Wholeself Coals prices.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED

stomach bitters

FROM A LADY.—West Milton, Seratega Co., N. Y., July Gh., 1851.— De Hosertrene—Sir: I have long delayed writing to you my sincere thanks for the good you have done my daughter. I can truly say that nothing but the kind hand of Providence and your BUTPERS have seared her from an early grave. For these pears I have least hoctoring he commended to me for her, leaded havleast hoctoring her commended to me for her, leaded havleast hoctoring her commended to me for her, leaded havleast hoctoring her commended to me for her, leaded having two first-true physicions: but all scenes to do her no good, while I was searching the Almanase and all the merepapers that I could get hold of, in hopes of finding something that would suit her case. Accidentally there came part of a mecopaper round some goods that I longith one part of a mecopaper round some goods that I bought to Ballston Spa and got a butle of your BUTPERS. Site to Ballston Spa and got a butle of your BUTPERS. Site to Ballston Spa and got a butle of your BUTPERS.
We had that burning in the stomach, I never saw in my life, now able to work all the time. I think there is a little derangement of the liver. Please send me three bottles more, which I think will our her entirely. We and others thought she had a disease of the heart, but that beating and duttering that would almost top her from breathing at the start of the property. Mr. AMANDA MCPIERSON, Sold by all Druggists and Family Grocers.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters,

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

PREPARED AND SOLD BY HOSTETTER & SMITH, PITTSBURGE, PA.
DEPOT FOR NEW YORK, 476 BROADWAY.

It is in the Beginning of Sickness you should Use Brandreth's Pills.

One dose then of four or six pills is of greater service In curing you than many would be when the disease is farther advanced.

After a few doses should you call in a doctor, your cure

After a few doses should you call in a doctor, your cars will be easy, compared with what it would have been had you not need BRANDRETH'S PILLS. Be wise in time; if you are out of sorts get them. A single dose often curse a serious Diarrhon, and will cor-tainly open the bowles in all cases of Costiveness, and in Colds, Ashma, and Affections of the Lungs, they are un-ricated.

rivaled. THEY ARE THE BEST PURGATIVE IN THE WORLD Pamphlets of cure grate, at PRINCIPAL OFFICE, 294 CANAL STREET.

Also at No. 4 Union Square, New York, where the Pills

Also at No. 4 Union Square, New York, where the rus ure sold.

See B. Brandreth in White on Government Stamp.

Sold everywhere by Dealers. Price 25 cents. Send evry soldier a box.

Printing-Press for Sale.

One Taylor Double Cylinder, five Rollers, Table Distribution, Bed Sax51. Prices 58500.

Apply to HARPER & BROTHERS, 829 Pearl St., N. Y.

Hubbard Bros NewYork.

Are offering the cheapest, most accurate, durable, and saleable Watches in the American market! They are the sole consignees in this country for the celebrated

Magic Time Observers, The Perfection of Mechanism! Being a Hunting, or Open Face, or Lady's or Gentleman's Watch combined, with or Gentleman's Watch combined, with Patent Self-winding Improvement. A most pleasing novelty. One of the pretiest, most convenient, and decidedly the best and cheapest timepiece for general and reliable use ever offered. It has within it and connected with its machinery its own winding attacks of this Watch are composed of two metals, the cut cases of this Watch are composed of two metals, the cut croen being fine 16 carate gold. It has the improved ruby action lever movement, and is warranted an accurate time-ince. Price, superbly engawed, per case of h if $\ell > \cos h$, \$20f. Sample watches in neat moreozo boxes, \$30. If a cut by mail, the peekegs 150 cents, registering, 20 cents.

Silver Watches!

First-Class Hunting Time-Pieces. FOR ACCURACY OF MOVEMENT, BEAUTY OF MATERIAL, AND, ABOVE ALL, CHEAPNESS IN PRICE, THESE WATCHES MUST INSURE UNIVERSAL APPROBATION!

UNIVERSAL APPROBATION!

An imitation so faulthese that it can hardly be detected by the most experienced indees. The material being of two metals, the outer one first quality Sliver and the innerence German Silver, it can not be recognized by cutting or heavy engraving, making it not only in appearance, but in durability, the best resemblance of Solid Storling Silver in existence.

The sale of these watches in the army is a source of commons profit, retailing, as they very readily do, at Silver and the sale of the common profit, retailing, as they very readily do, at Silver and the sale of the sale of the sale of the common profit, retailing as they very readily do, at Silver in the sale of the sale of the common profit, retailing as they very readily do, at Silver in the sale of the common profit, retailing as the sale of the sale of "nanoretay and artisticatly misshed." — N. Y. Scot-ish American, July 30.

