Motorola/Intel

Modulator

by Matthew Brandt

This program is meant for dialing up a terminal session with a BBS or another computer and using it like a terminal. It doesn't do Telnet. It doesn't do scripts.

Motorola/Intel

Taylor-UUCP

NeGen/NiNe/R&A distribution [1.2]

It is meant as a complete replacement of the (slow, inefficient) BSD uucp that comes with the standard NEXTSTEP distribution.

Sniff.app

Sniff is brought to you by Dmitri Linde, the author of another practical-joke-app: ArtificialIntelligence.

Sniff was inspired by a similar program for Apple Machintosh Computer. It is a great practical joke. Just click the `Begin Sniffing' button and quit this program. Then your computer will sniff once in a while.

Motorola

uuMon.app

uuMon is a utility application that provides a NeXT interface to uucp functions. It allows you to poll systems, monitor and parse the log files, and send mutiple with a drag and drop interface. It shows the activity log of the current system along with current and average transfer rates.

rsz0525

NeXT.rsz0525.FAT

Modified by Jason Fosback

These file contains the source code and binaries for zmodem.

Although this is not the latest version of Chuck Forsberg's program, it performs the best under NEXTSTEP, IMHO.

Motorola/Intel/PA-RISC/SPARC

UUcon

Version 3.6 by Nicholas Christopher

UUCon is just a front end to existing uucp monitoring commands.

However it does centralize them and it may use commands you were not aware of. I wrote it one day to help me do the things I tend to do to maintain my link: queue, poll, delete jobs.