"Gembine great accuracy as timekeepers."—Pittsburg, P. C. Chrosides, July 27.
"Very priety and dank by watches for the erm;"—N. Y. Yory priety and danks, Government organ, Aug 29.
"One of the oldest and most reliable houses in business."—Loutswille, Eq., Journal, July 31.
[28] "Tamas dass; it Navantany it's Advances. No agents employed; buyers must deal directly with us. If money is sent us by express or mail in a rejetserse letter, it is at our rick.' Orders will meet the most prompt and faithful attention.

HUBBARD BROS., Sole Importers, Broadway, cor. Courtlandt St., New Yor

The Beard, Hair, He.

I am a discharged Indianu Volunteer. I will tell in a printed letter what I know of the shrub gluce or belasm with which a Sected woman freesed the foce of Classical Control of the shrub gluce of Shinds. With the healing green a thick fine beard. It is a bitterial bulsam, and has the remurkable power of enusing the whiskers, hair, &c. to come forth quickly, fresh and strong upon the smoothest face and the ballost head. For sealed package, &c. (free), address JOHN RAWLINS, 676 Broundway, N. 1

Portable Printing Offices.

For sale by the ADAMS PRESS CO., 31 Park Row, New York. Circulars sent free. Specimen Sheets of Type, Cuts. &c., 6 conts, and also for sale by CHASE & LEAVITT, 35 Lincoln Street, Boston, Mass.

Chool A MONTH! We want Agents at $60 a month, expenses paid, to sell our Exertasting Pencils, cent tree. Shaw & Clark, Biddeford, Maine.

Soldiers' COMPANY PINS.

Constantly on hand and Engraved to Order, and sent free on receipt of Price.

Every Co. from A to M Solid Silver, $1. Silver, with Letters in GOLD Relief, $1 50. Solid 18 k. GOLD, $4 50.

Corps Badges

Sent free by Mail or Express on receipt of Price

Solid Silver, $1 50. Solid Silver, $1 50.

Solid Gold, $5.

Solid Gold, $5. Badges for the 1st, 2d, 3d, 5th, 6th, 11th, and 12th Army Corps. 1st Division Enameled Red, 2d Division White, 3d Division Blue, one but perfect Goods sent.

Terms Cash in advance. Send for a Catalogue.
Address J. G. PACKARD & CO.,
208 Broadway, New York.

Accordeous and Fintinas, Men glality, Skeys, $5 59; 10 keys $3; 12 keys $3 50; $8 keys (double) $4 to $85. 10 keys (double) $4 to $5. Plutinas $8 to $25. Missic Rooks 50 cents. Sunt by Express to any part of country. Musical Instruments repeired.

$10 AGENTS WANTED. $10 To sell Something New. Send stamp for Circular. S. W. RICE & CO., 83 Nassau Street, N. Y.

C 1 VAN ANDEN'S ONE DOLLAR PORTABLE COPYING FRESS.
Acknowledged by all who have used it to be, in all spects, unequaled. Sent free by mail. Jaberal discounded to spects and the trade. IJANAII & CO. No. 104 Jo. St., N. Y. Room No. 1. Send 3 et. stamp for circular.

A Splendid Holiday or Bridal Present.

HARPER'S

Illuminated and Pictorial

BIBLE.

Including the Apocrypha. Superbly embellished by over Sixteen Hundred Hustartions, exquisitely engraved by Adams after Designs by Chapman, exclusive of a Series of Rich Huminations in Colors, comprising Frontispieres, Presentation Plate, Family Record, Thie-pages, &c. The whele forming a semptions Feloi Volume, Process. Moreose, gilt edges, bevied and panuled sides, $250 or). Moreose extra, gilt edges, bevied and panuled sides, $250 or). Moreose extra, gilt edges, $250 or). Full Gaif, marbidel edges, blank stamped, $15 00; Full Boam, marbidel edges, $100.00. Harper's Pictorial Bible is printed from the standard copy of the American Bible Society, and contains Marginal Meirenees, the Apocrypha, a Concordance. Chronological Process of the Comprehensive Comprehensi

For sale by A. Williams & Co., Boston; Smith, Es-guent & Co., Philadelphia; Cosminos & Bailer, Balti-more; Frances Taylos, Wabhighon; Romere Claurie & Co., Chicimati; Kerni & Woon, St. Loule; S. C. Grigos & Co., Chicago; Dawson & Brottiers, Montreal.

Sent by mail, postage free, on receipt of Price.

HARPER & BROTHERS, NEW YORK, Have just published:

MARTIN POLE. A Novel. By JOHN SAUNDERS, Author of "Abel Drake's Wife," &c. 8vo, Paper, 50 cents.

of "Abel Drikes" where "or. O. you, raper, or cents.
FLEANOR'S WICTORY. A Dovel. By M.F. BRADDON, Author of "Anroar Flord," "John Marchmon's Legaey," &c. With Ulustrations. See, paper, So cants.
THE RING OF AMASIS. From the Papers of a Cermen Physician. By Romer BULWER LYTHON (Own Meredith). Thum, Cotth, SI

DAILY WALK WITH WISE MEN. Religious Foor-cises for Every Day in the Year. Selected, Arranged, and specially Adapted, by Rev. Naison Hean. Large From, Cloth, $1 50.

HARPER'S NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE

TERMS.

One Copy for on Year.

Two Copies for One Year.

AR Management of the Year every Club of The Structures, at $2.50 each, or 11 Copies for $55.00.

HAITHER MACAINE and HABERTE WEEKLY, together, one year, $5.00.

HARPER & BROTHERS, Pomasuress.

Circulation over 100,000.

HARPER'S WEEKLY. Single Copies Six Cents.

HARPER & BROTHERS, PUBLISHERS

THE STATE ELECTIONS.

PENNSYLVANIA. "Friend Onto, I thought thee hadst got rid of this noxious weed, as I of mine; and yet I see an ugly Pumpkin growing upon thy land."
Outro. "Not upon my land, I guess! It's the VALLANDEUMAN PUNKIN as I've tossed over into my neighbor's field, and he's bin and tuck root, you see, among the Canady thistles!"

E. & H. T. ANTHONY.

Manufacturers of Photographic Materials, 501 Broadway, New York.

Card Photographs.

FOUR THOUSAND

FOUR THOUSAND

different subjects to which addition are continually being made of Portraits of Emiment Americans, etc., viz.; 12 Majo-Generals, 130 Brigadier-Generals, 125 Coincel, 252 Coincel, 181 Divines, 125 Coincel, 181 Divines, 181 Lieut-Lolonels, 116 Authors, 116 Authors, 117 Prominent Foreign Fourtails.

2,500 CORE OF WORKS OF ART.

INCLUDE SUPPOPULATIONS OF THE MOSE CHARBATED EXCHANGE ANALYSIS, PARTISHES, STATUES, 6C.

An order for the Dezen HETCHES from our Catalogue will be filled on receipt of $1.50, and sent by mail, free.

Photographic Albums.

Of these we manufacture a great variety, rauging in price from 30 cents to $50 cech. Our ALBUSM have the reputation of being superior in beauty and durability to any others. The smaller kinds can be sent safely by mail at a postage of six cents per ox.

The more expensive can be sent by express.

Stereoscopes & Stereoscopie Views.

E. & H. T. ANTHONY. 501 Broadway, New York.

501 Eroadway, New York.

Friends or relative of prominent militum men will confer a favor by sending us their likenesses to cony.
They will be thest confully, and returned uniquianed, the FINE ALBUMS MADE TO ORDER for Congregations to present to their Pastor, or for other purposes, with suitable inscriptions, experiences.

IF YOU WANT TO BE CUSED OF L.Y.D.S.

Spring is the time to use DR. LEATHUS

SPIRIL IS THE UNITED WITH THE ADDRESS OF THE PURPLE OF THE ADDRESS OF THE ADDRESS

VIENLAND.

LANDS.—TO ALL WANTING FARDS.—Large and thriving settlement, mild and healthful elimate, 39 miles and thriving settlement, mild and healthful elimate, 59 miles and thriving settlement, mild and healthful elimate, 59 miles and the first produces of the settlement of Filiabelphia by railroad. Rich edit, produces fifty sere tracts, at from $15 to 820 per acre, payable within four years. Good business opening for Maxtraorumous and others, eluments, seboods, and good society. It is now the most improving place Faster of West. Hundreds place Is laid out it wound to be a fine produced for the with which the part of the second of the

PREPARE FOR THE HOLIDAYS. PREPARE FOR THE HOLIDAYS.
There is no Gift or Present, which compares with the Craig Microscope and Mountaet Objects. As a source of annaement and instruction they are une urpassed. This Mi-S2 25; or with 6 beautiful mounted objects, for $8; or with 24 objects, for $8. Address, HENRY CRAIG,
Address, HENRY CRAIG,
A Hieral discount to the trade.

fisk & hatch.

Bankers and Dealers in Government Securities.

AGENTS FOR THE UNITED STATES FIVE-TWENTY LOAN, No. 38 Wall Street.

Miss Kate Denin,

The celebrated actress, says: "I have used Henric's XXXAMSE for my hair, and find it the most elegant arti-le for keeping it in its full beauty and lawninness that I ave ever used. I can freely recommend it to everylady." t contains no oil, alorbol, or any other injurious ingre-ients, and is the most perfect hair-dressing in the world. Price 50 cents. Depto 46 Cliff Stretc, N. Y.

FISH'S PATENT LAMP HEATING APPARATUS Boiling, Frying, Stewing—Steeping with the fle lights the room.

Every Family should have One.
For descriptive Pamphiet and Price List, address W. I RUSSELL, Agent, 206 Pearl St., N. Y. Agents wanted

Pins for every Co. from A to M.

Address J. G. PACKARD & CO., 208 Br'dway, N. Y.

fine dress SHIRTS TO ORDER. UNRIVALED In Manufacture.

Fitting, and Material. At UNION ADAMS. No. 637 Broadway.

Also, a full assortment of Jct. Coral, and Steel Goods. Schuyler, Hartley & Graham, 19 Maiden Lane & 22 John Street, N. Y., 15 Rue d'Enghein, Paris, 47 Hampton St., Birmingham, Eng.

IVORY SLEEVE BUTTONS

OR STUDS—Red, White, and Black, engraved with initials, 75c, per pair, will be sent free on receipt of the price by mail. For sale by WM. M. WELLING, manifacturer of Proyageds, 267 Courte St., N. Y., sign of the Golden Elephant. A liberal discount to the trade.

DOK OUT for the "GHOST OF WELL-DEAN,"—The most exciting, mirth-provoking story of the age, just published by IRWIN. P. BLA-DLE & Co., No. 187 William St., New York. This thirling narrative is such a lappy consultantion of the Tragical, Eddicross, and Marvelums, that Artenus Ward will assuredly give up the Gibest from sheer enzy after once reading it. For sale by all News Agents. Frice 10 cents Seth, postage padd, on receipt of price.

American Enamelled

Metallic Collar Co.,

No. 94 Pine Street, New York.

No. 94 Pine Street, New York,
Are now manifesturing their placedia Collars, which for singe, appearance, and durability are FAR IN ADVANCE of anything hereofore produce.

They are the inventors and manufacturers of the only real "PURN-OVER" COLLAR ever offence.

These Collars are infinitely SUPERIOR TO STEEL, being more pliable, and the material of which they are manufactured BEING A NON-CONDUCTOR, renders them free from the objectionable feature of the steel coltricity, in the shape of lightning. Inclose $1 for a "Choicity," or $15 of arg agentine, "buff turn-over" collar, to the AMERICAN ENAMELED METALLIC COLLAR COMPANY, Box No. 5173 New York City Post Office, and receive it by return mail.

$35 WATCHES, $35

Genuine Full-Jeweled American Lever Watches, in 4 Ounce Coin Silver Hunting Cases, Gold Joints,

Also every variety of good Watches at equally low rates.
All orders from the Army must be pre-paid, as the Express Companies will not take bills for collection on soldiers.

J. L. FERGUSON, Importer of Watches. 208 Broadway New York.

DR. B. C. PERRY. DERMATOLOGIST,

49 Bond Street, New York, Formerly of 29 Winter Street, Bostoa, treats succefully all Discasse of the Scalp, Loss of Hair, and Frenture Blanching. Arso, removes Moth Freckles, and or or Discolorations from the face, without lighty to titexture or color of the skin.
For particulars enclose stump for Circular.

Shults' Onguent, warranted to produce a full set of Whiskers in six weeks, or money refunded. Scut post-paid, for 30 cents. Address C. F. SHULTS, Troy, N. Y.

$7. WATCHES. $7.

A Brautiful Engraved Gold-Intel Wash, Lever Cap-small size, English Horeneuts, perfect time-keeper. Sent free by mail, in next cose, for only $X$. A $80 di Siver, same as allove, $X$. Specially adapted to the ARMY, same as allove, $X$. Specially adapted to the ARMY, IMAS, P. NORTON & CO. 18-& 40 Ann Street, N. Y. Frunk Leslies Illustrated Newspaper, of Aug. 22, says: Messex, NORTON & CO. Inver combined two very de-sirable things in a watch—cheapness and reliability. When it is known that for $X$ a person can have an excel-lent timekeeper, there will be greater punctuality in all the affair of the service of the control of the

MUNN & CO.,

Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents,

And Publishers of the Daustrated Scientific American, 57 Park Row, N. Y. Pamphlets of information cocerning Patents, free. Specimens of the Paper, free.

WATCHES FREE. $15 Per Day Easy $15

Agents in Towns, and Soldiers in camp or discharged, are making easily $15 per day selling our GREAT NEW and WONDERFUL LYNON PRIZE AND STATIONIERY PAUKAGES, NOVEL AND UNEQUALED, and unlike all quality. Writing Meterials, Games, Lorient and our preticles, Likenessee of Heroes, Camp Companions for the Army, rich gifts of jowelry, &c., &c., allogether worth over $1,$ for ONLY 25c. They are just the thing for a present to gour friend in the Army, it family should represent to gour friend in the Army. Ro family should not be supported to the Army of the Army of the Company of the Army of the GOLD PENS AND CASES.

Retailed at wholesale prices. 14 kt. Gold Pen, Solid Silver Case, $150, warranted for one year, guarantee ac-companying each Pen. Send for a circular. Pens re-pointed on receipt of 35 cents.

Amalgam Bells.

Choppes and best for Churches, Schools, Farms, Factoris, &c. End to be and durability to any other metal, and two-thirds less in price, or 15 cts. per 10. Seed for a direntar to the manufacturer, John R. Robinson, late Pratt Robinson & Co., 190 William St., N. Y.

A Beautiful Complexion, free from Tan. Pimples and Freekles, may easily be procured by using the "BALM OF THOUSAND FLOWERS." For sharing it is unsurpased. It is composed of pain oil, honey, and other valuable articles, highly perfuned by its orn interactions of the procured by the orn interactions that not and white, and free from blemish. Price 50 cents.

The Trade supplied by HOWARD, SANGER & CO., 105 and 107 Chambers Street, N. Y., and for sale by all Druggists.

A BEAUTIFUL MICROSCOPE

rur 30 cts. (coin proferred), magnifying small objects 500 times. Five of different powers for $1 00. Mailed free. Address F. C. BOWEN, Box 220, Boston, Mass.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu Cures Diabetes.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu Cures Gravel Brick-dust Deposits.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu Cures Irritation of the Bladder.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu Cures Inflammation of the Kidneys.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu Cures Catarrh of the Bladder.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu

Helmbold's Extract Buchu Cures Diseases Arising from Exposure or Imprudence.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu Cures Nervous Diseases and Prestration of the System.

From whatever cause originating, and whether catalog in either sex.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu

Is safe and pleasant in Taste and Odor. Diseases of the ca organs require the aid of a Diarctic.

Helmbold's Extract Buchy Is the Great Dipretic-

Strengthening, Blood Purifying, and Invigorating Certificates from well-known persons in all parts of the country, in book form, giving the full descriptions, tocases and the mode of treatment, will be ferwarded on an ceipt of 4 three-cent postage stamps.

It is a book of 100 pages

Price of medicine $1 per bottle, or six for $5. D. live; ad to any address.

Direct letters to HELMBOLD'S Medical Depot, No. 104 South 10th St., Philadelphia.

Sold by Druggists generally Beware of Counterfeits.

Ask for HELMBOLD'S. Take no other,

NATIONAL BATTLE PIN.

Something New!-Every Family and every Salther must have it. Retail price $1. For an Agency al-lress A. B. BALLOU & SON, HAVIRILL, Mass. 220 Samples mailed to Agents for 30 cents

Stimson's Improved Checker Boards, with Instructions, Rules, of the Game, &c. $3 00 per dozen; retails at 50 cents. For sale by GRO. A. OLNEY, 42 John Street, N. Y.

Fogg's Double-Action Patent Lever Skate Buckle.

Skate Buckle.

Manufactured and for sale on Straps, at wholesale, by F. STEVENS, Manufacturer of Skates, Straps, and Leuther Goods, 215 Pearl Street, New York, 68 Kilby Street, Boston.

A GENTS WANTED.—$2 positively made from 20 cts.; urgently needed by every person. Call and examine. Ten samples sont free by mail for 20 cts.; retails for $2. R. L. WOLCOTT, 170 Chatham Square, N. Y.

A Household Word. -- Buy your Housekeeping Articles at BASSFORD'S, Cooper Institute, New York.

-WANTED WANTED

Do you want Splendid Whiskers or HUNTER'S ONGLEN' will force them to grow heavily in six weeks upon the emothest face) without strin or injury to the skin. Also on Ball Hunde in rea weeks. Two Boxes for $1.00. Fostage free. Address C. HUNTER & Co., Box 615, Missankoe, Wis.

Reproduced from the origi by Applewood Books Box 365, Bedford, MA 01 www.harpersweekly.com original A 01730